BANKERS PRESENT VIEWS ON REFORM OF THE CURRENCY

Answers Are Made to Series of Questions Formulated by Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

CENTRAL BANK FAVORED UNDER U. S. CONTROL

Bankers Agree That Reform Is Necessary—Jos. A. McCord, of Atlanta, Assisted in Preparing Replies.

New York, June 21.—Methods which should be pursued in reforming the currency system of the country, according to the views of the American Bankers' association were outlined today in a detailed statement issued by the currency commission of that organization.

The statement, which answers thirty-three questions formulated by a subcommittee of the committee on banking and currency of the United States senate, was prepared by the committee which recently conferred at Atlantic City.

Jos. A. McCord, of the Third National bank, of Atlanta, is a member of the commission and assisted in answering the questions of the senate committee.

The commission endorsed the currency plan devised by the national monetary commission, of which Senator Aldrich, of Rhode Island, was chairman. It made no reference to the bill recently prepared at Washington with the co-operation of President Wilson. Its recommendations, in fact, were framed before the publication of the administration bill. The commission urges that whatever system is adopted be kept out of politics.

Central Bank Favored.

The commission made no attempt to formulate a complete currency system, its recommendations being guided by the question put to it by the subcommittee of the senate. It did state its belief, however, that a central banking institution should be established, under governmental control. No reference was made as to methods to be employed in the regulation of such an institution or the appointment or election of its managing heads.

In expressing its ideas as to the establishment of a central bank, the commission, while not declaring for the creation of an institution similar to the great central banks of the principal European countries, points out that "the experience of commercial nations is that results can be better accomplished by the creation of a privately owned central organization dominated and controlled by the government, as, for instance, the Imperial Bank of Germany, or the Bank of France. It serves to take the matter out of politics."

Politics Great Danger.

"The great danger," the statement says, "is that if borrowers go direct to the treasury, politics will become an all-important and dominating influence."

The commission does not favor the continuance of bond secured currency, the objection being that the volume of currency is thus arbitrarily limited.

"One unfortunate consequence of this artificial condition," the statement says, "is that the nation's bonds, which should be widely held by citizens as their choicest investment, are held almost exclusively by banks for circulation or government deposits."

One of the most important recommendations is made in reply to the question:

"Should an elastic currency be authorized by law?"

"We believe that such a currency should be authorized by law," the answer runs, "the amount to be controlled by the gold reserve requirements against it. Such reserves should be ample, not less than fifty per cent, as a recognized minimum."

Defects of Banking System.

1. What are the essential defects of our banking and currency system?

Answer. (a) A principal defect of our system is the absolute rigidity of our currency. A bank in order to take care of a reasonable, must invest money in government bonds than it is permitted to issue in currency, there, by limiting, rather than increasing, its power to aid commerce and trade.

Outside of the three central reserve cities there is no redemption of

NO DISASTER CAME AND G.A. UNIVERSITY LOST $25,000 BEQUEST

New York, June 21.—(Special.)—The will of Horace Russell, formerly judge of the superior courts, was filed for probate in the Surrogates court this afternoon. Judge Russell died last Saturday at his home, 11 West Seventy-Ninth avenue. The value of the estate is not disclosed. The bulk of the estate goes to the widow. The remainder is divided among his three daughters, excepting several minor bequests to friends and servants.

The will was made February 1, 1901, about the time Judge Russell and his family were to start on a trip to Europe. The will provided that in case of any catastrophe such as a sea disaster, or a railroad wreck, during the trip and all of his immediate family were killed, the University of Georgia was to receive $25,000; the Presbyterian hospital $10,000, and F. Hopkinson Smith, the novelist, $5,000. These provisions were wiped out by the fact that Judge Russell and his family survived the trip abroad.

LIVELY INTEREST SHOWN IN RACES IN BOTH HOUSES

Speakership of the House and Presidency of the Senate Are in Great Doubt on Eve of Assembly Opening.

LEADING CANDIDATES DISCUSS SPEAKERSHIP

In Senate Victory Is Claimed by Both J. Randolph Anderson and John T. Allen on Votes Already Pledged.

With the legislature meeting here in annual session next Wednesday morning, the lobby of the Kimball house already presented an unusually lively appearance last night. The preliminary interest centers in the sharply contested battle for the presidency of the senate, and in the fight which may prove to be almost if not quite as exciting before it is over and done with, for the speakership of the house.

Politicians from all over the state were in evidence Saturday about the capitol and the hotel lobbies. Members of the legislature, other than candidates, have also begun to arrive, it being said that there were as many as twenty-five or thirty in town last night.

Live Speakership Race.

Since Representative R. N. Hardeman, of Jefferson, reached town on Thursday and began his active canvass for the speakership, things have livened up very much in that contest. Before his arrival the politicians were very much inclined to give the victory to Representative W. H. Burwell, of Hancock, in a walkover, and their attention was almost altogether centered on the very close and exciting race between Senators J. Randolph Anderson, of the First district, and John T. Allen, of the Twentieth, for the presidency of their branch.

If the friends of Mr. Hardeman are to be credited, however, there will be some very considerable surprises in store for the other side between this time and the balloting Wednesday, and they expect a rapid advance in their candidate's stock beginning tomorrow.

Certain it is that neither of the two leading candidates in the race for the speakership will leave a stone unturned between this time and the final count to capture the plum for himself. What the third man in the race, Representative J. E. Sheppard, of Sumter, is doing or how much strength he will be able to develop in the wind-up is uncertain, he having not until a late hour Saturday night put in his appearance on the field of action.

All are agreed, even the candidates themselves, that Mr. Burwell is so far in the lead. The hope of the other two is that he will not be able to gather sufficient votes on the first ballot to elect him. Hardeman's friends maintain that Burwell's strength is not nearly so great as he and his friends imagine, and that, on the second ballot, the Sheppard forces will rally to their support in sufficient numbers to elect him.

Burwell People Confident.

The Burwell following, on the other hand, pooh-pooh any such talk. They say that their man has the race sewed up in a sack and has had for months, and that all the trouble and work of Hardeman and his friends is simply time wasted.

Both candidates are on hand, with headquarters in the Kimball, where they are being visited by their friends. Mr. Burwell opened his headquarters Saturday in rooms 108 and 110, and he was kept busy the greater part of the day receiving advice and assurances of support from his friends. Mr. Hardeman has the next floor, and is keeping open house for his friends in room 223. Both candidates issued hefty announcements Saturday, each giving their views as to the outlook. Mr. Burwell said:

"I see no reason to change the opinion that I have had for some time, gathered from the assurances of support that I have received, and that is, that I will win. I am confident that I am not claiming the whole house as mine, nor have I said or done anything in derogation of the two gentlemen who are opposing me. The information that seems to have gone out over the state that I have the race sewed up did not emanate from me, and I inspire it.

Looks for Election.

"Still, I have every confidence that I will be elected on the first ballot and that without much trouble. I derive this assurance from the number of friends of mine in the house who have promised me their support, many of them voluntarily. As to just what the size of my vote will be, I will not undertake to say, but it will be more than sufficient to elect me."

Mr. Hardeman gave out Saturday night the first public statement that he has made since his announcement of the speakership race. It is very conservative, makes no sweeping claims of victory, but simply gives his reasons for remaining in the race, and tells why he thinks his chances for ultimate victory are as good as anybody else's.

"To date, I have made no public statement with reference to the campaign for the speakership of the house of 1913-14. I have contented myself with making a quiet campaign among my friends, have merely written letters to the members of the house only soliciting their support. I have replies from every member-elect and, unlike other candidates, I will frankly and openly to state that I haven't a sufficient number of unqualified pledges to insure my election. At the same time, from an absolute knowledge of the situation, I wish to state that no candidate for speaker has a sufficient number of unqualified pledges to elect. In fact, I doubt if the straight pledges of all three of the candidates

DEATH ENGINE IN TEST AT WRECK SCENE

Unusual in many ways were the air-brake tests of engine No. 1338, which crashed into the rear Pullman of the Boston to New York express on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad at Stamford, Conn., and killed six and injured nearly a score. The locomotive, drawing the same cars as on the day of the crash, ran over the same section of tracks. For six straight tests the engine worked all right, with varying results, but on the seventh test the air-brakes failed to work properly, and the train went beyond the point where the first section had stood at the time of the accident, proving the contention of Engineer Charles J. Dougherty. The top picture shows that the engine still bore traces of the accident, as the arrow. In the lower view Coroner Phelan is insisting that the engine make further trials. General Superintendent C. N. Woodward, of the railroad, is consenting.

ELECTRICAL STORM SWEEPS ATLANTA

Unheralded Thunder Storm Breaks Over City, Lowering Temperature 25 Degrees. Cooler Weather Today.

Atlanta experienced one of the most severe electrical storms in her history about 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and yet as severe as the storm was, practically no damage was reported. During the thunder and lightning, which was accompanied by a heavy rainfall, the atmosphere was cooled off and the mercury dropped 25 degrees in twenty minutes.

Flag poles on two buildings were shattered by the lightning, which seemed to fill the atmosphere at times and pierced the western sky in long, ragged streaks. The flag staff on top of The Constitution was splintered by a bolt of lightning, but no other part of the building experienced any damage.

Across the street flag pole on top of the building in which the McCandless laboratory is located was also struck, and the upper half of it broken off and splintered. Fortunately no one was struck by the pieces of wood which fell to the pavement.

High Temperature Saturday.

The weather had been exceedingly warm during the greater part of Saturday, which was the longest day of the year, and at 2 o'clock the thermometer registered 93 degrees and apparently showed no signs of falling. This was the warmest weather since Tuesday and Wednesday, when 96 degrees proved the hottest weather in two years.

When the storm, which appeared to be one of the local thunder showers that arrive unheralded during an extremely hot spell in the summer, first came on the mercury was close to 93 degrees, and within about twenty minutes it had fallen to 68 degrees. By 7 o'clock it had risen again to 72 degrees, but the entire night was much cooler as a result of the storm, and the temperature for Sunday is expected to be much lower as a result.

During the storm the current supplying the street cars with power was cut off for more than an hour, and service was blocked completely.

The rain which fell during the storm amounted to .35 inches, according to the official figures of the local weather bureau.

SENATE WILL ATTEND GETTYSBURG REUNION

Washington, June 21.—The senate today voted to accept the invitation of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania to attend the semi-centennial ceremonies of the battle of Gettysburg and Vice President Marshall will appoint a committee of nine to attend.

In reply to Senator Norris, of Nebraska, Chairman Johnston, of the military affairs committee, stated that at the request of the secretary of war today the committee would take prompt action on the question of more tents for use at Gettysburg.

Chief Justice White has found it impossible to attend. Congressman L. C. Dyer, of St. Louis, a Spanish war veteran, will attend as a member of the house committee.

MAN LEAPS TO DEATH FROM SPEEDING TRAIN

W. C. Berner Escapes Vigilance of Brother, Ending Life Near Cornelia.

Passengers on Southern train No. 11 which arrived in Atlanta at 8:15 o'clock last night told the story of the death of W. C. Berner, of Walhalla, S. C., who committed suicide at 6:35 o'clock in the afternoon by jumping through one of the car windows near Cornelia, Ga., while the train was going at the speed of 25 miles an hour.

According to the story which the passengers told a Constitution reporter, W. C. Berner, 25 years of age, was being brought to Atlanta by his brother, J. D. Berner, Jr., in company with a Dr. Sloan.

Only the passengers stated that the brother had said that young Berner's mind was slightly deranged, owing to long illness. All during the trip the young man had been carefully watched, as he was in a state of melancholia. Either the brother or the physician was at his side constantly, fearing that he would commit suicide.

Jumps Through Window.

When within a mile of Cornelia, young Berner began to grow very restless, and his brother took the seat at his side on the right of the train. Suddenly, without any word of warning or farewell, he jumped on the car seat, and leaped through the window, while the train was going at twenty-five miles an hour, according to the passengers.

His brother, J. D. Berner, Jr., made a desperate grab at him, and caught his right foot, held on for the space of thirty seconds, and then not being able to hold his grip any longer, let him drop as other passengers came to his aid.

Retaining his presence of mind, J. D. Berner, Jr., grabbed the bell cord, and jerked it so hard that it broke in his hands, and as a consequence the train was not stopped until it had gone on a mile further into Cornelia.

The moment after the affair occurred many of the passengers became hysterical, it is said. Women screamed and fainted, and many men made a dash though the train loking for the conductor.

When the train returned and stopped, Dr. Sloan and the man's brother started running up the track, and according to the passengers, reached the body before the train did.

Berner was found at the bottom of a seven-foot embankment, unconscious. He was immediately put in the baggage car, and every effort made to revive him, which proved fruitless.

The body was taken off the train at Gainesville, Ga., placed in the hands of undertaker D. C. Stow, and prepared for burial. At 11:30 last night it was sent to Walhalla, S. C.

$100,000 BURGLAR GETS TEN YEARS IN PRISON

San Francisco June 21.—Owen D. Conn, "the hundred thousand dollar" burglar, was sentenced today to ten years in the penitentiary, this being his sixth and longest prison term. He confessed the burglary with which he was charged. Conn's specialty was posing as a wealthy man of leisure. He lived in fashionable hotels and his operations on this coast are supposed to have netted him $100,000. He was shot in the leg and crippled for life when captured.

SHOOTING PROBED BY CHIEF BEAVERS

Chief Beavers has ordered an investigation into the action of a plain clothes policeman last Sunday morning in firing his revolver while pursuing a youth who was fleeing from arrest on a charge of being on the street with a woman of questionable character.

Capt. W. F. Terry has been put in charge of the investigation and his report will not be made until this afternoon. The chief, however, has already made preliminary inquiry following complaint Saturday morning, and yesterday afternoon summoned the policeman before him.

The incident under investigation occurred Sunday morning between 1 and 2 o'clock, when Plain Clothes Policemen L. F. Carter and J. W. Pittman attempted to arrest a quartet of young men and girls at Forsyth and Garnett streets. They were J. M. Green, a moving picture operator, living at 424½ East Fair street; Paul Landrum, an actor, living at the Childs hotel, and Sarah McDonald, of 205 South Forsyth street, and Maud Knight, of 18 Castleberry street.

Officer Opens Fire.

The four were stopped at the corner and told that they would have to go to police headquarters. As the policemen summoned a patrol wagon Green broke and ran down Forsyth street toward Whitehall.

Carter gave chase, firing his revolver as he ran. Both Landrum and Green decide he drew first blow. The fleeing youth was caught at the corner of Castleberry and Forsyth streets. Later, he said that he had halted because of fear of being hit by one of the policeman's bullets. The quartet were sent to the police station in the patrol and charged with violating section 1770, which pertains to questionable characters in public at night.

Each gave bond of $15.75 and was freed for appearance in recorder's court Monday afternoon. Green was the only one who came to court. He was fined $10.75. The others forfeited collateral. The fine was paid.

Chief Beavers stated to a Constitution reporter Saturday afternoon that for a policeman to discharge his revolver unless compelled to do so in defense of life or property was an infraction of one of the department's rules. No report of the incident had been made to the captain of Carter's watch or to any other police official.

Carter Admits Shooting.

The chief also stated that he was not aware of the shooting until complaint was made Saturday morning. He immediately began investigation. Carter admitted to him that he had fired his revolver, but only in an attempt to frighten the running youth. He said it had been discharged only once.

To a reporter, Carter said that he fired the pistol in the air and not in Green's direction. He attacked the character of the girls in whose company the operator had been caught, and said that he had fired only to scare him.

Upon learning that the shots had been heard by a number of persons, Carter said that he was sorry that he had fired the shots, and that he had not been aware that they had been heard by any one.

FRANK NOT GUILTY OF PHAGAN MURDER DECLARES ARNOLD

Prominent Atlanta Lawyer Engaged to Aid in Defense of Pencil Factory Superintendent.

NO WHITE MAN KILLED GIRL, ASSERTS LAWYER

Formby and Conley Statements Should Not Be Given Credence So Far as They Tend to Incriminate Frank, He Says.

Reuben R. Arnold, perhaps the best-known attorney in Georgia, has been engaged to aid the defense of Leo M. Frank, the suspected pencil factory superintendent, in the Mary Phagan mystery. This announcement was made from his office yesterday afternoon.

In a statement that was furnished each of the newspapers, Mr. Arnold attacks the detectives for their continued efforts to lay the Phagan murder at his client's door. He hoots at the credence which he says has been placed in Conley's story and in the sensational affidavit sworn by Mima Formby.

Asserting his anticipation of clarifying the situation in due time, Mr. Arnold says that in the evidence the prosecution holds against Frank there is no room whatever in which to believe him guilty, and that no white man committed the crime.

Injustice, Says Arnold.

He deplores alleged injustice done the suspected superintendent by reports circulated to the effect that Frank's friends had persuaded the Formby woman to leave town and by many other false rumors deliberately set before the public, he declares.

The statement follows:

"It is true that I have accepted employment to assist in the defense of Mr. Leo M. Frank, but I wish to state that before I agreed to take the case, I talked with Frank and he should have time to study critically all the evidence delivered at the coroner's inquest and all the affidavits that have reached the public through the newspapers, so I could form an opinion for myself as to Frank's innocence or guilt. I would not defend any man if guilty of such a murder as the one in this case.

"After studying the evidence as critically as I can, I am satisfied that I hasard not a thing in saying that there is no room to believe Mr. Frank guilty of this horrible murder. I do not believe that any white man committed the crime.

"Indeed, it is surprising to me that the detectives should continue to try to put this crime on Frank with the positively incriminating affidavits of Conley before them. People of common sense, unless under great excitement, ought not to give a moment's credence to either the Formby or Conley statements in so far as they attempt to incriminate Mr. Frank.

"I see the detectives are gradually giving it out that Mrs. Formby will not be called as a witness, although her affidavit has been paraded before the public, bearing the unqualified indorsement of the detective department as being perfectly reliable and true. Worse than this, an intimation was published in the newspapers that Frank's friends had persuaded her to leave town. In this and in many other ways our client has been done a very great injustice. The effort seems to have been not to find the criminal, but to try by all means to put the crime on Frank.

"However, I think we will be able to clarify the situation in due time."

Trial Will Be in July.

Indications at present are that the trial of Leo M. Frank for the murder of Mary Phagan will be held not on June 30, as previously indicated, but on either July 14 or 28.

Solicitor Hugh Dorsey is out of town and is expected to return some time today. It remains for him to set the date of the trial, and then there is a probability that the defense will ask for a postponement.

It is understood that the jail will not be cleared of those waiting for trial by June 30, and it is hardly probable that the state would enter into a long trial before clearing the jail as much as possible of short cases.

The fact that Judge L. S. Roan, who, by special appointment, presides over the criminal division of the Fulton superior court, will not have to hold court in the Piedmont circuit during either the week of July 14 or July 28, makes it possible that the trial will be set for this date.

BY EATING 61 EGGS HE WON A BET OF $25 AND BROKE RECORD

Cairo, Ill., June 21.—Frank Blake won a bet of $25 today by eating 61 eggs. The world's record is supposed to have been 60. The eggs were cooked as follows:

Scrambled, 15; softboiled, 16; hardboiled, 15; fried, 15.

NEGRO IS LYNCHED, FOUR OTHERS SHOT BY AMERICUS MOB

Five Hundred Avengers Break Open Jail to Get Black Who Had Seriously Wounded Police Chief Barrow.

SHOTS DROWN VOICE OF PLEADING PASTOR

Crowd Riddles for Half Hour Body Hanging Under an Electric Light on Street Corner.

Americus, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—A mob of 500 persons attacked the jail at 8 o'clock tonight, broke down the cell door wherein a negro, William Redding, was confined and dragged him through the principal streets of the city to the Buchanan corner, where they lynched him. A thousand shots, it is estimated, were fired.

This was the climax of the shooting earlier in the evening of William C. Barrow, who has been chief of police in this city for the past twenty-five years, and the wounding of four negroes.

The sheriff and his deputies found resistance useless. With steel crowbars and sledgehammers, the angry members of the mob attacked the steel doors wherein the negro was confined.

Strung Up to Cable.

The lock was finally ripped from its fastenings, and the door swung open. Then a rope was tied about the negro's neck and he was led through the streets to the Buchanan corner, in Lamar street, near the scene of the shooting of Chief Barrow. There he was strung up to a cable, under the glare of an electric light.

The body had only been cleared from the ground when the rope broke; but the negro again was strung up, this time with better success. Shooting began from every direction, and the body was riddled with bullets.

Minister's Plea Unheard.

Before the shooting began, Rev. Robert Bivins, pastor of the Furlaw Lawn Baptist church, pleaded in vain with the leaders to spare the life of the negro. His pleadings lasted during the twenty minutes required to string the body up to the cable, and then yells of the crowd and the shots from many pistols drowned his voice.

The shooting continued at intervals for half an hour, and the body was left to hang on the cable.

The lynching was the most sickening tragedy ever witnessed in America.

Chief Barrow was shot entirely through the abdomen by Redding, and is now at the hospital. His condition is regarded dangerous. The bullet which went through Chief Barrow's abdomen emerged and struck Morris Allen, colored, in the arm, producing a painful wound.

Chased Through Streets.

Instantly great excitement resulted, and Redding ran down the crowded street pursued by citizens firing upon him.

Redding was soon captured and jailed, several officers standing as the pursuing posse having struck him, one in the back of the head. He would probably have died from these wounds.

An innocent bystander, Daniel Stallings, colored, was shot through the abdomen by the pursuers of Redding, and will probably die from the wound. A fourth negro received a scalp wound from a pistol ball. The shooting of Chief Barrow was entirely unprovoked, and resulted from whisky, Redding being half intoxicated when he shot the officer.

SOCIAL LIFE IN MACON

Macon, Ga., June 21.—(Special Correspondence.)—Characterized by all the beauty of a wedding in June, the month of brides, was the marriage on Wednesday afternoon of Miss Jennie Riley and Mr. James D. Crump. The ceremony was performed by the bride's uncle, Mr. J. R. Solomon, of Atlanta, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Riley. An altar of snowy lilies in a setting of feathery ferns had been arranged in the drawing room, and in front of this stood the young couple, Mr. Riley giving his daughter in marriage. The only attendants were the maid of honor, Miss Julia Riley, and the groom's best man, Mr. Eden Taylor, Jr. The rest of the house was artistically decorated with potted plants and flowers; orchids and pink gladiolia in the dining room, with baskets of lilies of the valley and daisies pendant from the chandelier by bows of pink tulle. The bride's handsome gown of white crepe meteor was elaborately embroidered in crystal and pearls. The tulle veil, held in place by orange blossoms, reached to the end of the long court train. Her bouquet was bride's roses showered with lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore pink charmeuse draped in white embroidered chiffon flowers, pink gladiola. Just before the bridal party entered Miss Louise Juhan sang, delightfully, "Because," and during the ceremony an orchestra played softly, "Sweet Evening Star." A buffet luncheon was served after the marriage, Misses Addie Small and Elizabeth Riley serving punch. After a wedding journey of two weeks Mr. and Mrs. Crump will be at home to their friends at 415 Vineville avenue. Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Miss Margaret Solomon, of Atlanta; Mr. Armand Crump, of Baltimore; Miss Maude Benton, of Monticello, and Mr. Joe Riley, of New York.

Mis Alice Munson leaves today for her home in Richmond, Va., after a two weeks' visit to her father, Mr. J. B. Munson. Every day of her stay was filled with some delightful attention, those of last week being Miss Nona Shaw's sewing party Thursday morning, when Miss Jane McBrier's guest, Miss Helen Fisher, of Pensacola, Fla., shared honors with Miss Munson. Tuesday afternoon Miss Sarah Tinsley entertained Miss Munson and a dozen girls of the younger set at a most enjoyable tea at the Dempsey. Tuesday evening Mrs. T. C. Burke gave Miss Munson a box party at the Grand, followed by a late supper at the Burke residence. Mrs. A. D. Schofield's "The Dansant," at the Dempsey for Miss Munson on Wednesday afternoon was a most delightful affair, combining a little touch of Parisian gayety with the provincial Schofield hospitality. Mrs. Schofield was assisted in receiving her guests by her two charming daughters, Misses Lizzie and Gladys Schofield. The tables on which Le The was served were gay with huge wicker baskets of golden coreopsis. Favors for the young men were rolls of paper ribbon with which they would lasso their partners, and in a short while the dancers were whirling through a giddy maze of rainbow-hued ribbons. Miss Weiss's orchestra furnished splendid dance music, and the occasion will long be remembered by the members of the younger set. Wednesday evening Mrs. S. R. Jaques was hostess at a theater party for Miss Munson, followed by a supper and dance at her home on College street. Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Hillyer gave a dance at the Country club complimentary to Miss Munson.

Among some pleasant entertaining done for Miss Gladys Payne, of Atlanta, who spent last week with Miss Leila Rogers, was Mrs. Marshall Ellis' 5 o'clock tea at the Country club Thursday afternoon, about twenty-five young girls were invited to meet the fair honoree, whose blonde beauty was enhanced by a dainty dress of sheer white marquisette trimmed in shadow lace, with sash of white satin. Mrs. Ellis' becoming gown was of white rattine trimmed in irish lace. Others in the receiving line were Mrs. Felton Hatcher, Mis Leila Rogers and Mrs. Robert H. Plant, Jr. The others present were: Misses Anne Shaw, Ruth Oberry, Sarah Tinsley, Louise Callaway, Mary Willingham, Mary Horne, Mamie Adams, Nona Shaw, Leila Artope, Marie Adams, Joseph'ne Jones, Helen Barnes, Julia Goodwyn, Daisy Wimberly, Elizabeth Solomon, Elinor Solomon, May Burke, Martina Burke, Willie Erminger, Kathleen Harper, Viola Johnston, Winnie May Hill and Adele Snowden.

Some pretty affairs given for Miss Jane McBrier's guest, Miss Helen Fisher, of Pensacola, were Miss Louise Callaway's box party at the Grand Monday afternoon, when Miss Ethel McKay's visitor, Miss Eva Powers, of Rome, was an additional honor guest, a moonlight supper served in the pergola at Mr. and Mrs. James W. Callaway's pretty country place, "Stonedge," Mr. Holt Callaway was "mine host," and the list of guests included Misses Helen Fisher, Jane McBrier, Gladys Schofield and Claribel Glover of Americus, who is the guest of her sister, Mrs. O. J. Massee; Messrs. Horace Wright, Tom Marcy, Hal Williams and Lon Schofield Thursday night a number of young people gave a bandwagon ride to Lakeside park in honor of Miss Fisher. Swimming and boating, with a picnic supper on the moonlit lake were pleasant features of the evening.

Miss Lamar Bacot, of Jackson, Miss., is being delightfully entertained while the guest of Mrs. E. L. Martin. Monday evening Mrs. Douglas Feagin entertained at two tables of bridge complimentary to Miss Bacot. Tuesday evening Mrs. Martin entertained at a supper at the Outing in honor of Miss Bacot. Wednesday evening Miss Rowena Taylor, who is camping out with a party at Lakesid epark, gave an "al fresco" supper for Miss Bacot. Thursday evening Mr. Ben J. Fowler gave a dinner party at the Dempsey in honor of Miss Bacot. Friday afternoon Miss Margaret Crockett and Mr. Roy Crockett gave a picnic supper at Lakeside park for Miss Bacot.

Tomorrow, the Opening Day of the Down-Stairs Section

A SPECIAL FEATURE FOR MONDAY

At $1 A Wonderful Sale of Framed Pictures At $1

Monday morning, with the opening of the Down-Stairs Section, we are going to present for your selection—a solid carload of beautiful pictures—not the kinds one usually finds in special sales, but pictures that possess quality and character, in sizes ranging from 16x20 to 18x40 inches, all framed in imitation Circassian walnut or gilt; oval, oblong and square styles, and with glass, for a single dollar.

In Our Opinion the Most Remarkable Picture Event Ever Announced in Atlanta

In this sale we are going to establish a record, in both volume of business and in value-giving, for the Down-Stairs Section.

1,000 to Select From

The subjects comprise a list that numbers into the hundreds. Such variety as to enable selections of pictures for any room. Carbon prints, beautiful brown sepier studies, copies of the most renowned pictures ever painted by the world's most famous artists, historical scenes that portray the magnificent ruins of Rome; figures; water scenes and landscapes, wonderfully true to nature.

Each picture is packed in a wooden crate, and so will be delivered to you, a fact that is mentioned to emphasize that the pictures are high-grade.

The occasion is a very unusual one, as you will agree when you've seen the real value of the pictures offered at $1.00.

COULD SAVE MANY OF 300,000 BABIES WHO DIE ANNUALLY

It is estimated that 300,000 babies die yearly before they reach the age of 12 months. If it were impossible to prevent these deaths we would have no incentive to try to reduce these numbers. But we are assured by the highest authorities the numbers of these deaths can be greatly reduced by proper care, feeding and sanitation.

Within natural limitations a community can determine its own death rate. These facts having been proved to be true it is time that each individual contribute his share in interest and work in order to make a great reduction in this appalling mortality and to save many of these helpless ones.

Millions of dollars have been given for research work on tuberculosis, pellagra and other diseases that are far less destructive to our population than the preventable diseases of infancy, which are due mainly to lack of training of mothers. While these deaths are due to ignorance and superstition, improper feeding is acknowledged as the chief cause.

It was formerly believed that early deaths of weak children was to be desired, that it saved the community the expense of caring for them through a few more years of suffering with no hope of reaching maturity. We no longer believe in the "survival of the fittest," but we know that the child is our greatest natural asset and that conservation should begin a home.

The country which first recognizes its responsibilities to the child and tries to fulfill these obligations will receive the recognition of the world, on being the greatest civilized nation.

An accurate registration of births and deaths is the essential basis of intelligent effort to conserve infant life—to secure education of all children and to protect their working life and legal rights.

Would Establish an Institute For State's Defective Children

The awakening of men from centuries of neglect to an acknowledgments of even the most elemental of child's rights has been a slow process. A few years ago we protested the dog and the horse from cruelty, but not the child. It has been only in the last ten years that we have come to arraign children, victims of bad environment, in company with the city criminals.

The glaring fault of the state is that it thrusts children of tender years who are mentally irresponsible, into the ordinary reformatory. Not all children who commit crimes are feeble-minded. There are sentimentalists who would have us believe that all child criminals are defectives. These people are going around the land trying to find criminal bumps on criminal children. If a child stole an apple, they, armed with imagination and a pair of calipers, will try to find an apple bump on his head. If he threw a rock at another boy they find a bump of cruelty. They would promptly open up the head of every accused child, straighten out the convolutions in his brain, and return him to his parents with the character of a Washington.

But, approaching the subject from a standpoint of common sense, there are certain well-defined cases of mental deficience that anyone can recognize. In an examination of the inmates of Bedford reformatory for women it was found that 30 per cent were mentally defective, and at the Elmira reformatory 39 per cent were found in the same condition.

If, while the defectives were still children, the causes of their mental defects had been discovered and remedied many might have been saved for useful citizenship. There are excellent school systems in most reformatories, but the abnormal child is unable to make progress in the more rudimentary branches. It would require the constant attention of experts to enable him to learn anything.

Expert Treatment Needed.

What is needed is medical and mental treatment by experts in special institutions. These institutions the Mothers' Congress of Georgia is advocating and working to establish. The bill to be introduced into the legislature this year seeks to establish an institution which will so train these children that they will be enabled to earn their living in some useful occupation.

A great many people are driven into a life of crime by their inability to support themselves by honest efforts. Let us remove this inability by special education and one cause of crime will be eliminated.

We, therfore, appeal to all the mothers of Geogia to aid us in this, our fight, to bring comfort and sustenance to those without our aid are unable to do anything for themselves.

Every mother can assist us in this work by making a special appeal to her representative in behalf of this bill.

MRS. EUGENE M. MITCHELL,
Chairman Defective, Dependent and Delinquent Children.

The Need for Vital Statistics

Georgia has no way of gathering vital statistics. It is impossible to compute the infant death rate because we cannot know the total number of babies born. The children's bureau of Washington is sending out a map showing the states that have adequate laws for vital statistics. Some states have adequate laws, others fairly adequate, but only four shown in black on this map—indicating no laws whatever. These are Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Arkansas.

There is hardly a relation in life from the cradle to the grave in which such a record map has not proven to be of the greatest value to the individual and to the state. Especially is this so in the enforcement of laws relating toeducation, to child labor, as well as to the child in matters in criminal laws; irresponsibility of children under ten for crime and misdemeanor, and the determination of the age of consent.

The children's bureau, recognizing the value and importance of a universal birth registration, has devoted its first monograph to this one vital subject, which is necessary for the study of child welfare.

Uniformity in the birth registration law is one of the essentials, and is absolutely necessary, otherwise it is impossible to secure statistics to compare results from other states.

Under the auspices of the bureau of the census a bill for a "model law" has been provided by a committee of representative men, and includes as prime essentials the date of birth, name, sex, race, birthplace, occupation and color of both parents and the legitimacy or illegitimacy of the child; also provides that reports of local registrars are to be finally received and preserved in the archives of the state health department of each state capitol.

Promptness in reporting cannot be over-emphasized. The notification of births act of England provides for notification within thirty-six hours, and it has been said that no other one expedient has done so much toward lessening infant mortality in England.

A Model Law.

"A bill to provide for the registration of all birth and deaths.

"Section 1—That the state board of health shall have charge of the registration of births and deaths; shall prepare the necessary introductions, forms and blanks for obtaining and preserving such records and shall precure the faithful registration in each primary registration district as certified in section 3 of this act, and in the central bureau of vital statistics at the capitol of the state. The said board shall be charged with uniform and thorough enforcement of the law throughout the state and shall, from time to time, recommend any additional registration that may be necessary for this purpose.

"Section 2.—That the secretary of state board of health shall have general supervision over the central bureau of vital statistics which is hereby authorized to be established by said board and shall be under the immediate direction of the state registrar of vital statistics, whom the state board of health shall appoint within thirty days after the taking effect of this law, and who shall be a medical practitioner of not less than five years' practice in his profession and a competent vital statistician. This method of appointing of local registrars by the state board of health or perhaps by the state registrar with a reasonably long term of service and subject to removal by neglected duty is preferable for efficient service.

"CHILDRENS' BUREAU OF THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND LABOR.

PREVENTING BLINDNESS EDUCATIONAL PROBLEM

It is a known fact that one-fourth of all the blind children in the institutions for the blind, are there from hereditary causes unnecessarily from this affliction—known as ophthalmia of the newborn. It is preventable if precautions are taken at once, curable if skilled medical treatment can be secured quickly.

The official census of the blind for the state of New York in 1906 gives a total of 6,200 blind persons in the state. Of these, the cases of preventable blindness number 1,934, or 32 per cent. of the whole.

We must realize that this is one of the most important problems in public health. If the board of health requires that every birth must be recorded by attending physicians only a strong appreciation on the part of the public can make such effective.

Public opinion must be strong enough to assist in the enforcement of this law before effective registration can be secured. When our parents are educated on lines of general sanitation and right living we are assisting the present generation, but when our boys and girls are taught that utmost care and judgement must be used in building the temple that it may be a fit place for the soul to dwell, we are saving the lives, yet to be born, from the misery of blindness and the ills that would come through ignorance.

Unquestionably it is the duty of parents to instruct their boys and girls concerning the highest and holiest functions of life, or to see that from some source the information is given which will protect them from the dangers which they encounter.

This problem is purely an educational one and must be met through quiet, sane, well-balanced methods by parents, teachers and physicians.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

Sunday, June 22, 1913

A MIDSUMMER AFTERNOON

A charmingly simple frock is illustrated, of white ratine, which seems to be one of the most popular materials for summer. It is daintily frilled at throat and elbows and is brilliantly girdled with plaid silk ribbon. The hat is of net, with a crown of plaited shadow lace. The brim is faced with the lace which is wide enough to turn back over the top of the brim. The green and American beauty colors of the girdle are repeated in the flowers around the crown. With this costume is carried a parasol of white silk with a flowered border in which the same bright colors glow.

Of white nainsook is the little girls' frock, with collar and cuffs of Irish lace over pink. Down the front runs a box plait, with a single row of white pearl buttons and on each side a plaiting of lace. The pink satin girdle ties in the front with a small bunch of daintily colored artificial flowers.

NEWSOME IS FREED OF MURDER CHARGE

Released on Nominal Bond After Coroner's Jury Decides Mrs. Newsome Met Death by Suicide.

Valdosta, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Norris Newsome, the Lowndes county farmer who was yesterday arrested charged with the murder of his wife, was released from jail this afternoon on a nominal bond, following the verdict of the coroner's jury to the effect that Mrs. Newsome had committed suicide.

Accompanied by Drs. Schnauss and Burchett, Coroner Solomon and the members of the jury went out to the scene of the tragedy today and exhumed the body of Mrs. Newsome for the purpose of an examination by the physicians. Dr. Burchett conducted the autopsy and found powder burns the entire distance through the woman's head, showing that the pistol with which she was killed was placed close to the ear, and bearing out the theory of suicide. The bullet was found embedded in the woman's brain.

The coroner's jury, while satisfied, from the evidence adduced, that Mrs. Newsome killed herself, stated in their verdict that the evidence also tended to show that she was impelled to do so by the cruel treatment of her husband.

Much feeling has been engendered as a result of the tragedy between Newsome's family and the Hancock family, of which Mrs. Newsome was a member. Extreme cruelty and threats to kill his wife are charged against Newsome by her relatives.

Mrs. Newsome's death occurred just a week ago. Her young children, playing in the yard, being attracted by a shot in the house, found their mother lying across her bed dead when they went to investigate.

STARVING YOUTH SEEKS SHELTER IN PRISON

Cordele, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Claiming that he walked every step of the way from Dothan, Ala., to Cordele, coming through Fort Valley and Manchester, and that he had not had a mouthful to eat but one time since Monday, Walter Mansill, a youth 17 years old, appeared before Police Sumner today and begged him to lock him in the city jail so that he might get a place to sleep and something to eat. The young man's emaciated appearance bore out his statement and the officer accommodated him. Later he became critically ill and was removed to a sanitarium for treatment.

The youth claims that his father, G. B. Mansill, is engaged in the bakery business at Dothan and that he is quite wealthy. He is rather reticent in discussing the trouble of why he left home. A message reporting his condition has been sent to his father.

SUCCESSFUL REVIVALS HELD IN GAINESVILLE

Gainesville, Ga., June 22.—(Special.) Three hundred and seventy-six were added to four churches in Gainesville in a series of revival services extending through fifty days, or about 20 per cent increase in the membership of these churches, is no less than wonderful progress in the religious and spiritual life of Gainesville. A three weeks' meeting in the First Baptist church resulted in the addition of 174 members to this church. This was followed by a meeting of about the same length in the First Methodist church, with an addition of 142 members, and a meeting of about ten days in St. Paul's Methodist church, with ten new members. The Presbyterian church of Gainesville has held no revival meetings this year, but a number have been added to this church. The Central Baptist church, which holds a revival meeting, as yet to be heard from. The result of this meeting will swell the number of church additions.

Negro Is Killed.

Woodstock, Ga., June 21.—(Special.) Jim McConnell shot and killed George Roberts at Toonian, Ga., late yesterday afternoon with a shot gun. McConnell claims the shooting an accident, but as there was no witness, McConnell was bound over by the coroner's jury. Both are negroes.

Nervous Wrecks from Sore Feet: Gives Cure

The nagging irritation from daily foot torture causes thousands of nervous break-downs. Besides there is the pain, the haggard face and gloomy disposition. Don't waste an hour, here is a treatment that will cure your feet quickly. No matter how many patent medicines you have tried in vain this treatment, used only to doctors, will give prompt results. Dissolve a tablespoonful of Caloxide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet in this for full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts. The effects are marvelous. All pain goes instantly and the feet feel simply delightful. Corns and calluses are loosened right off; bunions, aching feet, sweaty smelling feet, get immediate relief and this aweekend cure for most cases will be a thing of the past. Caloxide works through the pores and removes the cause. Any druggist has it in stock or will quickly get it. A twenty-five cent package is said to be enough to cure the worst feet.

VIEWS OF BANKERS ON CURRENCY REFORM

national bank notes, except when and as they wear out and become unfit to circulate. This condition is inherent in the system and is certainly unsound.

(b) The system lacks cohesiveness, there being no provision for co-operation among the banks in it. Under ordinary conditions this is not so much felt by the banks individually, but under strained financial conditions, when each bank is thrown on its own resources and must fit self-protection act independently of all the others, the lack of a system under which all could co-operate through a common policy of elasticity is felt by each and it becomes evident that what is really lacking is a system.

(c) The requirement that the banks must individually control their own portion of the legal reserve money of the country without being protected with proper provision for protection or replenishment of their legal reserves, is unscientific and economically wasteful.

Unsound System of Reserves.

(d) An unsound system of reserves under which in periods of anxiety it becomes impossible for the mobilization and maintenance of individual reserves for each bank in the national system, but absolutely necessary that each bank, the dissipation and scattering of the great bulk of the reserve money of the country into a large number of small units, thereby greatly and destroying in times of stringency the strength and power which might be exerted by a proper concentration of the reserves for the mutual support of the banks and the common good of the public.

(e) The use of so much of the legal reserve money of the country in actual circulation for ordinary business purposes, thereby greatly increasing the possibility of a suspension.

(f) The use of so much of the legal reserve money of the country in actual circulation for ordinary business purposes, thereby greatly increasing the possibility of a suspension.

Answer.—Regarding an elastic currency as a vital necessity in connection with the banking system, we believe that such a currency should be authorized by law. The amount of it should be controlled by the regulation of other bank; the dissipation and scattering of the great bulk of the reserve money of the country into a large number of small units, thereby greatly and destroying in times of stringency the strength and power which might be exerted by a proper concentration of the reserves for the mutual support of the banks and the common good of the public.

(g) The restriction of the use by the banks of their legal reserves and the prohibition of the use of such money in the presence of unusual demands upon them, without means of protecting their reserves and the use of satisfactory substitute therefor, or of replenishing them through adequate rediscounting facilities, which would enable them to convert their assets into cash or cash equivalents.

(h) The lack of provision for the organization of American banking institutions in foreign countries, which are necessary for the development of our foreign trade.

(i) The independent treasury system, under which the government acts as partial custodian of its own funds, resulting in irregular withdrawals of money from the bank reserves and from circulation and materially interfering with the even tenor of general business.

(j) No open market for commercial paper; banks of sufficient capital should be allowed to accept drafts, for a commission, with or without the sale of the acceptance in the open market, thereby establishing a current market for commercial paper, thus enabling banks to buy it whenever they have an overplus of funds, or sell in this market, whenever they wish to strengthen their position or meet demands against them, or accept such funds for the use of their regular clientele.

Advantages of the System.

2. Enumerate concisely its advantages and disadvantages.

Answer.—(a) One advantage of our banking system is that it enables each community to organize and control its own banking facilities.

(b) It has for half a century provided the government with a market for its bonds. This was a great advantage to the government, and while the banking system was inaugurated and it has since been taken advantage of by the government to reduce the rate of interest on its bonds. On some issues of its two per cent bonds it has obtained a premium, notwithstanding the fact the government's artificial market their investment value would be about thirty per cent below par.

(c) Another advantage of no small importance in view of the conditions of the bank note circulation of the state banks at the time the bank act was enacted is that it provided for a bank note circulation of uniform value, which, in spite of its defects, is of undoubted strength and elasticity.

Its disadvantages are covered in the list of its defects. It might, however, be stated as an offset to the advantages recited in "b" and "c" that the artificial market maintained for government bonds has been so maintained at the expense of the banking resources and commercial growth of the country, both of which have been seriously retarded by the costly political party funds for which the defects of the banking and currency system are principally responsible.

Purposes of Improved System.

3. What are the chief purposes to be attained in an improved system?

Answer. The chief purposes to be attained in an improved system are the correction of the defects of our present system so that it will be placed on a sound and scientific basis and made to respond adequately to the varying requirements of the public in conducting the trade and commerce of the country.

4. Should national banks continue to have a bond-secured currency?

Answer. No. In the use of government bonds as security for circulation, the volume of currency, instead of fluctuating with the varying requirements of trade, is limited by the volume of bonds and fluctuates according to their market prices.

These prices are determined, not by the general investment value of the bonds, but by the profit possible to banks in using them as security for circulating notes, resulting in artificial stimulation of government bond prices. One unfortunate consequence of this artificial condition is that the nation's bonds, which should be widely held by its citizens as their choicest investment, are held almost exclusively by banks to secure circulation or government deposits.

5. Should the present requirements of reserves for national banks be reduced, increased or otherwise modified?

Answer.—Whether the present requirements of reserves for national banks should be reduced, increased or otherwise modified depends upon how they are to be controlled and protected. If under a centralized system of control they are to be economically protected by a satisfactory note issue based on an adequate gold reserve and liquid bank assets for use by the banks in meeting, in place of reserve money, so that the currency use in commerce of legal tender money would be largely reduced, and, if under such conditions legal reserve money could be made available to the banks when and as required through proper rediscounting facilities, we believe some modification of the present requirements might safely be made.

Unsound Currency.

6. Should an elastic currency be authorized by law? If so, should it be limited, and on what amount?

Answer.—Regarding an elastic currency as a vital necessity in connection with the banking system, we believe that such a currency should be authorized by law. The amount of it should be controlled by the regulation of other bank reserve requirements against it. Such gold reserve should be ample, not less than 50 per cent, with a minimum of 40 per cent. Additional tax might be levied upon any deficiency of the reserve below the stipulated amount of 50 per cent, increasing as the deficiency increases. Such provision would, in our opinion, prevent any overexpansion of the currency.

7. Should such currency be the notes of the individual banks, or of a number of them, or should it be issued by a number of regional reserve associations, or of the United States treasury?

Answer.—Issued by a central reserve association. Good results may be accomplished by a number of regional reserve associations, if the limitations of their issues were properly placed under central joint control of the government and the banks. Preferable to issues of currency issued by the United States treasury, if the law providing the same were properly drawn; but would seem difficult, if not impossible, to provide for its proper expansion and contraction in accordance with the demands of trade. The experience of the world is that it is better for a government to provide for such currency indirectly, through some privately managed corporation under strict governmental supervision, rather than put the credit of the government and its name with every note placed in circulation. Troublesome times come to every community, and every country, when it is better to have the credit of the bank called in question than the credit of the government itself.

How Notes, should Be Issued.

8. Should these notes be procured from the treasury on pledge of security, and if so, of what security, and how procured? Should these notes be a first lien of the government upon the assets of the association or bank to which issued?

Answer. If the notes are to be issued by a central reserve association, or by regional reserve associations, in which the bulk of the gold reserve and liquid bank assets belonging to and in possession of these associations, there would be no reason why they should be procured from the treasury on a pledge of security. They should be made a first lien not upon the assets of the association, but of the holders of the notes upon the assets of the association which issues them, but not, under ordinary conditions, be issued, which will in all cases give value received for them.

9. Should all currency be based upon gold? If so, how ought it to be issued and what per cent of gold reserves should be required?

Answer. Reserve money should preferably be gold, but the proportion of greenbacks and silver now included in our gold reserve, and also that of the amounts thereof are not increased, is of diminishing importance and if continued as eligible for reserve, will not cause embarrassment. The percentage of reserve money against deposits, whether in the form of deposits subject to check or in the form of circulating notes, should be left to the discretion of the management of the central or regional reserve associations, but if a restriction is imposed it should be in the form of a tax upon the deficiency in reserves when below 50 per cent.

10. If notes are issued to or by an association, what should be the limit in amount of the notes issued to each association, and should this limit be based on its capital stock and surplus?

Answer. As already stated, notes should be issued preferably by one association, or possibly several regional associations, and their issue should be regulated by the amount of gold reserve such association or associations can command and hold in readiness for their redemption. The business needs for circulation will thus be supplied within the limits of the reserve held by the association or associations responsible for their redemption, and they will automatically respond in volume to the existing demand for currency. Such notes or associations issuing them will be able to check any undue increase in the issue of them by raising the rate. As its investment value would be about thirty per cent below par.

Another advantage of no small importance in view of the conditions of the bank note circulation of the state banks at the time the bank act was enacted is that it provided for a bank note circulation of uniform value, which, in spite of its defects, is of undoubted strength and elasticity.

Its disadvantages are covered in the list of its defects. If the notes are to be issued by a central reserve association, or by regional reserve associations, in which the bulk of the gold reserve and liquid bank assets belonging to and in possession of these associations, there would be no reason why they should be procured from the treasury on a pledge of security. They should be made a first lien not upon the assets of the association, but of the holders of the notes upon the assets of the association which issues them, but not, under ordinary conditions, be issued, which will in all cases give value received for them.

9. Should all currency be based upon gold? If so, how ought it to be issued and what per cent of gold reserves should be required?

Answer. Reserve money should preferably be gold, but the proportion of greenbacks and silver now included in our gold reserve, and also that of the amounts thereof are not increased, is of diminishing importance and if continued as eligible for reserve, will not cause embarrassment. The percentage of reserve money against deposits, whether in the form of deposits subject to check or in the form of circulating notes, should be left to the discretion of the management of the central or regional reserve associations, but if a restriction is imposed it should be in the form of a tax upon the deficiency in reserves when below 50 per cent.

10. If notes are issued to or by an association, what should be the limit in amount of the notes issued to each association, and should this limit be based on its capital stock and surplus?

Answer. As already stated, notes should be issued preferably by one association, or possibly several regional associations, and their issue should be regulated by the amount of gold reserve such association or associations can command and hold in readiness for their redemption. The business needs for circulation will thus be supplied within the limits of the reserve held by the association or associations responsible for their redemption, and they will automatically respond in volume to the existing demand for currency. Such notes or associations issuing them will be able to check any undue increase in the issue of them by raising the rate. As its investment value would be about thirty per cent below par.

11. What device should be provided to form a settlement of this currency in whole or in part when the legitimate demands of trade subside?

Answer. No device should be provided to enforce the retirement of such a currency when the legitimate demands of trade subside. The volume will automatically adjust itself to the demands of trade.

12. If a tax on this currency payable to the government is provided, should it be graduated so as to increase with the volume of currency issued by the reserve association, or graduated to increase as the length of time it is outstanding?

Answer. A tax upon the deficiency in reserves which automatically increasing as the deficiency increases removes all necessity or reason to tax notes, either in proportion to volume or to length of time outstanding. The tax might be regulated so as to become prohibitive before the reserve could fall to what might be regarded as the danger point.

Central Reserve or Regional Reserves.

13. Should there be a central reserve association with branches, or a number of reserve associations with or without central control? If a number of reserve associations under central control, should each be wholly controlled by the central association, or wholly by the government, or by giving both representation?

Answer. In our opinion one central reserve association with branches would best serve our present necessities. Failing that, a small number of regional reserve associations, also with branches, might be organized to this purpose. The smaller the number of regional reserve associations, however, the more effective the reserve control. If there are to be a number of regional reserve associations, they should be under some kind of central control in which both the government and the various associations should have representation.

Three objections to the regional reserve associations occur to us: First, they will divide the cash reserves of the country into as many different ownerships as there are regional associations. Individual bank can now strengthen its cash reserve without at the same time and to the same extent depleting the reserve of some other bank, so with the regional reserve associations, no one of them will be able to strengthen its cash reserves without drawing it from and reducing to the same extent the reserve of one of the other associations.

Second, connection with the shipping of reserve money from one section of the country to another; under one central reserve association branches this could be accomplished without a change of ownership or the money shipped, as it would belong to the one institution, irrespective of what branch had custody of it. In the case of independent regional reserve associations no such transfer of reserve funds could be made from one region to another without a change in ownership. It would increase the reserves of the associations in any region it and deplete by a similar amount the reserve of the association that ships it.

In times of financial stress when each of the regional reserve associations would be husbanding its resources for the benefit of its own constituents this might work a serious and awkward situation, the interests of the various sections of the country being of vital importance. Such effect will be intensified in direct proportion to the number of regional reserve associations.

Third, Under one ownership and control of the reserve, transfers of funds could, under normal conditions, be accomplished by book entries rather than by the shipping of money.

Geographical Limits of Reserve Body.

14. Should such reserve associations have a geographical limit within which to exercise the functions of a reserve bank in such territory exclusively, or should other banks of any reserve associations be permitted to exercise a choice as to which of the nearby or contiguous reserve associations they should join without regard to fixed territory?

Answer. If in counting their legal reserves balances the banks are to be restricted to their deposits with the regional reserve associations it must be remembered that no legal enactment can change the course of trade by means of them find for keeping deposit accounts for exchange and collection purposes with the centers which the business centers of the country. If they are to be compelled to maintain their legal reserve balances with the regional reserve associations they are to lose the privilege they now have of including their balances with correspondents in principal financial centers as part of their legal reserves they must continue to carry such balances for exchange purposes, even if they were not counted as part of the legal reserves which will materially encroach upon their lending power. This objection is discussed in our answer to question 14.

13. Should such reserve associations have state banks and trust companies among their members? If so, what requirements should be made as to such state banks and trust companies?

Answer.—State banks and trust companies should be included with the national banks. They should be under the same requirements as to capital, surplus and examination.

16. Approximately, how many regional reserve associations should there be, and what system is adopted? What, if any, should be the minimum capital stock, and what amount of stock should each member bank hold?

Answer. As already indicated, it is our opinion that the smaller the number of regional reserve associations the better. All these be able to command and hold gold and thus to protect the lawful reserves of the banks of the country. We would prefer to have only one association with branches, but if such centralized control of the gold reserve of the country is not acceptable, then we are of the opinion that the number be limited as much as possible. Each regional reserve association could have as many branches as may be necessary in its region. If limited in number the capital supplied by the constituent banks connected with each regional reserve association by contributing 10 per cent of their present capital would be adequate for the use of the regional reserve association. If, on the other hand, there should be a larger number of regional reserve associations, the capital stock required by each would have to be considered and determined from the standpoint of the aggregate amount of capital of the banks in each district. The participating banks would have to contribute their pro rata share of such amount of capital as may be deemed necessary, which would differ in different localities.

Directors of Reserve Body.

17. How should the directors of a regional reserve association be elected? How should be their number, powers and term of office?

Answer. The number of directors of regional reserve associations might properly be fixed at nine, six of whom should be elected by the member banks, of whom three should be bankers, and three should fairly represent the agricultural, commercial, industrial and other interests of the section in which the regional reserve association is located and should not be officers, nor, while serving, directors of banks, trust companies or other financial institutions. The remaining three should be appointed by the president of the United States, and the powers of the directors should be practically those of national bank directors. They should have authority to make rules for the use of the association, elect its officers and supervise and direct them in the conduct of its business. Directors should be elected for three years, but the terms of those first chosen should be so arranged that the term of one member of each of the three classes will expire each year.

18. What should be the general nature of the business of such an association?

Answer. Regional reserve associations should act as the principal fiscal agents of the United States for the region in which they are located; buy and sell United States and other government and state bonds; receive deposits from the government and member banks; discount for its members; buy and sell exchange here and abroad; buy and sell gold coin and gold and silver bullion; have similar dealings with other regional reserve associations and any other transactions with them which would insure fullest co-operation for efficiently serving the business interests of the country.

19. Should it accept any deposits other than those of banks and should it be allowed to pay interest on deposits?

Answer. They should not accept any deposits other than those of the government and of the participating banks and they should not pay interest on deposits.

Rediscounting Commercial Paper.

20. Should it discount double-name commercial paper for its member banks on equal terms to all, and should its discount rate be public, subject to change weekly?

Answer. They should rediscount for and with the consent of any bank having a deposit with them, commercial paper of short maturity and bills of exchange arising out of commercial transactions. The discount rate, which each regional reserve association should have power to fix for itself, should be equal to all participating banks in the region, should be made public and should be subject to change when in the opinion of the directors a change is desirable.

21. Should it loan directly to member banks with or without collateral security, and should the rate of interest be equal to all, public, and subject to change weekly?

Answer. Regional reserve associations should be permitted to loan directly to member banks against satisfactory collateral security, when one of the representation of the directors of the regional reserve association the central board of control, referred to in our answer to question 24, is satisfied that the public interests so require and gives its consent thereto.

22. Should reserve associations be permitted to deal with or deal in the purchase and sale of commercial paper, exchange, securities and gold?

Answer.—No.

23. Should government deposits be withdrawn from banks and placed with reserve associations, and if so, how should they be apportioned and at what rate of interest, if any, should be paid? Within what time could this safely be done?

Answer. Government deposits should be withdrawn from the banks gradually, over a period of not less than two years, and placed with the regional reserve associations, except in such localities where it is necessary for the government to have its accounts for its own convenience. The apportionment among the regional reserve associations should be a matter of convenience to the government, but as much as possible they should be divided in proportion to the capital of the different associations.

Deposits secured by 2 per cent bonds should not be withdrawn except as the bonds are called by the banks, sold or refunded into bonds bearing such a rate of interest as will make the same worth par without the circulation privilege.

Reserves of National Banks.

24. Should every national bank be required to keep its reserve with the association in its city in which located, such as it keeps in its own vaults, or should it be permitted to keep any certain per cent of reserves with other reserve associations? If so, how much?

Answer. In connection with this question as to whether national banks should be required to keep all their reserves with the regional reserve associations or permitted to keep a certain percentage of them with other regional reserve associations, the question arises as to the banks' right to keep their active checking accounts for exchange and collection purposes with the correspondent banks in the financial centers of the country. If each regional reserve association is to handle the exchange and collection accounts of its member banks then the further question arises whether the regional reserve associations also handle such accounts of the banks outside of the reserve cities. Should, for instance, the regional reserve association located in the city of New York undertake to handle the exchange accounts of banks all over the country that need New York accounts, and if so, should such banks be permitted to count the balances in the New York regional reserve association as a part of their reserves? In our opinion, the regional reserve associations should not be satisfactorily organized so as to handle economically the enormous amount of work entailed by the keeping of such accounts, and are therefore of opinion that the reserves of the banks kept with the regional reserve associations should be confined to their balances, kept with the regional reserve association in which they are shareholders. The banks in the financial and commercial reserve cities now acting as reserve agents should be permitted to continue to so act. The reserves of banks outside of the reserve cities should be divided equally into three allotments, one-third to be kept in their vaults, one-third in the city's bank with which the regional reserve association in their own district and one-third on deposit with the regional reserve agents in reserve or central cities, the same division of reserves might be applicable to the banks in the reserve cities and the other half on deposit with the regional reserve association, which of course would be located in the reserve cities. The exchange balances maintained with correspondent banks are the basis of credit as well as other valuable banking privileges extended to the banks maintaining such balances. Being legal reserves, the balances are upon which to base credit, the amount of daily turnover increasing or diminishing the same, as the case may be, in order that the daily business handled and their exchanges paid and establish a basis of credit, the interior banks must maintain active accounts with the reserve cities centers. It follows that if such balances may not count as reserve and funds must be deposited against with regional reserve association, it will materially curtail the loaning power of the country banks and their power to serve the public. The requirement imposes the heaviest burden upon the banks of the interior which will be the means of carrying with their active correspondents and regional reserve associations combined, much longer balances than now.

Reserve Against Deposits.

25. Should a reserve association be required to maintain a reserve against its deposits, and, if so, in what amount, and should it consist of gold or lawful money?

Answer—Regional reserve associations should be required to maintain a reserve against deposits to the same extent required against their note issues with the same penal tax on any deficiency in the required amount of it. The reserve should consist principally of gold, but if the government greenbacks, treasury notes and silver certificates are to continue in use and are not to be increased, there seems no good reason why they should not continue to be counted as legal reserve for the regional reserve associations as well as for the banks. The silver certificates and treasury notes should continue to furnish the small bills for circulation, and the government being responsible for their redemption should furnish a reasonable gold reserve against them.

26. Should the liability of each member bank in a reserve association be limited to its stock subscription? If not, what should be the liability?

Answer.—The principle of double liability of stockholders should apply to the regional reserve associations as it now applies to the banks.

27. Should a reserve association keep transactions with banks other than its own members, and, if so, what character of transactions should be permissible?

Answer—The regional reserve associations should have no transactions with banks other than their own members, except that they should be authorized to maintain accounts and have transactions with selected banks in the financial centers of the principal foreign countries, and to buy and sell exchange and prime acceptances in the open market.

Loan of Bank Credit.

28. Should national banks be permitted, upon payment of a commission, to loan their credit by accepting bills arising out of the ordinary course of commerce, and should reserve associations be permitted to deal in these acceptances in transactions with banks or other reserve associations?

Answer—The accepting of bills arising out of the ordinary course of commerce by the banks should not be confined to national banks as such, but to all banks having a capital of $1,000,000 or over, and members members of reserve associations; and regional reserve associations should be permitted to deal in such acceptances in their transactions with banks or with other regional reserve associations, or in the open market.

29. Should there be a limit within banks should be permitted to give acceptances? If so, what limit?

Answer—Banks having less than $1,000,000 capital should not be permitted to accept, and accepting banks should be limited in their acceptances outstanding at any one time to an amount equal to their paid-up capital, subject to the statutory limitations as to the amount on which they may be made to any one individual firm or corporation.

30. What dividends should reserve associations be permitted to pay their member banks?

Answer—Regional reserve associations should be permitted to pay their member banks out of earnings, dividends of 6 per cent per annum.

31. Should any share of the profits of a reserve association be distributed to the member banks in proportion to the average deposit maintained by them during the year?

Answer—We do not deem it advisable that any share of the profits of the regional reserve association should be distributed to the member banks in proportion to the average deposit maintained by them during the year. This would be equivalent to the payment of interest on balances by the regional reserve associations, which we think should not be permitted.

32. Are you familiar with the recommendations of the National Monetary commission, submitted to congress in January, 1912 and are on record as having endorsed and recommended that measure.

To Mobilize Banking Reserves.

33. Os one of several plans suggested to mobilize the banking reserves and provide elastic currency, i. has been suggested that the treasury department establish a division to be called a "Federal Reserve Division," which should conduct reserve agencies in each reserve city to exercise the functions of the proposed reserve banks; receive deposits from member banks to the extent of 10 per cent of their capital and surplus; pay 5 per cent interest to the banks upon such capital; without permitting the banks to manage the reserve agencies directly or indirectly; that such reserve agencies should discount short-term prime commercial papers and furnish treasury note currency when needed, to member banks under reasonable safeguards to prevent inflation, thereby mobilizing the reserves and furnishing elastic currency directly to the qualified banks. This suggestion carries with it a more thorough examination of the national banks and makes the indebtedness of the government by such banks a first lien on the assets of the banks. What do you think of such a suggestion?

Answer—It is possible for the treasury department to furnish the country with a safe currency. It would be very difficult, if not impossible, to make that currency elastic in the sense of contracting and expanding according to the needs of the public. The experience of commercial nations is that results can be better accomplished by the creation of a privately owned central organization dominated and controlled by the government, as for instance, the Imperial Bank of Germany, or the Bank of France. It serves to take the matter out of politics.

Politics Feared.

The great danger is that borrowers go direct to the treasury, politics would become an all important and dominating influence. Our government experienced great difficulty in retiring the greenbacks in gold as presented at a recent period, although their total amounted to less than $350,000,000. Four bond issues during one administration became necessary to obtain gold for that purpose. If the amount of treasury notes outstanding were to run into multiples of seven or eight the responsibility resting upon the government would be still greater. With an overflowing treasury and ample gold on hand safety would be felt, and little difficulty would be experienced in meeting such obligations, but we know from the past that we are bound to have times in the future when the treasury will not be overflowing and the gold reserve will be encroached upon and the credit of the government would then be unnecessarily brought in issue. We cannot afford to risk the credit of the country other than that of the government under which we live, and it is for the interest of all to accept the best credit available under the circumstances. Our own experience for the last fifty years, in fact ever since the creation of the greenback issue, as well as the experience of other nations, militates against this general proposition. The policy of the government should be to protect itself against maturing liabilities by making its future obligations payable on or after a fixed date. It is plain for the proposal that it should assume not only large demand liabilities or note issues, but also enormous demand liabilities in the form of bank reserve deposits would be a radical and dangerous reversal of its policy.

FREIGHT RATE PROBE BY THE COMMISSION

Washington, June 21.—An inquiry will be made by the interstate commerce commission, on its own initiative, into the freight rates of railroads east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers for permission of higher freight rates, both class and commodity.

Early today an order was issued by the comission denying the application of the fifty-six states lines to reopen the old advance rate case No. 3,400, which was a proceeding looking to the increase of class freight rates. Coincidentally, the commission issued a second order instituting on its own motion an investigation of the proposal of the roads to increase all freight rates, both class and commodity. Late this afternoon, after a conference, the commission issued a third order rescinding its order of investigation and announcing that a substitute would be issued later.

The last order created quite a conjecture among those interested, as it was accompanied by no explanation. It was said lated by railroad officials that the form of the order of investigation was not satisfactory, and would be changed, in the form coming order, in phraseology rather than in principle.

GUARANTEE TRUST OFFICERS ATTACKED

Samuel E. Smith, W. A. Sims and Henry S. Miles Are Accused of Fraud.

In an amended bill filed yesterday morning by the stock and bond holders of the Guarantee Trust & Banking Co., Samuel E. Smith, W. A. Sims and Henry S. Miles, all of whom are officials of the concern, were named personally and were accused of attempting to divert the company's funds to their private use.

The company was ordered placed in the hands of Receiver J. D. Robinson by Judge J. T. Pendleton during the past week and then the judge granted a 20-day supersedeas in order that the defendant company might appeal to the supreme court. At present the affairs are in statu quo until the action of the higher court.

The bill submitted before the court Saturday accuses the officers of fraud in the transfer of the stock of the former company and also in allowing misrepresentation to be made use of in the sale of stocks and bonds of the present company.

Samuel E. Smith and Henry S. Miles are both accused of fraud in the transfer of the old concern, while it is stated that W. A. Sims has only been with the Guarantee Trust & Banking company for two years, or since five years after the transfer, and thus had nothing to do with the latter.

Napier, Wright and Wood, attorneys for the defendants, issued the following statement Saturday afternoon:

"In the matter of the suit of Delaney and others against the Guarantee Trust & Banking company, there seems to be an impression on the part of some of the public that a receiver is in charge of the affairs of the company. Such impression is erroneous. Judge Pendleton appointed a receiver as has been stated in the last day or two, but at the same time superseded the order making such appointment in order that the matter might be passed on by a higher court.

"The affairs of the company are still in its hands under certain limitations imposed by Judge Pendleton's order, and the case is in course of preparation for being taken to the supreme court."

STRIKE AT BIRMINGHAM NOT VERY EFFECTIVE

Birmingham, Ala., June 21.—The strike order issued by the local association of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees going into effect at midnight last night has not been very effective as yet, normal service being given during this morning on every line of the Birmingham Railway, Light and Power company. With the exception of half a dozen motor cars, a few trailers and an express car or two the usual service was reported officially at 9 o'clock this morning.

A large majority of the men on strike are men who were discharged during the last three weeks for manifesting interest in the union. At union headquarters it was announced that many employees of the street railway company were joining the ranks.

William F. Welch, of Wheeling, W. Va., vice president and organizer of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees is in charge of the strike of car men here. The strike was ordered for the alleged reason that the company rejected demands of the local union to the effect that the union be recognized, discharged men be reinstated and all questions in the future be arbitrated.

OWLS BALL WILL HELP DAVE YANCEY'S FAMILY

Tickets are selling rapidly to the ball to be given next Friday night at the Owls club for the benefit of the fund for the family of Deputy Dave Yancey, who was hacked to death while trying to arrest a negro thief last Monday.

Enough money has now been raised by public subscription to clear off the $900 debt on the little home on the Jonesboro road which Yancey was trying to pay for at the time of his death. The desire of those connected with the affair is to raise enough money additionally to give the widow and six children something upon which to start, and now that the oldest daughter, Lola, aged 16, has had to be taken back to a sanitarium, additional burdens have been placed upon the family.

By the benefit ball to be given at the Owls club it is hoped to raise something like $300. The tickets are being sold by numbers of the members for 25 cents each and ladies will be admitted free to the entertainment. The idea is being carried out by Deputies H. E. Latham and N. A. Garner and Dan L. Goodlin, Jr., a clerk in the solicitor's office, all of whom were associated with Yancey during his life time.

BARACCA-PHILATHEA MEETS IN NASHVILLE

Nashville, Tenn., June 21.—The seventeenth annual convention of the World Wide Baracca-Philathea Union was opened here tonight at the state capitol. Twelve hundred young people, representing many states, Canada and Mexico are in attendance.

Macon, Ga., and Waco, Texas, are seeking the 1914 meeting and especially large delegations are here from these places.

The visitors were welcomed by representatives of the churches and civic organizations, the state and local Baraccas and Philathea unions in the hall that has heard the messages of all Tennessee's governors since Andrew Johnson. Responses were made by President Marshall A. Hudson, Syracuse, N. Y., and others.

The convention continues through Wednesday with pleasure trips to the Hermitage and Mammoth Cave for diversions.

The Baracca-Philathea movement embraces 500,000 Baraccas (youths) and 300,000 Philatheas (girls) enrolled in 5,000 Sunday school classes. The junior work will be especially emphasized here.

SEWANEE WAS BLOCKED BY CARNEGIE'S GIFT

Nashville, Tenn., June 21.—News that the Carnegie gift to Vanderbilt university's medical department, vetoed yesterday by the College of Methodist Bishops, operated to prevent the establishment of a medical college here by the University of the South, as had been planned, has reached here from Sewanee in the form of resolutions adopted by the board of regents, declaring that the Carnegie gift gave the Vanderbilt school supreme control of medical education in Nashville, and made it impossible for the Sewanee institution to conduct such a school here as contemplated. The board of regents disclaims connection with adverse criticisms of the Vanderbilt board of trust in connection with Carnegie's gift.

New Danish Cabinet.

Copenhagen, Denmark, June 21.—The new Danish cabinet was formed today by C. Th. Zahle, a former premier and the leader of the radical party.

YOUNG PEOPLE ENLIST IN VACATION SCHOOLS

Interdenominational Movement Opens Second Year on June 30 With Eight Schools.

With eight daily vacation schools scattered over Atlanta, in which over 2,000 children will be engaged in manual training, athletic, music and Bible study, the second year of this interdenominational movement will open on Monday, June 30.

Beginning with four schools last year, the work has been doubled to eight schools, five of them being for white children and three for negroes. It is in charge of a committee of ministers from different denominations, composed of Drs. John E. White, W. C. Schaeffer, C. B. Wilmer, Dunbar H. Ogden, W. P. Lovejoy, L. O. Bricker, Richard C. Flinn and C. O. Jones. The work is under the direct supervision of Rev. G. R. Buford, superintendent of the vacation schools.

A number of young people of Atlanta with college training have been secured to assist in teaching in the schools, the faculties as announced for the five white schools being as follows:

Second Baptist: G. R. Buford, leader; Miss Florence Smith, Miss Beulah Kendrick, Miss Belle Cooper, Miss Eva Bridwell and Miss Fannie Henley.

Fulton Mills (Wesley House): Miss Mary Moore, leader; Miss Lillian Johnson, Miss Grace Sands, Miss Marion Moore, Miss Mary Burruss.

Barnett Mission: Robert Woodson, leader; Mrs. Woodson, Miss Wilkinson, Miss Grace Coffin.

The three colored schools are located at the West Side oliver church, St. Luke's Parish Training school and the Fraser Street mission. The daily program to be followed in all the schools is as follows:

9:30-9:40—Opening exercises; hymn; prayer; scripture reading; hymn.

9:40-10:30—Music, calesthenics, Bible lesson.

10:30-11:30—Manual section: Basketry, sewing; hammock making; closing exercises, salute to the flag; child's benediction.

PRESIDENT POINCARE TO VISIT ENGLAND

Paris, June 22.—President Poincare will leave Cherbourg at daybreak on Tuesday on his way to London to visit King George. The president will travel on the battleship Courbet, escorted by three cruisers. M. Poincare and the members of his suite each go prepared for many state ceremonies—that is to say they carry a liberal supply of black and pink silk stockings.

Now, doubtless many Americans will say: "Pink silk stockings! Surely the French president is not going to appear in pink stockings!" Why, no. He is just going to court—the English court.

As is customary on the occasion of such visits, the British embassy provided the president's chambermaid with a list of the St. James' palace regulations. And these specified double silk stockings. It seems that English calves are rather too florid for the thin black silk and thoughtful Queen Mary decreed that her courtiers shall all don pink silk hose beneath the black silk ones. The first thing Ambassador Paul Cambon probably told by his intelligent secretary was, no doubt, "be sure and don't forget your pink silk stockings."

"They are a curious people, the English," says M. Henri, the president's valet. "Ah, it must be that ros-bif!" Possibly—or the unlovely English climate.

UNIFORM GRADING FOR COTTON SEED OIL

Chicago, June 21.—A uniform system of grading cotton seed oil is being sought by the government bureau of standards, according to J. G. Priest, of the bureau, who addressed the convention of the Society of Cotton Products Analysts here today.

At present cotton seed oil is graded according to its color by matching it with pieces of colored glass. This method is regarded as unsatisfactory because the coloring of the glass varies.

About seventy-five members of the society from all parts of the south attended the meeting.

SOUTH AMERICA BUYS FROM UNITED STATES

Washington, June 21.—South America has been increasing its machinery purchases from the United States more rapidly during the last few years than any other part of the world, as shown by figures prepared by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. The increase has amounted during the last decade to 440 per cent, whereas the entire world growth of machinery export has been only 173 per cent. The machinery shipped from America in 1902 amounted to only $5,000,000. Last year it had jumped to $27,000,000.

STUDENTS IN INDIA ARRESTED FOR PLOT

London, June 22.—Charged with complicity in a plot aimed at King George, thirty leading Babu students are on trial at Barisal, India, and the case is attracting widespread attention throughout the British empire. The situation in and around Bengal seems to be growing desperate.

It is alleged that an association of Babu students is seeking to foment another Sepoy mutiny, and that as a part of these rebellious plans an attempt was to be made upon the life of the king. If the men now on trial are found guilty, the Indian government proposes to make their punishment such as to strike terror into the hearts of other conspirators. Some go so far as to say that the penalty of blowing from the mouth of the cannon should be revived as the only way to teaching the Hindu to be loyal to England.

Petitions in Bankruptcy.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 21.—Two petitions in involuntary bankruptcy were filed in the federal court in this city against the Dayton Coal and Iron company, of Dayton, Tenn. Three creditors are signers of the first petition, with claims aggregating over $4,000. There are four signers to the second, which involves only a small sum.

If you have had no business with us and would prefer to select in the privacy of your home, make yourself known to us through reference to several business men or your banker, and we will send the diamonds directly to you.

When you have made your selection you can pay all cash at our fixed plain-figure prices, or take advantage of our deferred payment plan, wherein you can pay one-fifth down and divide balance into notes bearing 4½ per cent average interest and distributed over as much as ten months.

References are not only a business caution, but a business courtesy, and we do not have to add a profit to cover bad accounts; and your references, if used at all, are used only through commercial agencies, and no one is ever aware that you even contemplate a purchase.

For obvious reasons every sale is a matter of confidence, and our customer's business is sacredly received.

We prepay express charges not to create an obligation, but appreciating the privilege of showing our diamonds and because our selection packages result in sales, and the express charges will be less than the time we might otherwise consume in showing goods.

Our Diamond Books, Set No. 7, fully sets forth our plan, cash return guarantee and exchange values. We would like to send it to you.

IN ATLANTA'S SOCIAL REALM NEWS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Conducted By ISMA DOOLY

Engagements Announced

ELDER—WALKER.

Mr. M. O. Elder, of Blakely, announces the engagement of his daughter, Allie, to Mr. A. L. Walker, of Columbia, Tenn., the wedding to take place in the near future. Miss Elder, though a native of Blakely, Ga., where she is widely known and popular, has resided in Atlanta for several years, where she has many friends. She is pretty, bright and charming, and her character strong and womanly. Mr. Walker is a member of the hardware firm of Porter, Halan & Walker, of Columbia, Tenn., and he has many friends in both business and social circles.

MURPHY—MINTON.

Mr. and Mrs. James William Murphy, of Baltimore, formerly of Atlanta, announce the engagement of their daughter, Nellie Marie, to Mr. Charles Aloysius Minton, the wedding to take place at St. Martin's Catholic church at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening, July 8.

HARRISON—M'DONALD.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Harrison, of Columbus, Ga., announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Fanny Parham, to Mr. C. L. McDonald, of Atlanta, the wedding to occur July 17, at the home of the bride's parents.

JONES—THOMAS.

Mrs. William Everett Jones, of Waynesboro, Ga., announces the engagement of her daughter, Inez Wilkins, to Mr. Hill Garnett Thomas, the marriage to take place at the home of the bride's mother, Treutlen Hall, Thursday evening, November 20.

JETTE—BUTLER.

The engagement of Miss Josephine L. Jette, of Savannah, to Mr. E. George Butler, of the same city, has just been announced. Their engagement became generally known only Friday, and the marriage will take place, it is understood, at the Sacred Heart church, Saturday morning, June 28, at a nuptial mass.

FOSTER—SPEIGHT.

Mrs. Laura Ernest Foster announces the engagement of her daughter, Julia Silleen Ernest, to Mr. Frank Y. Speight, of Thomasville, Ga., the marriage to take place in July. No cards.

TURPIN—BENHAM.

Mrs. P. B. Turpin announces the engagement of her daughter, Mary Frances, to Mr. Edward William Benham, the wedding to occur July 1. No cards.

Charming Young Girl

MISS ALICE PARKS,
Charming young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd B. Parks.

For Miss Mashburn.

One of the many affairs given for Miss Mary Mashburn and Miss Loretta Trennor, two brides-elect of this month, was the tea at which Miss Ethel Millican entertained for them and their attendants, on Thursday afternoon at the Georgian Terrace.

The table was beautifully decorated with orchids and flowers, the centerpiece being a rustic basket filled with Pearl of the Garden roses and corn flowers.

The souvenirs for the brides were miniature bride's bouquets made colonial style and showered. The other guests received miniature colonial corsages and bouquets.

The guests included Miss Mashburn, Miss Trennor, Miss Leila Powell, Miss Anna Skinner, Miss Ethel Millican, Misses Lillian and Kate Bellingrath, Mrs. Wofford Felton Edwards, Mrs. Tracy Newton, Mrs. John Grice, Mrs. Jack Salmon and Miss Genevieve Sewell.

Vesper Club Dance.

The dance given by the Vesper club at their club room in West End Friday evening, June 20, was indeed one of the most enjoyable of the season. Music by Pollers orchestra.

Among the charming out-of-town visitors present were: Misses Lucy and Sarah Veal, of Austell, guests of Mrs. G. A. Scott; Miss Jessie Simmons, of Chattanooga, Tenn., guests of Miss Allie Ramsaur, and Miss Camille Cullman, of Brunswick, guests of Miss Maude Rollestone.

Vocal Recital.

The public is cordially invited to a concert to be given Thursday evening, June 26, at 8:30 p. m., at the Woman's club rooms, 14 W. Baker street, under the direction of Lula Clark King. The following will take part in the program: Mrs. Maurice C. Croft, soprano; Mrs. James H. Whitten, contralto; Mrs. James C. Wardwell, tenor; Mr. H. R. Bates, baritone, Miss Ethel Beyer, accompanist.

Warren-Grady.

A beautiful and interesting event of Wednesday, June 28, will be the marriage of Miss Minnie Evelyn Warren to Mr. Joseph Lamar Grady. The ceremony will take place at the First Methodist church, of Brinson, Ga. Miss Warren will be attended by a bevy of handsome women and beautiful girls and a large and elegant reception will follow at the home of the bride's parents.

A number of out-of-town guests will be present and a cordial interest is felt on account of the numberless friends and immense popularity of the couple.

Pupils' Recital.

A very interesting program was presented by the pupils of Miss Martha E. Smith School of Music at the Cable Concert hall, Friday evening, which included:

Miss Lucy Hamilton, Miss Irene Landen Miss Grace Hamilton, Miss Mary Jimmie Patillo, Miss Jimmie Solomon, Miss Annie Scully, Miss Allene Clark, Mrs. Charles H. Knox, Miss Annie Rittenbaum. Miss Marie Turner, Miss Elizabeth Lockhart, Miss Marie Turner, Miss Irene Landen and Miss Lillian Ellison.

Stocking Shower.

An interesting event of June 12 was the stocking shower given by Miss Adele Smith, in compliment to Miss Bessie Holley Smith, whose marriage to Mr. William Horace Cowan will occur June 25.

The color scheme of yellow and white was carried out in the score cards and decorations.

Punch was served by Misses Clara and Mary Smith. After the game a delightful salad course was enjoyed.

Those invited were: Mrs. Chas. Grimer, Mrs. Fred Miller, Mrs. Chas. Grist, Mrs. John Bradley, Mrs. Clem Walraven, Miss Lurline Warring, Miss Mary Simpson, Miss Bessie Holley, Miss Lillian Jennings, Miss Esther Brewer, Miss Ruby Grist, Miss Lois Butler, Miss Willis Smith, Miss Marion Swords, Misses Arnie Ruth and Mazie Cowan, Miss Susie Newton, Miss Carrie Booker, Misses Willie, Maude and Mary Emory and Miss Bessie Smith.

Lawn Party.

A very delightful occasion for next Tuesday, June 24, afternoon and evening, from 5 to 10 o'clock, will be a lawn party to be given on the lawn of the First Methodist church, corner Peachtree street and Porter Palce, by the Young People's Missionary society, circle No. 2.

Refreshments are to consist of ice cream, home-made cake and candy.

Everybody is invited—young, old and middle-aged—to come out on the lawn, where it will be cool and sociable. A nominal charge of 10c per plate will be made for refreshments.

Recital at Church.

A recital, to which the public is invited, will be given Monday evening, June 23, at 8:15 o'clock, by Miss Carmen Werber at the Georgia Avenue Presbyterian church. Georgia avenue and Grant street.

The recital is given under the auspices of Miss Werber's Sunday school class, for the benefit of the Manse fund. No admission will be charged, but a free-will offering will be taken.

For Misses Davis.

Misses Minnie and Kelly Davis were the honor guests at a reception given by the Philathea and Baraca classes of the Woodward Avenue Baptist church to their friends, the young people of the community, last Tuesday evening, in the lecture room of the church. The room was artistically decorated in cut flowers. The color scheme blue and white was carried out in every detail. A most interesting program was rendered. Miss Gertrude Tuggle and Miss Laura Lois Manning presided at the punch bowl. The Misses Davis are daughters of Rev. T. T. Davis, pastor of the church, and have recently come to Atlanta to live.

Miss Lewis Returns.

Miss Ada Evelyn Lewis, who is in charge of the department of expression in Colorado college and the Colorado Springs High school, has returned to Atlanta to spend the summer at her home, 170 North Jackson street.

The senior class play, "Much Ado About Nothing," presented by the students of Colorado college, was under her especial direction, and was pronounced by the Colorado Springs papers as the best Shakespeaean production ever given by the college. Miss Lewis' work in the leading role of "Nance Oldfield," was given by the High School Alumni association at their reception this year, was also highly spoken of.

Atlanta Chapter, D. A. R.

The Atlanta chapter D. A. R. will give a lawn party Wednesday afternoon, from 5 until 7 o'clock, at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall Slaton, they having graciously extended the courtesies of their home for the occasion.

There will be a bright program of entertainment, while the picturesqueness of the surrounding will be a joy in itself.

The artist's eye sees there with delight the details of color the soft green of the young trees, dotting there the ample sweep of the velvet lawn, the majestic outline of the tall favorites which have been spared to relate the outward sweep of the city to the adjacent forest; the English house set in the background, in front wooded landscapes stretching farther to the range of the hills.

To the lawn fete are invited all the patriotic societies of men and women, all those interested in patriotic work of the D. A. R. and all the members of the general assembly in Georgia who may be in the city Wednesday.

Mrs. Slaton and the officers of the Atlanta chapter, of which Mrs. J. O. Wynn is regent, will compose the receiving party

At the Driving Club.

The tennis tournament held the past week at the Driving club also had a delightful social side. Each afternoon many interested spectators watched the game and afterwards had tea in the terrace.

Among those seen at the club Friday afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Winship, Dr. and Mrs. Summerfield, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hawkins, Mrs. Harvey Johnson, Mrs. St. Julian Ravenel, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Johnson, Mrs. Evelyn Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis, Mr. and Mrs. George McKenzie, Mrs. Rix Stafford, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Thorn Flagler, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Smith, Mrs. Gray, Miss Agnes Gray, Mrs. Oscar Pappenheime, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence May, Mrs. George Walters, Judge and Mrs. Nash Broyles, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Speer, Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Dargan, Dr. and Mrs. Childs, Mr and Mrs. Charles Sisson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sciple.

For Miss Hairston.

Mrs. Ira Emmett Wilcox entertained at a miscellaneous shower and heart-dice party yesterday afternoon for Miss Lollie Belle Hairston.

The decorations were in yellow and white.

Punch was served by Misses Gladys and Marie Turner.

At the game of heart-dice the guest of honor was given a picture and the first prize was a game fan, and the consolation a filagree vase.

Mrs. Wilcox wore a gown of white voile and was assisted in entertaining by Miss Alma Turner and Mrs. R. H. Turner.

The guests were Miss Leake Clarke, Miss Edith Turner, Mrs. Howard Turner, Mrs. John Turner, Mrs. T. N. Estes of Columbus, Miss Celia Britt, Mrs. Diantha King, Mrs. R. H. Turner, Mrs. Thomas E. Strange, Miss Blanch McKnight, Miss Laura Bridwell, Mrs. Nell Boyd, Mrs. John Grant, Mrs. Charles Coleman, Miss Alma Turner, Miss Leonora Rea, Mrs. Frank Pittman and Mrs. W. M. Turner.

Flag Day at Palmetto.

Flag day was observed by the Piedmont chapter, D. A. R., at Palmetto, June 14, at the home of Mrs. S. M. Dean, Mrs. D. B. Bullard and Mrs. Dean, being hostesses. The principal features of the occasion were the fine addresses made by Solicitor C. S. Reid and Hon. D. B. Bullard, legislator-elect from Campbell county.

A most interesting program was carried out. The musical numbers were by Misses Reid, of Palmetto; Mrs. McCrory, of College Park; Miss Mary Goodwin, of Newnan, and Mrs. Eva Thornton, of College Park. Interesting talks were given by Mrs. Hardaway, of Newnan; Mrs. Roberts, of Fairburn; Miss Nolan, Miss Ruby Ray, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Edward Alfriend, Mrs. William Yeandle, Mrs. R. P. Brooks, regent of the Piedmont chapter, gave a most interesting paper on "The Work of the Georgia D. A. R."

A number of visiting D. A. Rs were present. From Atlanta chapter were Mrs. E. Rivers, Mrs. W. F. Austin, Mrs. E. S. Morris, Mrs. W. A. Hemphill, Mrs. Lee Walker, Mrs. E. B. Stewart, Mrs. T. J. Ripley. From the Fairburn chapter were Mrs. N. T. Roberts, regent, Mrs. Emma Swan Floyd, Mrs. Swanson. From Newnan were Mrs. R. H. Hardaway, regent, Mrs. Ruth Hardaway Powell, Miss Lastie Powell and Miss Henriett Strickland.

Dance at Hyperion Club.

An expecially enjoyable event of Friday evening was the dance given by the Hyperion club in West End. Those present were: Misses Annalis Jenkins, Minnie Wilson, Lois Carroll, Ina Line, Helen Jones, Pat Wyche of Monticello, Ala., Louise Cooper, Mary Frances Bowden, Frances Bleimaister, Lillioise Reed, Pauline Cauter, Carrie C. Parish, Mamie Morris, Mae Bell Tinsley, of Louisville, Ky.; Lagrange Cothrane, of Rome, Ga.; Kathdine Graves, of Rome, Ga., and Annie Gilreath; Messrs. M. S. Gathright, L. L. Mr. and Mrs. R. Root and Mrs. Wyche.

Moonlight Picnic.

Among the pleasant events of the past week was the moonlight picnic given at Grant park Monday evening. Those composing the party were: Misses Edilou Simmons, Carrie May Allen, May Shepard, Mary Beasley, Mary Sparks, Leith Shannon, Nell Thompson; Messrs. P. D. Allen, W. D. Morgan, George Dykes, Charlie Spencer, Huis Smith, Claude Reiney, E. A. Wilson and M. R. Hallman.

The party were chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Wilson, all of East Point.

Superfluous Hair Truths

Stop Experimenting

If you use a simple toilet preparation and it proves to be worthless, you only lose money. When you use a questionable depilatory, however, it is a very serious matter because you not only lose money, but you take the grave risk of permanent disfigurement.

If You Value Your Face

use De Miracle, the one safe, perfected hair remover of proven merits. Remember, the injury caused by the use of doubtful hair removers will either result in permanent disfigurement or cost you many dollars because it will take months or possibly years to gain control of hair growths which have been stimulated by the use of such preparations.

De Miracle

Only Real Hair Remover on Earth

De Miracle contains certain ingredients which give it the power to rob hair of its vitality. Therefore, you must eventually use it to retard and gain control of growths which have been caused by the unwise use of questionable depilatories. Is it not safer and wiser to begin using De Miracle now, before the growth gets beyond control?

Leaves No Tell-Tale Smell

If you use De Miracle it will be impossible for any curious person to know that you have used a hair remover because De Miracle evaporates immediately after accomplishing its work, therefore leaves no odor. However, on the other hand, if you use any depilatory with a distinctive odor, an offensive tell-tale smell will cling to your skin for hours. If your dealer will not supply you with De Miracle, send $1.00 direct.

Loyalty to Old Friends Is a Characteristic Of Mrs. John M. Slaton, Wife of Next Governor

By Iama Dooly.

When Mrs. John Marshall Slaton comes down to breakfast every morning, and herself drops the lump of sugar in her husband's coffee, they tell each other their plans for the day. She has had time to glance over the morning mail; to see the invitations which include her and her liege lord, and they decide which they can accept, which they must decline—but I hear more than one feminine voice arise in protest: "Does Mrs. Slaton come down to breakfast, and has she had time even before that to look over her mail?"

To these ladies of the toast crust and lemon water who never come to breakfast and who are fond of telling it—yes, Mrs. Slaton does come down to breakfast and start the day with her husband.

The Practice of Years.

She has made this a practice to be at the family breakfast table ever since she was big enough to be brought to the table and occupy a high chair placed very near that of her father, the late Colonel William D. Grant. As she grew up, the breakfast with her father was the way she began the day. Through her school life this was her pleasure, and when she came home, after attending school north, entered society, and was one of the belles of the south, she continued to meet her father at breakfast, no hour too early that suited him. She might have been up very late the night before, but not too late to get up to please her father, for was there not the rest of the day to nap in?

So often she was out for lunch, drive in the afternoon, dined out in the evening, and maybe whole days would pass when she might have not seen or talked with her father had she not had the conferences at breakfast. It was then, I have heard her recall, that she heard him talk over the things which interested him. His glance over the daily paper would suggest to them their topics frequently for conversation, and the young society belle continued in these conferences with her father, her study and interest in literature, art and the drama, of which she is still a student. He was one of the most scholarly men of his day. His library,—one of the finest in the south—was where he chose to spend most of his time, and there he drew to him the men who, like himself, found in the library their topics for after-dinner smokes and for the long winter afternoon conferences.

Her Father's Influence.

With her father even before she was grown she heard Shakespeare's plays read before she went to see them, and heard the most interesting parts of the opera stressed before she heard them sung.

She heard conversations which she can recall now between her father and her kinsman, the late Samuel Barnett, of Washington, Wilkes county, who was a favorite cousin of Mr. Grant. He had visited China and Japan—it was an unusual trip in those days. He told stories to his little cousin, "Sallie Fannie," as she was called then, and she repeated them to her friends at dancing school. They had a great desire to hear all about the ladies of the far east. With great pride it was, therefore, she asked some of them to supper to hear her "Uncle Sam" talk. He told of the ladies of the east, who were not talking about voting as they are now, and later the little girls went to the kitchen and made candy, a part of which they sent to some of the Atlanta boys who were then at the University of Georgia, among them, no doubt, winning his first laurels then, Georgia's next governor. The nicest pieces, however, were selected and put in the little box labeled "brother," for then, as now, there was that beautiful devotion existing between the petted daughter of the household and her brother (John W. Grant.)

Her Thought of Others.

Her thoughtfulness and consideration of others even then was her marked characteristic, and one felt always happy when bidden there, because her hospitality was that sweet and genuine that the welcome was felt from the moment her pretty blonde face appeared at the door, and she ushered her guests to the library to present them. She liked to exploit the talents of her friends, and though she always had the gifts that made her recitations better than those of the other girls who studied with her, she insisted that they, too, should play or sing or whatever they could do when she then, as now, would contribute so generously of her talents. On her birthday she always had lovely parties, frequently at the home of her grandfather Grant, who lived in the home which is now the winter residence of Mrs. William D. Grant. It was here that her debut party was given. It is interesting to note that the same guests are bidden to Mrs. Slaton's today, for she never forgets the childhood friends. Many of them are married; may be quiet people who may not have kept up the taste for dancing and the gay world, but they are still on the list which was used for the birthday parties, and there is the same beautiful spirit of love and heart-prompted hospitality in the hostess of the executive mansion today that there was in the face of the little hostess of childhood days, when she greets them.

There may be those who will wonder if these little things about the life of Georgia's family of the executive mansion are generally interesting, and there may be those even who will question the right one has to exploit their knowledge of them. These I would remind of the happy period of life when they loved the fairy tales; when they loved to read of and hear of the kings and queens in the story books; of King Arthur and his knights. It was the great folk we liked to read of—and human nature is the same now it was then.

Our "Royal Folk."

We may not confess it, but we, every man and woman of us, read of royalty every time the head-lines note them, and we read, too, about the president's garden parties, and we are interested to know everything about the women of their families. Our people of authority are our royal folk. Georgia is the empire state of the south. Since the days of settlement Georgia has done more than her part in furnishing men of achievement to the nation, and women noted for their beauty and worth and charm.

Georgia's governor and his family represent our "royal folk," and it is natural and praiseworthy that the people who have honored Governor Slaton with the highest office within their giving should be interested in what may be the very simple fact as to whether or not Mrs. Slaton comes down to breakfast with him.

Her days have been very busy ones for a long time, for she has taken an active part in her husband's political activities. She frankly states that she has liked the experience; that she has done what she could toward electing him. She has wanted him to be governor; is proud that he is and expects to enjoy every moment of her part of the experience in the executive mansion.

Reading from left to right: Mrs. John Marshall Slaton, when she was Miss Sarah Frances Grant, a debutante; Mrs. Slaton at the present time; at the age of 14, and at the age of 7 years.

Wants to Know Everybody in Georgia.

"I never appreciated how beautiful my native state was, and how lovable my own people until I began to take the little trips with Mr. Slaton," she said last year, after returning from several short trips. "Why, one misses so much by not traveling more around home. When I was in New York the other day I bought such a nice big valise, which will hold all I need for these trips, and I can pack it on a moment's notice and go with Mr. Slaton. I want to know all his friends in Georgia and I hope to accomplish it. We will move into the executive mansion, so that those in the general assembly can reach us conveniently. The inaugural reception will be there, and with the porches and lawn we can convert it into a place ample for the comfortable reception of our guests.

What She Does for Others.

While the last few years have taken much of her time in complementing interests of Mr. Slaton, she has in no way relinquished the work which in common with other good women of the community, she has been doing. She is an officer in the woman's society of her church. She is a member of the Atlanta Art association. She is president of the Atlanta Musical association: a member of the executive board of the Players' club; a member of the Drama league; a member of the Atlanta chapter D. A. R.

Her Ideas of Woman's Work.

"The responsibilities of women become greater every day, and more is expected of us in public work than our grandmothers would have believed becoming in us," said Mrs. Slaton, when asked what she thought of the present-day activities of women.

"These responsibilities, however, come with the century's life. More is expected of men as well as women. The duties and responsibilities of the home, therefore, are broadening, and women have had to keep pace with the obligations which come. There is the civic demand. We must be ready when the call comes to help build the church, the school, or the hospital. Busy as we are, we have more time than have our busy husbands, and before we realize it we are working in public life, but always in the way that women should."

Asked about her dominant outside interests, Mrs. Slaton mentioned first the interest she felt in a broader appreciation of music in the community.

"It was because I felt this that I accepted the office of president of the Atlanta Musical association. For a long time—indeed, since the war, I may say—we have not had the time and opportunity to accomplish our selves as did our parents and grandparents. In the days of my mother it was a part of a woman's education to know music and the arts. They read scrupulously and cultured themselves. Her Love of Music and the Drama.

"Now there does not seem the time for that, and even those people who have the advantages of education and travel have neglected often to cultivate their talents or their taste for music and the arts. I believe that through an organization like the Atlanta Musical association we can give music to all; those who cannot acquire it themselves through study or culture; those who love it and desire it as their entertainment, and the many in our midst who, hearing good music, will realize a talent they did not know they possessed. The south has achieved in every branch of knowledge making for higher civilization, and there is no reason why we cannot do our part toward contributing to the life of art.

"The drama, I believe, is a great medium of development," continued Mrs. Slaton, in reference to her interest in the Players' club and the Drama league. "I think the study of it should be encouraged in our schools, especially the high shcools, and I believe the right kind of plays have a wonderful influence over the public mind.

"Through dramatic clubs there can be accomplished not only the development of native talent, but from the proceeds of entertainments which delight the public there can be realized the funds which our Players' clubs always contribute to some charity."

Her Practical Work.

Mrs. Slaton is the ideal organized woman, in that she lives up to the spirit of organization, and her success as a leader is directly due to her individual work. When the Atlanta Musical association reorganized and she was elected president, the association determined on a campaign for a guarantee fund of one hundred members, each to be assessed a certain amount. Mrs. Slaton undertook the task of securing the members, and the association will present a series of brilliant programs during the winter months.

Several weeks ago, when the Players' club had planned to present the "Importance of Being Earnest," one of the leading members of the cast, several weeks before the performance, found it impossible to take part.

"There is no one to do it but you," Mrs. Slaton was told, and busy as she was planning to move; to make her plans for inauguration and assist Mr. Slaton in many ways, she consented to take the part, and most beautiful was the interpretation.

The Governor's Mother-in-Law.

In writing the happy chapter of a man's life it is rare that to complete it something has to be said about his mother-in-law, and yet no story of Governor Slaton's ideally happy home would be complete without a tribute being paid to his mother-in-law, who is one of the most brilliant and beloved women in Georgia, and one deeply interested in his success. Since Colonel Grant's death she has resided with her daughter, and the sunshine of her wonderful personality has been felt by the many who know her. She was Miss Sarah Frances Reed, of West Point, Ga., and one of the distinguished belles of the old south. She is most talented and accomplished, and in her scintillating and fluent conversation she can "entertain the social gathering of today with that same grace and naivete which made her the center of Georgia's social life in her girlhood days.

Mrs. Slaton's immediate relatives include her brother, Mr. John W. Grant, and his lovely wife, and their children, Margaret, the debutante daughter, William D. Grant, John Grant and Anne Grant.

BOOK REVIEWS IN TABLOID

WILLIAM J. BURNS.

Here is a thrilling narrative from the pen of the world's greatest detective and it is about the masked warriors. Who were they and how did Burns manage to pick them out from the ninety million people of the United States? Now, for the first time, William J. Burns lays all his cards on the table and, in his own terse language, tells how he arrived at his astonishing results. He chooses a type case, the greatest case he ever had to tackle, that of "The Masked War," (the title of the book) and how he brought the conspirators to justice. It is a real story more exciting than ever penned from an author's imagination. (George H. Doran company, New York.)

Pippin. A story of London streets. By Evelyn Van Buren. Pippin—christened Victoria Alexandria—is a black-haired, darkeyed, ruddy-cheeked child of the London streets, who has been made the tool of clever pickpockets, but she proved cleverer than her teachers, and then something comes into her life which makes her give up the old way of living for the sake of Dandy, a very worthy chap, and the frail little brother whom she has to mother. A very interesting feature is the stranding of a petty and ambitious American girl in London, her rescue by Pippin, and the joy and happiness which comes to both. But from the first chapter to the very end there is something to interest the reader. (The Century company, New York.)

Sunia. A Himalayan Idyll. By Maud Diver. Miss Diver's charming story of India derives its dramatic power from the national prejudice, the bar of race, that keeps the east and west apart. The wisdom of the east and the enterprise of the west are placed in impressive juxtaposition. (G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.)

The Ambition of Mark Truitt. By Henry Russell Miller. Author of "The Man Higher Up His Rise to Power." "This is a man's book in its account of a battle royal of steel kings. It is a woman's book in its story of romance, marriage," etc. The story tells of the life of a big man, his big foes, big friends, the strife, the hopes and the aspiration of modern America. (Bobbs-Merrill company, Indianapolis.)

The Strange Cases of Dr Stanchon. By Josephine Daskam Bacon. This book reveals some of the secret dramas of modern life to which the physician is the only witness, and which puzzles famous scientists and physicians. (D Appleton & Co. New York.)

BOOKS RECEIVED FROM GEORGE H. DORAN COMPANY.
(Hodder & Stoughton.)

The Ambassadress. By William Wriothesley. The fascinating life of the inner court circles of the embassies at European capitals mirrored in an animated novel in which an American woman plays the leading part.

The Old Adam. An adventure. The story of a Five Towns' man whose wife endangered his audacity. She took his successes for granted and refused to be surprised at him. A very interesting story.

Mixed Grill. By W. Pett Ridge. We are introduced to a queer little circle of entirely London characters. William Dean Howells has summed up the achievement of Mr. Ridge, this English O. Henry, as "that sort of truth which fact precipitates after passing through the alembic of a friendly imagination." Another writer says "what O. Henry did for New York's four million, Pett Ridge has done for the five million of London."

The Jumping Off Place. By Ethel Shackelford. A typically American story of the invigorating influence that the new west has on an eastern woman, who, before she left cities, had told herself that life had ceased to be interesting.

Dying Fires. By Allan Monkhouse. A novel of married life written from an entirely new viewpoint.

Debit Account. By Oliver Onions. Was it a debt and ought it to have been settled? An interesting book, remarkably contrived which asks society an extraordinary question.

The Blindness of Virtue. A play in four acts. By Cosmo Hamilton. The author teaches with laughter—his lesson is no less grave because he smiles.

The Private Life of Henry Maitland. By Morley Roberts. "The book has roused a furore of controversy in England because of its relentless frankness," says the press.

The Adventures of Dr. Whitty. By G. A. Birmingham. The adventures of this wrong-headed reformer are absurd and fiery; yet all the while we are convinced of the likelihood of their happening—in Ireland. The Boston Transcript says: "Mr. Birmingham is a master humorist and a master story teller. His corner of Ireland, so perfectly is its atmosphere reproduced in his stories, is nothing more or less than an epitome of the whole world."

Courtin' Christine. By J. J. Bell. The author's theme is a calf-love—self-love which has been the inspiration of nearly all ballad-poetry. Independence and cigarettes and two charmers of sixteen and eighteen form the lead characters of a droll romance—simply the story of the courting days of Wee MacGreegor and Christina.

Calling the Tune. By Justin Huntly McCarthy. Author of "If I Were King," which is considered a standard novel of the day. Mr. McCarthy has given us a story of the cavaliers of the twentieth century and it is just as entertaining as the novels which have made him famous.

The Were Case. By George Pleydell. A rousing story which involves a serious point of English law. The opportunities for dramatic developments are numerous, for a young man is found drowned in the lake of a country house. He was rich, and the man who would profit most by his death is an amateur criminologist—a sportsman on the verge of bankruptcy, and it places him in a serious position, but all the heads of the machinery of English justice are either his personal friends or acquaintances.

BOOKS RECEIVED FROM THE MACMILLAN COMPANY.

The Influence of Monarchs. Steps in a new science of history. By Frederick A. Woods. "Only very rarely has a nation progressed in its political and economic aspects save under the leadership of a strong sovereign. This is a plain and simple fact," affirms Dr. Woods.

Religion as Life.—By Henry Churchill King. "Life—large and rich and free, increasing, inexhaustible life, because sharing in God's own life."

The Country Church. By C. O. Gill and Gifford Pinchot. Is the country church growing in size and power, or declining? Is it doing the work which belongs to it? Is it as influential an agent for the improvement of country life as it should be, and if it is not how can it get back into the position it once held? These are the questions underlying this book. The churchgoing habits of all the individuals in a population of fifty thousand were ascertained at the beginning and again at the end of a period of twenty years. It is on these facts that the conclusions and reforms are based.

Animal Husbandry for Schools. By Merritt W. Harper, assistant professor of animal husbandry at Cornell university. A book not only useful in schools, but to the farmer who desires a book on farm animals.

The Church and the Labor Conflict. By Father Paul Homer. Dr. Wernle says in this book he deals with facts, instead of theories.

Economics in Business. By Norris A. Brisco. The author has endeavored to produce a book which will assist men in their efforts to obtain a greater efficiency, and in which business principles are presented in clear, non-technical language.

Travers' Golf Book. By Jerome D. Travers. Amateur champions of the United States, 1907, 1908 and 1912, with forty-eight illustrations.

LITERARY NOTES.

Out of the Ashes. A new novel by Ethel Watts Mumford, was published recently by Moffat, Yard & Co. The story is an interesting study of certain phases of New York life.

The Mystery of the Pink Pieces. By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow, is a snappy detective story in July Ainslee's. The characters of the story are imbued with the delightful personality of Mrs. Woodrow's work.

Florence Barklay, author of "The Rosary," writes to Mrs. O'Connor: "I have just today had time at last to sit down, quietly, and read 'Little Thank You.' Not an hour can I wait to write. Thank you, indeed, for 'Little Thank You!'"

Swords and Ploughshares. By Lucia Ames Mead, which the Putnams recently published, is securing the enthusiastic endorsement of eminent leaders in the cause of universal peace. "It came to me a book," writes Dr. Andrew D. White, "which will make its mark decidedly among those most effective for the cause of peace on earth. It seems to me sure to help strongly in just that part of our work which, I have always believed, most effective, namely, that which gives the right basis of thinking and materials for its best processes to men and women who give calm thought to the whole subject concerned." Prof. William I. Hull, of Swarthmore college, writes to the author, "You have certainly succeeded in beating a number and variety of swords into ploughshares . . . and I hope and believe that your book will be of material aid in 'Supplanting the System of War by the System of Law.'"

A practical illustration of "truth crushed to earth" is seen in the continued interest in the late Col. Archibald Gracie's able exposition "The Truth About Chickamauga." With our memories of the civil war freshened by the observances of this anniversary year, it may not come amiss to quote again from a few of the many expressions of congratulation and admiration received by Col Gracie when the book appeared two years ago. Col. Roosevelt, with characteristic emphasis declared the book "a fine one, extremely interesting." Col. Edward L. Anderson, adjutant in Gen. McCook's brigade, wrote:

"You beat Homer. The book is as true as it is fascinating. I have read it with the deepest interest, and I am glad to see that you have made a permanent record of the battle."

Lynch calculates that in case of drought he can save this crop of oats, since if the oats don't come to the crop, he can make the crop come to the oats.

Woman's Suffrage Movement.

(By Rose A. Bird-Maley in National Monthly for June.)

There are those who freely believe that the present movement for the ballot is a wholly unfounded demand of a few vocally gifted women and contend that the only just solution of the problem is the submission of the question to the women themselves. In a speech which was intended to be humorous, Hon. Stanley Bowdoin, delegate for Hamilton county, at the Ohio constitutional convention, compared this "apparently great clamor for the ballot" to "a great noise in the barnyard, but on locating it was one egg only." In all progressive movements there are, of necessity, those who take the initiative; but it has seemed to me a fundamental truth that the question today is not so much whether the majority of women desire the ballot, as it is whether or not suffrage will result in the greatest good to the greatest number.

Although the desire for the ballot should not be considered an argument for or against suffrage, it must be conceded that it is necessary to consider it as a means to the end, for whenever the majority of women request it, the men of the nation will grant it. At the present time, however, the submission of the question to the women themselves would neither be a fair nor final solution of the problem, because the majority of women are not in a position to vote intelligently upon the question. This state of affairs is not due to woman's intellectual inferiority, but largely to the position she has occupied in the past. For centuries her circle of activities has been confined to her home, and her training in matters of government has been totally neglected. Like Rip Van Winkle, she has today just awakened from a long slumber, and the world about her is unfamiliar, the rights of citizenship is a problem which she considers far removed from her in life.

Ram Sprouts New Growth.

(Gallon, O., Dispatch to New York World.)

In addition to a fine coat of wool, a ram owned by David Lynch, a farmer, has a covering of flourishing oats.

The ram escaped confinement in a straw stack and got oats in his wool. Then it was rained on. Next, to the sun shone brightly. This continued several days with the result that the oats sprouted.

Lynch calculates that in case of drought he can save this crop of oats, since if the oats don't come to the crop, he can make the crop come to the oats.

one whish I firmly believe will live as long as men remember the civil war. I am amazed at the thought, time and care with which you have carried on your investigations. The Truth About Chickamauga has been reached as far, it seems to me, as is humanly possible, and I believe you have placed yourself beyond criticism in your very evident intention of giving the whole truth."

Gen. Charles King said: "The book is the finest account of that covered Chickamauga's closing hours."

Henry J. Aten, of the Eighty-fifth Illinois Infantry, now librarian at Hiawatha academy, Hiawatha, Kan., wrote a long letter about the book. It is impossible to give all of it, but the following shows his appreciation:

"Your book is remarkable for the enormous amount of work you have put into your researches. You have treated my old brigade handsomely, and as I think, justly."

This Attractive And Useful Design For Needleworkers Can Be Transferred Without Recourse To The Old And Obsolete Tracing Paper Method Which Is Unreliable At Best.

Design for Waist

The need of something in embroidery to enrich the colored fabric dress for this summer is supplied in such patterns as the above.

Suppose the dress is of pink or blue cambric. Then use white floss, two threads to each needleful on all heavy parts. This makes the work more rapid, gives a slightly raised effect which will be very pretty on a goods as heavy as cambric.

In making the punch work portions, shown in the dotted interiors, select a short, bluft needle, rather thick at the eye, or use a three-correred carpet needle. Thread it with a single thread of floss. In the process of work it carries two threads over each portion, and to use a double thread would give a heavy appearance to the finished pattern. Aim to make the holes quite large, as this will impart a lace-like appearance which will be very effective in wash dress embroidery.

Should you wish this pattern to be all white, lay the design on fragile material, outline the leaves and tendrils, or finish them in cross-stitch shadow work. This, you know, is done on the back of the goods. Or if the pattern is laid on white linen, it can be made solid with satin stitch, the punch work design worked as above mentioned. It is a pattern suggesting numerous arrangements.

TO TRANSFER THIS DESIGN.

Put a cake of soap (laundry will do) in a pint of hot water, stir vigorously and remove the soap. Saturate this Design with the soap and water mixture, then remove the excess moisture by partially drying the saturated Design or by applying a sheet of blotting paper. Place the material or fabric to which the design is to be transferred on a hard, flat surface and lay the Design, face down, upon the material. Cover with a dry sheet of thick paper or two folds of newspaper, and with the bowl of a tablespoon rub, pressing hard, until the Design is entirely transferred, being careful to rub from, rather than toward you. When rubbing, you can see if enough pressure is being applied by lifting a corner of the Design to note how well it's taking. Do not wet the material nor rub the face of the Design with damp fingers. To remove the Design lines after the article is completed, wash in warm water, with soap. The entire process is very simple and with a little care you can easily make perfect transfers to any kind of goods.

PATENT PENDING

THE NEW COATS

BY MRS. KINGSLEY.

ONE of the noticeable features of the spring styles is the leniency which has been shown in cut, decoration and length. To all types of wearers there is promised becomingness, which factor every woman prizes beyond expensive fabrics, unique line or "the very latest, madam, from Paris."

The silhouette of the majority of coats is straight. There is no nipping in at the waist, and a short line from shoulder to waist is reminiscent of empire modes. This is emphasized in various waists. The back of one imported model has a narrow belt of suede, which passes through button-holed slots at each side and is held down by huge buttons.

The belt, by the way, will be a notable feature of many of the spring suits. It need not be continuous, many models having belts at the back, which hold down the fulness which is creeping back into the cut.

Bulgarian blouse suits are a very important chapter in the coat story. These have fulness at the upper portion and a gathered peplum. Broad and narrow girdles and sashes define the waist line, which in these models is appearing several inches below the normal position.

Russian lines with becoming fastening hint of smart military styles, which will ever be in favor with women who can wear jaunty lines.

Chinese coats are exploited in many of the brocaded jackets that are worn with plain skirts. These are made on the line of the old fashioned box coat. Some have vestee effects on the order of a man's tuxedo. Frequently these Chinese coats are made sleeveless when they accompany a three-piece suit. Pleated skirts and draperies of all descriptions are worn with these oriental jackets.

Combinations of blouses and cutaways are strong notes. The upper part of the jacket is blouse, with long revers or a vest, and the lower part shows a decided cutaway line, the coat tails being straight at the back—a new line.

In the cutting of the seams there is decided novelty.

HOT WEATHER DISHES

BY LUCILLE DAUDET.

THE housewife with any respect for her nerves and temper will so arrange her cooking in summer as to let the fire go out within a few hours after breakfast. She need not imagine that the man, coming home from his office at the end of a hot day, will demand the typical hot dinner. If she could follow him to his restaurant or lunch counter downtown she would hear him asking for the cold-dish menu. With tea ready to ice in a glass or china pitcher, a crisp salad with a dressing made from olive oil, a cold meat, fish or egg dish and a nourishing dessert, all of which can be prepared before 10 o'clock in the morning, she will find her husband well satisfied and she will save her own strength for a more worthy cause.

Jellied Chicken—Draw, pick and wipe very clean a small chicken, cover with warm water and simmer until the meat slips from the bones and there remains of the water about a coffee cup full. Lift out the meat, and cut or shred into good-sized pieces, throwing out all fat, bone and gristle. Skim the fat from the liquor, add pepper and salt to season very highly, then bring to a boil with half an ounce of gelatin, which has been dissolved in just enough cold water to cover it. Pour this over the shredded chicken, stir thoroughly and pack into a mold to form. Serve on a bed of lettuce, and pass apple or crab-apple jelly with it.

Rice Cream with Peaches—A nourishing dessert. In a double boiler cook half a cup of rice in a quart of milk, add half teaspoon of salt. If you soak the rice over night it will save time in the cooking. Have ready a tablespoon of gelatine dissolved in cold water. Then beat it until clear, strain and beat in the hot rice. Add a teacup of sugar. Allow the mixture to cool, and add a teacup of cream, whipped stiff. Pour the whole into a mold. When ready to serve, turn out of the mold and encircle the creamed rice with peaches sliced and sugared, or you can stew the peaches with just enough water to make a rich syrup and serve these ice cold around the creamed rice.

PAINT can be made bright by rubbing down with kerosene.

AN enameled or zinc bathtub can readily be cleaned by using powdered pumice stone.

IF oilcloth is occasionally rubbed with a mixture of beeswax and turpentine it will last longer.

NEVER keep vinegar or yeast in stone crocks or jugs; their acids attack the glazing, which is said to be poisonous. Glass is better.

A HELP to the mother and baby in a small bathroom is a broad platform 32 by 35 inches, or smaller if tub is small. Have the clean clothes, warm towels, and a thick pad can be laid; it is wide enough so that baby cannot roll off, and later the child can be dressed there as well. Fits well over the back end of tub, right close to the wall, and extends over the sides about two inches. If set well on to tub, it will not upset. When not in use, stand on end at the back or end of tub.

FIRST wash silver well in hot soapy water, then apply a little whiting with a cloth wet with either alcohol or water. Let the whiting dry on the silver, then rub it off with a cloth and polish with either a clean soft cloth or a piece of chamois leather, using a soft brush for corners or engraved work.

THE woman who does her own washing gets a yard of ordinary white table oilcloth and cuts an apron on the style of a butcher's apron. Hem the neck and sides by putting on the straps crossing in back to opposite sides. From the pieces that fall off in cutting reinforce the front from bust to below waist line, thus making three thicknesses in front. She will find at the cost of 15 or 20 cents she will be nice, dry, and clean when her washing is done, instead of soaked and wet through to the skin.

CARE OF THE SKIN

BY MRS. McCUNE.

THE woman who has a skin sensitive to wind and dust is positively as mad as the proverbial March hare to go out without a touch of cream under her powder and a chiffon veil big enough to envelop her entire head and secured tightly under the chin. To several correspondents who mentioned the matter of economy being a very important thing to consider in the care of their beauty, I have suggested the buying of chiffon by the yard for this big viel and neatly hemming the edges.

This method of purchase gives a big square, the center of which may be put over the hat crown; and after the curtain is thus posed, the ends of the veil are caught snugly at the back and drawn taut under the chin, so that no froliscome zephyr may creep underneath with its germ-laden dust and stinging chill. One good way to insure the closeness of this beauty veil is to cut the chin point off and loosely gather the rounded edge, which will drop the chin in a cozy and secure pocket. A pale gray is the best color for this chiffon mask, for a deeply dyed veil may be harmful over a skin already out of order, or that is inclined to cut up tantrums at the least excuse.

For the wind-harassed skin, the one with pimples and the one with blackheads the nightly face wash is indispensable, for each one must be cleansed of dust and oil before further treatment can be taken properly. All skins, whatever, their trouble, respond better to a good soap and water scrub if they are first massaged with cold cream. Try and get a cream which sinks readily into the pores, and if this cannot be had use almond oil instead for the rub.

If there are eruptions, however, the skin must be manipulated with the most delicate touch, for otherwise the sore spots will be bruised and so made worse. After the cream rub, wipe off the skin with a clean old cloth, when much dust and exuded matter will come readily from the pores, the oil and rubbing promptly starting their action.

TO MAKE MONEY

BY EDNA EGAN.

EVERYONE knows that even a moderately good dressmaker scorns the making of children's clothes as unworthy of her talents and we are all familiar with her argument that while it takes almost as long to make them as it does women's dresses, no one is willing to pay in proportion.

The poor little mother, therefore, was often in a tight fix, in bygone years as to a way in which to provide her children with dresses that possessed some individuality and yet were within average means.

It was not a girl but a grandmother to whom the mothers of at least one city are indebted for a solution of the problem. Practically without income and with her children all married off she found herself getting into a habit of living between houses. About the time she got Jane's children dressed for the winter she was reminded that she had promised to visit Gladys and there she soon found herself repeating the programme of the earlier fall by making more children's dresses.

Finally she made up her mind that she would be happier in a home of her own, and as she was an independent little old lady she decided that she could certainly do now for a living the work that she had done for years past for sheer pleasure. Naturally there was tremendous opposition on the part of her children, but she stuck to her scheme and finally won their half-hearted co-operation.

With the courage of her convictions she made a round of calls on the best dressmakers in town, and told them that she would like to be recommended for work of this character. In addition she put a "children's dressmaker" card in her window and advertised in the newspapers on a somewhat modest scale. Of the three methods, however, she claims that the best and most satisfactory results came through the assistance of dressmakers.

Her first work was to make up a few small dresses as models and also some attractive aprons. Of course fashions changed in children's clothes as well as in those of grown-ups and rompers have largely taken the place formerly occupied by aprons for play time, but as a grandmother she believes firmly in the particular place of the apron in the child's wardrobe and refuses to give them up for her own grandchildren at any rate.

Apparently there are others possessing the same idea, for her aprons have sold like the hackneyed "hot cakes," and whenever there is a lull in business nowadays, quantities of them are made up in various styles and sizes. In fact the pieces left from wash dresses are always kept with the idea in view, of their ultimate use as apron trimmings.

For instance, when plain blue chambray aprons are being made, there is usually found among the leftovers, pieces of blue and white, or blue and red checked or plaid material, which will make unusual or effective trimmings.

Dainty bonnets for babies are also made of fine bits of material left over from the expensive hand-made party dresses of older girls, and attractive wash hats for toddlers utilize otherwise useless scraps of linen and pique. In all this she does the old Ben Franklin motto of "a penny saved is a penny earned," several better, for pieces thus worked up sell for many times their original value.

Her price for children's clothes is gauged almost entirely by the amount of work on them. Dresses that are quickly made on a sewing machine are more than reasonable. If handwork is desired, naturally prices are much higher, although an attempt is made to keep well below the standard set by the exclusive shops.

A splendid business instinct had evidently been lying fallow for years, for her work soon outgrew the possibilities of her home and she opened a "Children's Shop" on a downtown street. Her window displays are unusually attractive and she carries everything imaginable for children's wear and amusement, from the layette for the infant the stork is about to leave in some fortunate home, up to dresses for girls well on in their "teens."

"If this fails to impress, stop and think for a moment of the requirements of the new baby and then of the possibilities in the way of wonderful baskets and bassinets, to say nothing of the different kinds of perambulators.

BULGARS TO ATTACK SERVIANS AND GREEKS

Battle Expected in Macedonia. Montenegro Will Aid the Servians.

Vienna, June 21.—An attack by the Bulgarian troops on the Servians and Greeks is expected on the river Vardar in Macedonia, according to Austrian newspapers.

Co-operation of the Greek and Servian armies has been accomplished. The Servians are concentrating in fortified positions on the right bank of the river.

The Vardar river runs through Macedonia to the gulf of Salonika. The Bulgarians occupy the country along the left bank while the Servians and the Greeks hold the positions on the opposite bank.

Vienna, June 21.—An interpellation was addressed to the American government in parliament today asking for information about health conditions in Scutari.

The introducer asserted that semi-decomposed and half mummified corpses of Turkish soldiers still were lying unburied in the vicinity of the fortress.

The attack was aimed at Vice Admiral Cecil Burney of the British navy, who commands the international force occupying Scutari.

Prizes for Detecting Defective Welds.

A German technical society has offered a first prize of $243 and a second prize of $121.50, says the July Popular Mechanics Magazine, for the best method of proving, without disturbing a welded surface, whether or not there are unsound places or accumulations of dross beneath the weld, and for determining whether the metal has been overheated in the welding operation.

There was broken up lately at Tenerife, the Canary Island, what was undoubtedly the oldest ship in the world. It was the Italian ship Anita, built in Genoa in 1548—just a short seven decades after the Santa Maria, the famous galleon in which Columbus made his voyage of discovery. The Anita was built for strength rather than for grace or speed. She was broad-beamed and clumsy, but she had weathered hurricanes and typhoons in all parts of the seas, and escaped unharmed from the perils of the deep, from Cape Horn to Hudson bay. She had a world's record as the slowest ship afloat, averaging 200 days between Baltimore, Md., and Rio de Janeiro. At her lick of speed was owing money for her owner, and as she seemed destined to defy the elements and enrich Lloyds indefinitely as long as she remained afloat, it was decided to sell her for what she would bring piecemeal, and employ the proceeds in the construction of a new vessel.

Morals and the Price of Land

By Fred Eastman.

Secretary Matinecock Neighborhood Association, Locust Valley, N. Y. (Exclusive Service the Survey Press Bureau.)

The proposition is: If the price of land in any rural community be raised without a corresponding rise in the income derived from the land, the morals of the community suffer.

Let the year be 1900. Let the land be any typical agricultural township in the United States. It is valued at an average of $20 an acre, and the typical farm including, of course, improvements, is worth about $5,000 and yields all told $ or 10 per cent interest. The population consists of about 200 families of strictly American stock, 90 per cent of whom have resided in the community fifteen years or more. There are five or six one-room schools in the township, and six or seven churches. The average enrollment in the schools is thirty-five; the average membership of the churches, sixty.

The social life of the community, while crude, is not sluggish. However conservative in methods of farming and of education, there is yet a spirit of pride and of friendly co-operation. Telephones have not yet been introduced, so there is still a good bit of visiting among families. The roads are so poor that there is little travel on them between town and country, and the recreations of the young people are confined to the neighborhood. These recreations consist of the games at school, a little baseball, an occasional spelling bee and singing school, and frequent log-rolling, husking bees and square dances. The old folks share in these sports and have a few of their own besides, such as quilting bees and barn raisings. It is worth noting that nearly all these recreations combine work with pleasure and represent a form of co-operation possible only in a stable population among families that have known each other for a considerable length of time.

It is possible for a young man in this community to save enough money to buy a small farm by the time he is 23 or 24, or if he has not saved enough he can usually borrow enough to make the purchase. On such prospects a young man can afford to marry. The average age of marriage in this township is 19 for the woman and 23 for the man.

Now suppose the price of land be doubled without the farmer's income being doubled; that is, double his capital without increasing his interest. Important results follow.

The age of marriage is raised. A young man who can afford to buy land at $20 an acre finds it more difficult to purchase at $40. He will have to save longer, and his girl will have to wait for him, if she marries him at all. Whereas, when land was $20 an acre they might have "set up for themselves" when he was 23 and she was 19; now they must wait until he is about 28 and she 22. In other words, the period between the arrival of their social instincts and their marriage, the temptation period, is lengthened. This condition results in a lowering of the moral standards along sexual lines. The percentage of young people who can keep themselves clean through a temptation period of five years is naturally larger than the percentage who can keep themselves clean through a temptation period of eight years.

Stagnation follows in the whole social life of the community, especially as expressed in its institutions. Raising the price of land without proportionately raising the income derived from it increases the farmer's capital and his taxes, but decreases his interest. A $5,000 farm that yields a $500 income is a 10 per cent investment, but a $10,000 farm that yields a $500 income is only a 5 per cent investment. When this condition prevails the natural tendency of the farmer is to sell, to convert the capital into cash and put it where it will bring a larger interest. When he sells he moves, and when he moves he and his family go out of the country school, the country church and the community life altogether. It makes for a shifting and decreasing rural population, which is poor soil for schools and churches and community institutions of any sort.

Not only does the attendance and enrollment or membership of these institutions drop, often to a fraction of their former number, but there is less money to support them. Schools and churches are supported on profits. When the farmer's interest is decreased his profits are decreased. With the decline in these institutions goes the decline of community spirit, witnessed in the passing of community recreations, community gatherings and community pride. The spelling bees, the singing schools, the husking and quilting bees, the square dances, the log rollings and the barn raisings become things of the past.

"Those healthful sports that graced the peaceful scene,
Lived in each look and brightened all the green;
These far-departing seek a kinder shore,

This very thing has taken place in the United States in the last twelve years, and the condition described is the condition prevailing in the average township today. Farm land has increased 10% per cent in price and the farmer's income has not increased in proportion. The average age of marriage has risen throughout the great majority of our rural districts. Social life is in a stagnant condition. Over a third of our counties show a decrease in their rural population. The enrollment in the average one-room country school is about half what it was ten years ago; the membership of the country churches has been steadily decreasing. The old forms of recreation have passed away.

The facts are not propounded for the benefit of the "Pessimists' club," but rather to point to certain underlying economic causes of rural decay, and to suggest to those of us who are working for the repair of rural life that we endeavor first to remove these economic causes. If the farming population is to be a settled population, if it is to hold its young men on the farm, it must be made possible for these young men to procure land of their own at an early age, and the income of the farmer must be made to keep pace with the rise in the price of his land. Either his production must be increased, or the price that he receives for his crops, or both.

The morals of the community demand it.

Ultra English--Patch Pockets

Two New Grays $30—at Muse's

An English coat of close fit and patch pockets is either good or bad—never tolerably good. 'Tis innocent or guilty, a triumph or a disaster. Let us talk of triumphs.

¶ This English of fine worsted cheviot has all the excellences of tailoring and a faultlessness of line throughout. It fits as the English was intended to fit. It follows the lines of the body and lends a grace supreme.

¶ And when it comes to patch pockets, only the utmost skill avoids a failure. The interpretation of a patch pocket is literal. It is designed to have the appearance of a patch, yet it should be a part of the coat rather than a postscript.

¶ These new English suits are patch-pocketed to perfection, the patch pocket appearing on the waistcoat also.

Crop Conditions for June Shown in Report of State Department of Agriculture.

According to the crop report for June of the state department of agriculture, which was given out yesterday by Commissioner J. J. Conner, while the prospect for a cotton crop is only 83 per cent as good as at the corresponding period last year, corn and other cereals show great improvement.

Letters to the department indicate that the acreage in corn and other tht the acreage in corn and other food crops is considerably greater than it has been in recent years and that Georgia will raise a larger proportion than usual for the food she consumes. The report in part is as follows:

The Report.

"The department sent out the usual number of letters of inquiry and received replies, covering about 95 per cent of the entire state. We have studiously sought to get the exact condition of the crops so far as they could be obtained from replies to our letters, and we are giving the exact conditions founded upon an average of these replies.

"A thorough understanding of the report can only be had by taking into consideration the fact that the conditions are compared with conditions one year ago. It being true that weather conditions last year were exceedingly unfavorable to crop growth and it being further true that the harvest of last year was exceedingly low, it will readily be seen that the report indicates a gloomy aspect with respect to the production of cotton. Our tabulated statement indicates 83 per cent in the condition and prospect of the cotton crop compared with last year. The crop is 18 days late and the stand is only 85 per cent of a good stand.

Good Outlook for Food Products.

"The corn condition seems to be better than it was at this season last year. The same is true of sugar cane, rice and sorghum. This shows that our people are taking greater interest in crop diversification and in the production of food products for man and animals. The department is greatly pleased with this condition and we appeal to the farmers of Georgia to so arrange their planting operations as to make for all the people and all animals a sufficient supply of food on the farm.

The Fertilizers.

"The following is the crop conditions as reported:

"Cotton—Condition and prospect compared to last year, 83 per cent; time of planting, 18 days late; per cent of crop planted over, 24 per cent; stand compared to a good stand, 85 per cent.

"Corn—Condition and prospect compared to last year, 103 per cent; stand compared to a good stand, 91 per cent.

"Sugar Cane—Condition and prospect compared to last year, 95 per cent; stand compared to a good stand, 94 per cent.

"Rice—Condition and prospect compared to last year, 90 per cent; stand compared to a good stand, 95 per cent.

"Sorghum—Condition and prospect compared to last year, 94 per cent; stand compared to a good stand, 96 per cent. J. J. CONNER,

"Commissioner of Agriculture."

STOVALL IS CONFIRMED FOR THE SWISS POST

Savannah Editor in Washington Conferring With Bryan—Other Georgia News at Capital.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, June 21.—(Special)—Hon. Pleasant A. Stovall, of Savannah, was today confirmed by the senate as minister to Switzerland. He is now here and will have a conference with Secretary of State Bryan in reference to his new duties, before leaving for home.

A. R. Scott was confirmed as postmaster at McDonough.

No action was taken on Mrs. W. J. Ham's nomination as postmaster at Gainesville. An interesting feature in connection with this suspension of action is that efforts are being made to put Representative Bell in a good humor, so he will not kick over the traces. He declines to become reconciled, however, unless Mrs. Ham's name is withdrawn and that of A. S. Hardy, his nominee, is substituted.

Dr. E. P. Fraser, of Macon, has been chosen as consular agent at Luzerne, Switzerland. His family is already there and he expects to spend the next year or two abroad.

North Winship, of Macon, who is now a consul at Tahiti, Society Islands, will shortly be transferred to a post in Canada.

Robert L. Berner, of Macon, who was mentioned in connection with the attorneyship for the southern district of Georgia, was in Washington today. He declined to comment on the controversy over the appointment of A. Protadams.

Georgians are not patronizing the Postal Savings banks, a new proof of which is the small number of applicants for savings banks bonds which will be available on July 1.

Athens, $40; Augusta, $500; Macon, $640; Savannah, $500; Summerville, $60, and Washington, $60.

The interstate commerce commission will take testimony in Savannah on July 16 in the following case: The city of Douglas against the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad, three cases brought by the cities of Pelham, Camilla and Sylvester against the Atlantic Coast Line railroad.

Panama Jurist Dead.

Panama, June 21.—The death occurred today of Facundo Mutis Duran, the eminent Panama jurist. He was governor of Panama when it seceded from Colombia and was the first chief justice of the supreme court of the canal zone. He was at one time secretary of foreign relations.

One day an old farmer came into a city store and asked to see some clocks. The clerk showed him some eight-day clocks, which he told him would run eight days without winding. The farmer looked perplexed for a minute and then said, "Yes, but if they will run eight days without windin,' how long will they run if you wind em?"—National Monthly for June.

USED-PIANO SALE

June 30th closes our 47th year in business in Atlanta and it is only fitting that we should commemorate the anniversary in some way, so why not offer the public a large saving in the way of a quick, economical sale

NOW

Our position is a little unique in Georgia. Owing to the fact of our having exclusive agencies of the most celebrated Pianos and Pianolas in the world, many families of modest means get the notion that we do not carry in stock lower price goods, when, in fact, we make a specialty of good pianos at modest prices. Another thing, we are constantly receiving in exchange, pianos of all grades and makes, many of them in excellent condition. These instruments go through our factory department, and when put on our floors for sale they are marked at bargain prices.

Lately we have been receiving a lot of upright Pianos of various makes in exchange for Steinway and Knabe Pianos and for Pianola Pianos—These pianos, as well as the ones returned from rental, we have decided to offer at almost unbelievable prices. They are in our way, our 5th floor is crowded with them, and we had rather sell them now at bargain prices than hold them.

We mention a few below; we have many others. Pianos shipped to any part of the State. Pianos bought now may at any time be exchanged.

EASY PAYMENTS ACCEPTED SAME AS CASH.

Knabe, only	$245	Fischer (Grand)	$350
Knabe, only	185	Phillips & Crew	200

ATLANTA TROOPS REACH ST. SIMON'S

Marshall Tood Falls Into Sea, But Is Rescued—Tents Are Pitched and Camp Life Inaugurated.

By Agie Grice, Private, Governor's Horse Guard.

Brunswick, Ga., June 21.—(Special.) The special train bearing the Governor's Horse Guard, the Candler Horse Guard, Major J. O. Seamans and staff and a party of ladies from Atlanta, reached Brunswick at 4:30 Saturday morning. The transferring of the baggage was begun immediately and was all on board a lighter by 7 o'clock. The five troops composing the squadron boarded the "Seagate" at 8 o'clock and arrived at St. Simon's an hour later.

The squadron at once proceeded to the camp sight. The lighter bearing the baggage was delayed and did not arrive until nearly noon, but the troopers were kept busily engaged in cleaning up underbrush and leaves so that everything would be ready for the erection of the tents upon arrival.

The camp site is very pleasing indeed and every soldier seems very enthusiastic and all anticipate an enjoyable week.

All Saturday afternoon the men were busily engaged in making camp and no one had the privilege of bathing. Sunday, however, the men will be at complete liberty.

Private Marshall Todd, of Atlanta, who is a member of the hospital corps, was the first to suffer a misfortune. He was stepping to load supplies when he fell into the sea, but was immediately rescued. No ill effects resulted other than a thorough drenching.

The entire Third battalion, under command of Major Hunter, reached St. Simon's Island at noon Saturday and immediately went into camp. The band of the First Georgia infantry arrived shortly before the battalion. The battery of artillery took position late in the afternoon and the camp was regularly established. Regular camp life was inaugurated, sentries posted and the 1913 encampment was on.

SERGEANT IS PROMOTED TO GOVERNOR'S STAFF

It was a pretty compliment which Governor Brown paid to William Henry Smith, Decatur journalist, colonel of the First regiment, as well as a just reward for long service when he made him yesterday a lieutenant colonel on his staff. This enables Colonel Smith to retire with the rank of lieutenant colonel, instead of being sent out after thirty-four years in the ranks of service as a plain sergeant, without any commission at all.

Sergeant Smith was soon to be retired from the national guard on account of his age. When the governor heard of it and learned of his long period of faithful service he decided that it would never do to have such a man dismissed without some token of appreciation from the state. He asked Sergeant Smith to accept a place on the staff, and the man who was yesterday only a sergeant will find himself addressed today by all his friends and acquaintances as Colonel Smith.

GOVERNOR FINDS MERIT IN AUGUSTA BOY'S CASE

As is well known by this time, Governor Brown is not making a business of handing out pardons to convicts in these closing days of his administration, but there was one case put up to him yesterday which he decided did merit clemency and he signed a commutation of sentence.

W. J. Collier, a white boy, was convicted in Augusta on two counts, burglary and breaking the seal of a car, and he was sentenced to one year on each count. Shortly after he entered the gang Collier was badly beaten by one of the guards and took the first opportunity after that to make his escape. Some time ago, however, he returned and gave himself up. He has now served about fifteen months of his two sentences.

It appeared to the governor that a parole would be here in form that executive clemency could take, and it was this case that caused him to inquire of the attorney general whether paroles were allowable to felony convicts who had received misdemeanor sentences. The attorney general gave a negative answer, and Governor Brown, finding that the boy had made a good record working while an escaped convict, determined to give him another chance and commuted the sentence to present service.

TO LAY CORNERSTONE NEXT TUESDAY P. M.

Interesting Exercises Will Be Held at the Old Women's Home.

The laying of the corner-stone of the Home for Old Women will occur on Thursday afternoon, June 26, at 5 o'clock. This occasion will mark the eighth anniversary of the founding of this institution. A beautiful and appropriate ceremony, conducted by the Masons, will be held, to which the public is cordially invited. There will be music, and punch will be served by the ladies on the lawn. All ministers of the city are especially invited to be present.

POISONED BY CHALK, YOUNG SCHOOL GIRL IS AT DEATH'S DOOR

A victim of an ailment which has baffled medical skill, 7-year-old Mary Tribble, daughter of Policeman W. C. Tribble, lies at death's door in her home, 7 Porter street, as the result of poisoning by chalk, bits of which the child had eaten during the last day of school when she worked at the blackboard in her class room.

For the past two weeks the girl has lain helpless and paralyzed, unable to speak but a single word, "mama." Most of the time she is unconscious.

Her illness has extended from the moment she arrived home from the last day of school. She staggered into the hallway and crumpled in a heap at the mother's feet.

A box of colored crayon, one of which she had bitten, was found on her desk in the first grade class room of the school which she attended. Pieces of the bitten crayon were chipped off and the imprints of teeth are plainly discernible.

Dr. R. E. Stone, of 294 South Boulevard, one of the physicians administering to the stricken child, says that although no definite analysis has been made, he attributes her illness to probable poisoning from the crayon which she had bitten.

TEXAN SPEAKS SUNDAY IN DR. FLYNN'S PULPIT

Rev. Arthur F. Bishop, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Austin, Tex., will occupy the pulpit of the North Avenue Presbyterian church this Sunday, both morning and night. Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, the pastor, is on a week's vacation trip to the north, being at present in Coatesville, Pa. Dr. Bishop's morning subject will be "The Coming of the Kingdom," and in the evening he will speak on "Christ's Death Commends God's Love."

SOUTHERN "BELL" WILL RUN ON SUNDAYS NOW

The Southern Railway company has decided to operate trains Nos. 17 and 18, locally known as the "Bell," on Sunday. The train has been operated between Atlanta and Toccoa for a number of years, but never before ran on Sunday. The change by which the "Bell" will run on Sundays as well as daily will become effective June 29.

In the announcement made Saturday by J. L. Meek, assistant General passenger agent, the schedule of the train is as follows: Westbound, No. 17, leaves Toccoa at 5:45 a. m. (eastern time) and arrives in Atlanta at 8:10 a. m. (central time); eastbound, No. 18, leaves Atlanta at 4:30 p. m. (central time) and arrives at Toccoa at 9:20 p. m. (eastern time). The change by which the public will be given a train on Sunday is very gratifying to patrons of the road.

W. & A. EARNS FIVE PER CENT ON $20,000,000

According to returns made to Comptroller General William A. Wright yesterday, the net income of the Western and Atlantic railroad, over and above the rental paid the state and operating expenses, was $573,-613.61.

Under the lease contract, a monthly rental of $35,001 is paid to the state. Besides this, the state receives one-half of 1 per cent of the road's net income as tax. This year the income tax amounted to $2,868.07, a little less than last year. If to the yearly income of the road is added the yearly rental of $420,012, $993,826.61 will be the total net revenue, which is approximately 5 per cent on a capital valuation of $20,000,000.

Melton Replies to Dr. Dickey's Charge of "Stupidity or Malice"

Editor Constitution: The students of Emory college, and a few other people, know that I am the local correspondent of The Constitution. When I first heard of Dr. Dickey's charge of "either stupidity or malice," I thought perhaps he was striking in the dark. Later, I remembered having telephoned him during commencement for information for The Constitution.

What I did do was to phone The Constitution the result of the vote of the trustees on the subject of intercollegiate athletics. The reference to the attendance, not the "enrollment," was supplied by someone familiar with the figure sent out some weeks before, by the students' committee. Extracts from that letter concerning the number of students in the college at the time were published in both The Constitution and The Journal, unchallenged.

If I am stupid, it probably grows out of the fact that I believe a limited amount of intercollegiate athletics, with proper faculty surveillance, would help Emory college.

As for malice, if I am acquainted with my own heart, I haven't a bit of it, not even toward those whose views differ from mine.

As for Emory college, there is no greater school in southern Methodism. It is my deliberate opinion that no college in Georgia is doing better work. I am not alarmed over the attendance, or the enrollment, for, with our present teaching force, in some departments, we have as many students as we can handle to the best advantage.

WIGHTMAN F. MELTON,
Professor of English, Emory College.

Attendance Referred To.

In the letter written to The Constitution by President James E. Dickey, to which Dr. Melton refers in his card, Dr. Dickey took occasion to brand the statement that "the attendance has dropped within the past few years from over 300 to slightly over 200," as based upon either malice or stupidity, and submitted figures on the college enrollment running back to 1907-08.

His figures were as follows:

Enrollment for 1907-08	265
Enrollment for 1908-09	270
Enrollment for 1909-10	313
Enrollment for 1910-11	297
Enrollment for 1911-12	259
Enrollment for 1912-13	267

About six weeks before the close of the past collegiate year the intercollegiate committee of the student body sent out letters to the trustees, the faculty and all alumni whose addresses were known, in which the statement was made that the attendance at the college at that time was barely over 200, and as a remedy for this, a system of intercollegiate athletics was asked.

It was upon this letter, a copy of which was mailed to President Dickey, that the statement in The Constitution was based. The letter had been previously published in The Constitution and other papers.

The students did not name this as the enrollment of the college, but as the actual attendance, and they stated that there were at that time 214 men in the college, of whom nineteen were sub-freshmen, four post-graduates and several theological students not in the regular college classes.

The statement in The Constitution's report about the decrease in number of the student body was not based upon the enrollment for the collegiate year of 1912-13, but upon unchallenged figures of the actual attendance at the college near the close of the year.

FOUR ANNIVERSARY BANQUETS IN WEEK, MINISTER'S RECORD

Four anniversaries in one week, every one of them as high as the fiftieth year, make the unique record of an Atlanta minister, Rev. Dr. G. A. Beattie, who has been in the city a few days ago from his trip to the north. Every one of the anniversaries was celebrated with an elaborate banquet or reception.

On June 9, at Union college, Schenectady, N. Y., the class of '63, of which Dr. Beattie was a member, celebrated its fiftieth anniversary with a banquet. The next day his fraternity, Delta Upsilon, celebrated its seventy-fifth anniversary at a banquet gathering, at which 100 men sat down together.

The one hundred and seventeenth anniversary of the founding of Union college was celebrated on the day following, June 11, and here a banquet of 850 men took place. At the graduation exercises on this day Dr. Beattie was awarded the degree of doctor of divinity by his alma mater.

He then caught the first train for Muncie, Ind., where the seventy-fifth anniversary was celebrated by the First Presbyterian church, of which Dr. Beattie was pastor for seven years, leaving the pastorate, however, thirty-four years ago for four years. From June 11 to 14, the celebration continued, finishing up with a big reception on the night of the 14th. With this unique record of good times, it was a smiling face indeed that Dr. Beattie presented on his return to Atlanta.

FATHER CASSERLY WILL CELEBRATE FIRST MASS

Rev. John J. Casserly, a native of Ireland, and a former teacher at Marist college, will celebrate his first mass at 10 o'clock today at Sacred Heart church. He will give his blessing after the mass.

Father Casserly has come here from the diocese of Galveston, where he was formally ordained on June 15. He is detailed to Sacred Heart church in Houston, Tex.

Many Atlanta Catholics who attended Marist college remember Father Casserly very pleasantly. He taught at that institution during 1908-09.

LEADING LAW FIRMS HAVE JOINED FORCES

Of especial interest in legal circles is the announcement that two of the leading law firms of Atlanta have joined forces, under the firm name of Rosser, Brandon, Slaton & Phillips. They will begin operation with offices on the west end of the seventh floor of the Grant building, on July 1.

Associated with the firm will be Luther Z. Rosser, Morris Brandon, John M. Slaton, Benjamin Z. Phillips, J. H. Porter, J. S. Hopkins, L. Z. Rosser, Jr., V. B. Moore, J. J. Ragan and James J. Slaton.

Governor-elect Slaton has been in the practice of law for twenty-six years, and with his partner, Mr. Phillips, has a clientele which he desires preserved. During nine teen years the firm has been known as Slaton & Phillips.

Mr. Slaton will have no connection with the firm made by the combination of his firm and that of Rosser & Brandon, and will in no wise be connected with the practice of law, nor will he have any participation in the earnings of the firm during his term of office.

CROWING OF ROOSTER HELD TO BE NUISANCE

Philadelphia, June 21.—The crowing of a rooster which the complainant declared interrupted his sleep and rest was held to be a nuisance that should be suppressed in an opinion filed today by Judge McMichael in common pleas court here. The court declared that "if a man desires to have a rooster and hens he should remove them to the country and let the city residents sleep in peace."

To Abolish Franks.

Washington, June 21.—The franking privilege, which costs the government millions of dollars a year, would be wiped out by a bill proposed today by Senator Kenyon. Official stamps will be issued to government officials, who would be required to give strict account of their use.

Atlantic Beach
The New City By The Sea

The wave of real summer that has spread over the country during the past week, has brought lively longings for the seaside. It has crowded Atlantic Beach and its splendid hotel with visitors, who have been revelling in refreshing breezes straight off the ocean. And by actual readings, the temperature there has been from eight to twelve degrees lower than has been recorded by the United States Weather Bureau in any southern city from which reports are published.

This splendid development of home-building is progressing rapidly. Inquiries for information and prices are being received daily from southern, northern and eastern cities, and the interest in the great undertaking is increasing and spreading.

Even the quiet of summer has failed to lessen this interest. The sales of property have long passed the hundred thousand dollar mark. Water mains, sewers, sidewalks and electric wires are spreading over the property and many of the houses, begun in March and April, are occupied by satisfied owners.

It is a good place to see.
It is a good place to live the year around or for the months of vacation time. Come or write us for full information.

Great preparations are being made for the midsummer holidays at the Atlantic Beach Hotel, and the Fourth will last a week there. A great many reservations have been made for that week already. Don't delay to make yours.

Medlock-Hudson Wedding.

A wedding of unusual interest and beauty was that of Miss Helen Clare Medlock and Mr. John Henry Hudson, of Savannah, which occurred at the Tatnall Square Baptist church Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

The ring ceremony was performed by the bride's pastor, Rev. R. C. Granberry, assisted by Dr. John G. Harrison, of Mercer university.

The church was artistically decorated in ferns, southern smilax and hydrangeas. Before the arrival of the bridal party, Miss Julia Garstarphen sang "At Dawning," accompanied by Miss Thelma Faust, on the violin.

The wedding music was played by Miss Elizabeth Warren. Miss Marion Medlock was her sister's maid of honor and Miss Edith Roberson, of Dublin, Ga., and Miss Mabel Ford, of Jacksonville, Fla., were the bridesmaids. The groomsmen were Mr. J. W. Barnett and Mr. Hanley Jackson. Barlow and Mr. Tom Fort Sellers was best man.

The bride, who entered the church with her brother, Mr. J. Wallace Medlock, was handsomely gowned in a coat suit of copenhagen blue, with hat to match, with touches of pink, and she carried a bouquet of brides roses and valley lilies. She wore a handsome diamond and pearl La Vallière, a gift of the groom.

The bridesmaids were gowned in white silk ratine, with touches of pink, and were white picture hats, trimmed in pink and they carried bouquets of pink gladioli.

The maid of honor was dressed in pink silk ratine with trimmings of ecrue lace and pink charmeuse, with which she wore a white hat trimmed in pink roses, and she carried Killarney roses.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left for their future home in Savannah.

Mr. Hudson is a graduate of Mercer university, having been president of the class of 1912. For the past year he has been a popular professor at the Norman Institute, Norman Park, Ga.

Mrs. Hudson is a talented musician, having graduated in piano, and has been a member of the choir of the Tatnall Square Baptist church.

Many handsome presents were received by this popular couple, among which was some silver, wedding presents to the bride's grandmother, 57 years ago.

Dozier-Clements.

Mr. and Mrs. Woody Bailey Dozier announce the marriage of their daughter, Marianne, to Mr. Judson Alvin Clements, in the city of New York.

For Miss Wilkerson.

A congenial party of the younger set were delightfully entertained on Saturday evening, by Miss Marie Seymour, at her home on East Fourth street, in honor of Miss Lois Wilkerson and her guest, Miss Margaret Davis. Many old-fashioned games were played, followed by a salad course. The decorations for the occasion were field daisies and pink sweetpeas.

Special Millinery Offering for Monday

Each week we have something tempting on our millinery floor. The summer is now at its beginning and the opportunity to wear tomorrow's purchase for full three months is one big argument for your money's worth of summer millinery.

A better inducement is in the hats which present so much real value that even another season may enter into the plan of their usefulness.

One lot of about 75 spring hats, many of them imported tailored. Small sizes. All elegant and many very smart models. There are values up to $20. None less than $8.50. They go on sale tomorrow at $1.95

Unusually Attractive Shoes at Reduced Prices This Week

Several special purchases of white shoes have just been received and these, added to the lines which we have already decided to discontinue, make the size range complete. The details are, in a word, simply this: We have 16 smart, new, up-to-date styles of white canvas and white buckskin colonials, pumps, button and lace Oxfords at $1.95 a pair. They were formerly sold at $3.00, $3.50, $4.00, and two styles at $5.00.

At $2.45, we have picked out 12 of our newest and best selling white low shoes; these were also sold as high as $5.00 a pair. Some of them are genuine white buckskin and you know you cannot buy them for less than $5.00 a pair anywhere. At $1.95 and $2.45 the sizes are a little broken and some of the shoes are a little soiled from being handled, but you can clean white shoes now easier than black ones and we will send them out in first-class condition.

All of our former $6.00 white shoes are now $5.00 a pair, the $4.50 styles now $4.00, the $4.00 styles $3.50, and the $3.50 styles $3.00, and so on; so if you cannot get fitted in the $1.95 or $2.45 lot you can depend on getting something at a sharp reduction.

White Canvas or White Buckskin Rubber Sole Oxfords, $3.50, $4.50. Formerly $5 and $6

We have also added several lots to the gun metal, patent leather, tan Russia calf and black satin pumps which we had on sale last week at $3.50. These were formerly $5.00 values, so you need not wait longer to buy shoes at a reduced price. We also have several new styles at $2.45, gun metal, patent, tan and black satin. Let us urge you to shop early on account of the clerks going to dinner around 11:30 and 12 o'clock. It naturally makes it hard to give each one the individual attention we would like to, if you wait until 11:30 or 12 o'clock.

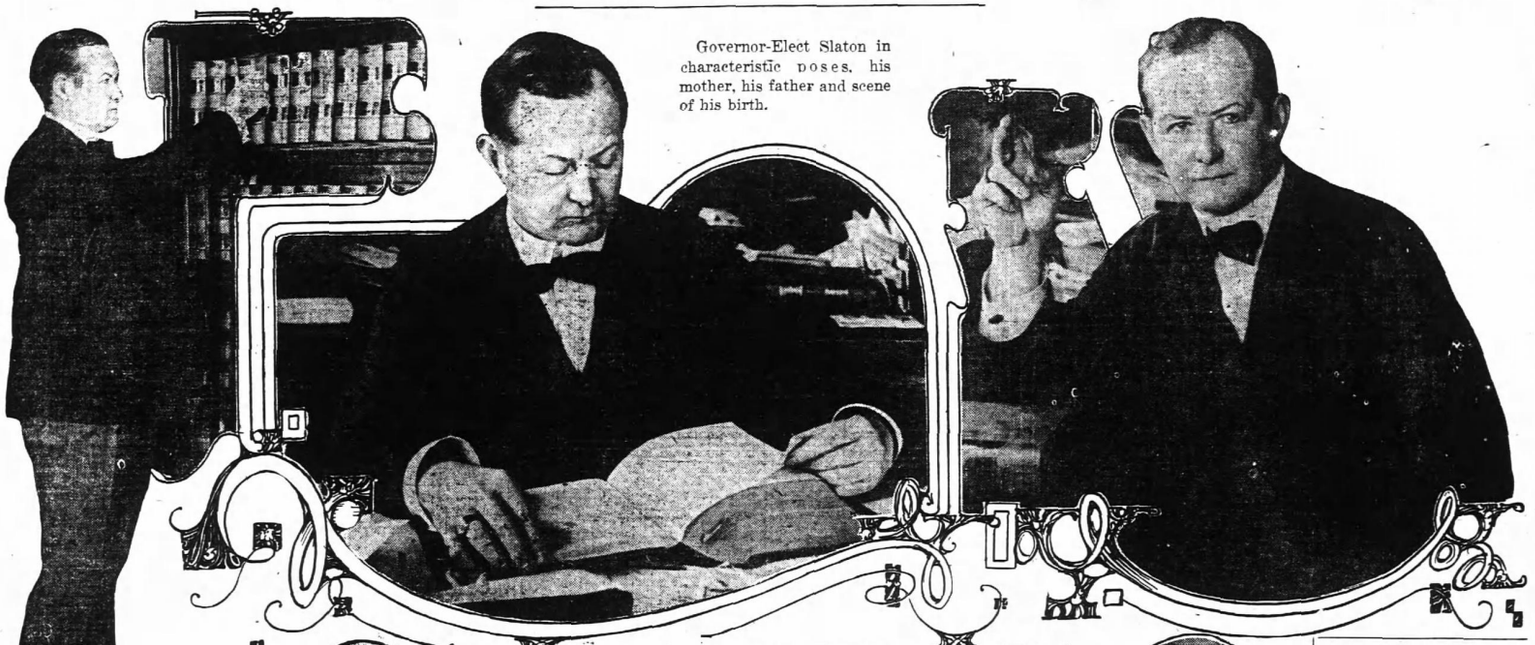
"Slaton's Proverbial Luck" Analyzed, Means: Eternally Sticking to It Day and Night



Governor-Elect Slaton in characteristic poses, his mother, his father and scene of his birth.

By T. B. Conner.

It was the first of the Roman emperors who one day had all of his court flatterers ransacking the Latin dictionaries of their time for a new title to annex to his name—he already had a hat full of the most high-sounding name prefixes he could find—and who finally selected Felix as the adjective that to him most satisfactorily described the glories he had achieved.

If we render the little Latin word by the good Anglo-Saxon term, lucky, and that is as accurate a translation as any other, it would probably convey the best idea of the impression made upon the casual observer by the life of the man who is to be inaugurated governor of Georgia next Saturday. Lucky in business, lucky in politics, lucky in love, John M. Slaton has not only never known the bitterness of defeat, but has not even had to feel the twinge of a single temporary setback in the onward march of a uniformly brilliant and successful career.

Has Good Will Of Whole People.

It would be hard to find in the story of any other of the remarkable public men whose achievements have illumined the history of the state, one who has swept all obstacles in the pathway to eminence before him with such apparent ease as our next chief executive. Coming to the gubernatorial office early in middle life from one of the largest and most lucrative law practices in the metropolis of the state, after an election so triumphant as to have been almost unanimous, he will carry with him the good will of the whole people regardless of former animosities and factional alignments.

But whatever fairy godmother may have presided over Mr. Slaton's birth, and however generous she may have been in the gifts of fortune and fame, it would be absurd to insinuate that such a career as he has shaped for himself could have been built on so insubstantial a basis as that of mere luck. That will never explain it. The ambitious youth who seeks an example for emulation in the life of John M. Slaton will find no will-o'-the-wisp, haphazard luck or chance as the open sesame to the mystery of his success, but rather plain work, work prolonged, work of the hardest kind, and pertinacity in aim.

Graduates at 13 From High School.

At 20 young Slaton had accomplished more of real hard work than the average man of double his years. True, he was fortunate in having a father who was one of the best educators in the state, and who, recognizing the genius and capacity for work of his son, set him forward in his studies at an earlier age than most boys. But what other lad of 13 could have graduated at the high school in Atlanta at the head of his class?

And this was only the beginning. After leaving the high school the boy went to work and in three years' time had accumulated sufficient money to pay all of his expenses at the state university, where the next three years were spent. So valuable had he made his services to his employer that he was offered an increase in pay of $50 per month, if he would continue at work rather than go to college.

But it was part of the lad's early matured purpose to secure a good academic education and then to study for the bar. He entered the sophomore class at Athens in the fall of 1883, and from the beginning took a lead in all the activities of the university, social and otherwise. He was a member of the Chi Phi fraternity and of the Phi Kappa literary society. So easily did he assume the head of his class, notwithstanding the extra studies he took on in his pursuit of the master of arts degree, that his classmates said that Jack had the faculty working overtime to keep up with him. His class was the largest that had been at the university up to his time.

Admitted to Bar in 1888.

Immediately after his graduation he entered the law office of Hopkins & Glenn in Atlanta to prepare himself for his chosen profession, and was admitted to the bar in 1888. For a year or two longer he continued to work in the firm, and, in 1890, so capable had he already proved himself in handling difficult litigation that he was taken into partnership by his mentor in the law, the late J. T. Glenn, the firm name being Glenn & Slaton. Subsequently the firm became Glenn, Slaton & Phillips, and on the senior partner's death some years ago it was made Slaton & Phillips, the firm of the present day.

With his appearance in the legislature as a member of the house of representatives from Fulton county in 1896, the political career of the future governor may be said to have begun. For seventeen consecutive years he served as a member of the general assembly, thirteen in the house and four in the senate.

The governor-elect's course as a member of the general assembly is so well known to the people of Georgia that it need not be dwelt upon here. For seven years of his service in the house he acted as chairman of the general judiciary committee, the most important committee of that body. During the last four years he was speaker.

So satisfactory was his conduct as the presiding officer of the house that, when he was transferred to the senate in 1909 he was, by general acclamation, chosen president of that branch, and continued in the chair during the four years of his service, with the exception of the brief interim during which he acted as governor.

As a presiding officer it seems to be the consensus of those who sat under him that Mr. Slaton has rarely had an equal and probably never a superior in the history of the state. His decisions were hardly ever brought into question and never once overruled for the entire eight years that he sat in the chair of the two houses.

Decides Sharply Disputed Points.

Often he was called upon to determine sharply disputed points. Factional rancor was at its height and partisan alignment had reached the degree of personal animosity. Particularly was this true in the bitterly contested parliamentary battles that arose in the house over the passage of the prohibition law in 1907, and in the senate over the suspension from office of Railroad Commissioner Guyton McLendon by Governor Hoke Smith in 1908. It was generally known on which side of the conflict Mr. Slaton's sympathies lay, but no one ever once thought of impugning the perfect fairness of his rulings from the chair.

How he was elected governor last year, easily distancing both of his competitors without ever leaving his office, while they were exercising themselves strenuously on the stump in various parts of the state, is, of course, fresh in the memory of everybody.

Secret Of Slaton's Popularity.

If one were to inquire into the secret of the new governor's popularity he would find it in his rare gifts of social intercourse, the outward expression of a heart that beats warm within him in love for its fellow-man. This warmth of feeling impresses all who meet him, even casual acquaintances; but the impression grows with better knowledge, and his most ardent friends are those who have known him best and longest. That is why his most vociferous rooters last year were found in the ranks of his classmates and college friends. They will always be united for the Jack Slaton of their student days, no matter what the office he may aspire to. That is why fully 90 per cent of those who had served with him in the legislature were also his supporters at the polls. They knew him best. That was all.

If it is the secret of Mr. Slaton's success that is sought, that will be found, after allowing, of course, for his extraordinary gifts of mind and heart, in persistent, hard work. He knows what he wants and he goes right down after it with all his force of mind and body, no matter what the cost in time or labor may be. His power of concentration and directness of aim frequently furnish surprises to his most intimate associates. When he is unraveling the intricacies of a difficult case in his private office he frequently works for hours at a stretch running down authorities, and the shriek of the neighboring dinner whistles altogether fails to reach his ear. Then he will be reminded some time about the middle of the afternoon by his partner or office employes that he has not dined. He takes time to snatch a chicken sandwich and a glass of milk from a nearby lunch counter, and is back at his study again.

Slaton a Man Without Angles.

John M. Slaton is a man without angles. He is, about as nearly as it is possible for a human being to be, exactly what he seems. With friendly feelings towards all, if he has any tricks and devious devices, his intimates have never been able to find them. His modesty is well known. Never for an instant has his head been turned by the honors that have come to him in such rapid succession. If evidence were wanting to show his freedom from vanity and conceit, it might be found in the fact that, when the responsibilities of the governorship were thrust upon him by accident for a brief period about two years ago, he would not think of allowing himself to be called governor, but only acting governor.

If he were himself asked to give an account of his advancement in life he would probably put himself down as the smallest factor in it. He attributes much of his political success to his wife, a woman whose social gifts are as widely recognized as his own, and who is herself a politician of no mean order. His early start in life he lays at the door of his parents, who took the greatest pains with his early training, and of whom he is very proud.

In his political creed Mr. Slaton is a democrat of the old school. He is a firm believer in individual opportunity, and holds that, generally speaking, that people is best governed which is least governed. He is above all an optimist, having a deeply planted faith in the future of Georgia, and the ability of her children to work out their own destiny along lines of real progress and high civic improvement.

Law Is Hobby Of New Governor.

If he may be said to have a hobby it is for the law. Passionately devoted to his profession, he has never allowed anything to interfere with this business of his life. Politics has so far been his diversion rather than the serious occupation of his mind. He has been trying cases in court almost every day since he was elected. Right up to the moment when he will be compelled to drop his law practice to assume the functions of governor, his time will be occupied with the litigation in which he is interested as counsel. As a result he has built up one of the most lucrative law practices in the state, and it is at great personal sacrifice that he is going into the state's service.

No sketch of the new governor would seem complete, or indeed be satisfactory to him without some mention of his parents, although they, too, stand in no need of introduction to the people of Atlanta. His father, Major W. F. Slaton, was for thirty years superintendent of the public school system of this city and a main factor in its development, having been succeeded in office by his son, the present superintendent, William M. Slaton. Major Slaton is still living in retirement here, one of Atlanta's most highly honored and respected citizens. The mother of the incoming governor, before her marriage Miss Nancy Martin, was a true woman of the old southern school with all the significance which that carries in graces and refinement. She passed out of life some years ago, and her memory is the most deeply cherished possession of her children and friends. The new governor's ancestry on both sides is of the best southern stock.

The attention of Mr. Slaton's admirers has been often called to the part which the figure six seems to play in the revolving cycle of his life. Born in the country in Meriwether county on Christmas day, 1866, he was graduated from the state university in 1886, and he began his political career in the legislature in 1896. In 1916 they are asking, what—

Well, it is too early to forecast what will be in store for the new governor in 1916. That he will make good as governor his friends have every confidence. That his fortune's star has not deserted him, and will not, they are equally sure. They are also equally positive in the assertion that he has not yet reached the acme of his political course, and that higher honors yet are awaiting him. We shall see.

WILL FIRE ARMOR FOR FLAYING BOY

Husband of Temperance Lecturer Will Be Summarily Dismissed as Head of Georgia Industrial Home.

Macon, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Because he whipped a 10-year-old boy at the Georgia Industrial home until the blood welts could be seen through the rents of his clothing, simply because the boy had picked blackberries fifteen minutes longer than he had been told to, W. F. Armor, farm superintendent of the Georgia Industrial home, will be summarily dismissed from his position by A. Harris, superintendent of the home.

Armor is the husband of Mary Harris Armor, the well-known temperance lecturer, and his action in beating the little fellow so unmercifully has aroused no little indignation in Macon. According to the story of the boy, who is Marvin Williford, formerly of Fitzgerald, he was beaten first with a big switch and then, when that was worn out a plow line was brought into play. Following the whipping the boy ran away from the home and was picked up on Broadway by a policeman, who took him to headquarters. The story caused Chief of Police Chapman to communicate with Mayor Moore, and it was decided not to return the boy to the officials of the industrial home, and when Armor called for the lad he was refused.

Superintendent Harris was not aware of what had occurred until informed by a newspaper man. He stated that he would at once investigate. From Armor he is said to have learned that the boy had been given a whipping, and then an examination of the boy himself convinced him that the whipping had indeed been an unmerciful one.

"The only explanation I can give," said Dr. Harris today, "is that Armor lost his head completely. The boys are rather trying sometimes, and he probably didn't realize that he was whipping him so hard. We are going to get a new farm superintendent, and there will be an order given that the boys are to be punished in some other way in the future."

In giving his side of the case, Armor said:

"I did not use a plow line on the boy. I merely whipped him with a piece of rope in the field, and carried him to the house and used a switch. I did not mean to be brutal or mistreat him.

"The boy disobeyed me. Some time ago I told him not to go in swimming, and he went anyway. I whipped him for that, and yesterday, when he went blackberrying, I told him only to stay a certain length of time, and he remained away longer. In the interest of discipline I thought he deserved another whipping, and I gave it to him."

39 Cars of Peaches.

Macon, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Up to today's log-nine cars of peaches have been shipped from Georgia to the northern and eastern markets. This is by no means as many as had gone forward up to this time last year, but considering the fact that there is less than half a crop, the showing is not so bad.

The peaches are ripening fast now and the big orchards around Byron, Fort Valley and Marshallville are fairly seething with the pickers and packers. It is stated that the growers are receiving $2 a crate in the car, and they are well satisfied with the price.

Holmes' Shortage $11,517.

Macon, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Mayor Moore today received the official report of the auditors who checked up the office of former city marshal W. S. Holmes, who recently resigned when a shortage was found in his accounts. Since then he has been indicted by the grand jury.

The report shows a shortage of $11,517. As Holmes was only under $10,000 bond it will be up to him to make up the balance of the shortage, which he states he will do.

Cop Weighs 334 Pounds.

Macon, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Lieutenant C. B. Drew, of the Macon police department, weighs 334 pounds, which is some weight, even for a policeman.

Recently Lieutenant Drew has been suffering with a game leg, which has made it almost impossible to get around, and has caused him no end of suffering. Physicians who have examined him declare that the whole trouble is caused by the weight on the leg, straining one of the nerves. Lieutenant Drew will leave tomorrow for Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore to see what solution the experts there advice.

WITH DOORS GUARDED LEGISLATORS WORK

"Regular" Democrats of Tennessee Pass Election Law Over Governor's Veto.

Nashville, Tenn., June 21.—In the Tennessee house of representatives today a number of extra sergeants at arms were appointed, the doors guarded and the bill amending the election law suddenly called up and passed over the governor's veto, 54 to 18. The effort to pass the bill over the veto was undertaken by the "regular" democrats during the absence of a quorum. The amendment in that shape is now pending before the supreme court.

The election law amendment transfers the control of the state election machinery from the fusionists to the "regular" democrats and to prevent its passage over the governor's veto, was one of the main causes of the recent fusion filibuster to Middlesboro, Ky. The amendment was called up this morning just after the house had passed the bill providing for short term loans to care for the state debt. Fusionists were prevented from securing a quorum by the extra sergeants-at-arms at the barred doors.

In the pending question over the election law amendment, the "regular" democrats have heretofore relied upon the fact that the house journal had not been allowed to show the lack of a quorum, when the effort was made to pass the measure over the governor's veto during the filibuster, certain of the filibusterers than being counted as simply "not voting." The amendment has passed the senate in due form.

What bearing today's action will have on the pending litigation is not yet apparent. The action threatened to provoke a storm in the house, but resulted in only impassioned speeches.

Both houses of the legislature today passed bills providing for short term notes to care for the $11,000,000 state debt due this year and amending the refunding act. The amendment provides that the state funding board shall not sell the new forty-year 4 per cent bonds for less than par.

WOMEN ARE KNOCKED AS DRIVERS OF AUTOS

Bridgeport, Conn., June 21.—Mrs. Isabel H. Woodford today was exonerated by the coroner of criminal responsibility for the death of William Steinhauser, who was killed by an automobile driven by her on June 3. Mrs. Woodford is the widow of Stewart L. Woodford, former ambassador to Spain.

Coroner Phelan took occasion in the finding to express "grave doubt whether women in a large degree are temperamentally fitted physically equipped for driving high powered machines in populous places."

He said that while in this case the driver acquitted herself with the necessary skill, he has "a conviction that situations and emergencies frequently rise when make-line, rather than feminine, skill and judgment in the management of a machine is required for the protection of life and limb in public places."

JUDGE HENRY C. JONES GOES INTO THE BEYOND

Last Surviving Member of Confederate Congress—Leader in Alabama Politics.

Montgomery, Ala., June 21.—Judge Henry C. Jones, 94 years old, died at his home at Florence, Ala., at 1 o'clock this morning. He was the last surviving member of the confederate congress, although, prior to the breaking out of hostilities he was the leading anti-secessionist of the state. He was a prominent member of the state legislature prior to the war, and voted against secession in the Alabama legislature, carrying his opposition so far as to refuse to sign the ordinance after it had overwhelmingly passed.

While still opposing secession, he was elected a member of the confederate congress when it was a one-chamber body in Montgomery. When the congress was removed to Richmond, the senate chamber was added. Judge Jones was a member of the congress that provided the form of government for "the storm cradled nation that fell."

Judge Jones was very intimate with Jefferson Davis, and accompanied him on a number of his political speaking tours. When the war broke out he engaged in the manufacture of clothing for the soldiers, and for many years after the war he was the leading attorney of the state. He was a prominent figure in Alabama politics both before and after the war and held many positions of honor and trust. He was always a dominating figure in democratic conventions, but of recent years his infirmities removed him from the fields of activity.

Judge Jones was born in Franklin county, this state, and lived all his life in what is known as the Tennessee Valley, the major portion of his life being spent in Lauderdale county. For two-thirds of a century he was a conspicuous figure in public life in that valley, and was considered a fine exponent of the high minded, courageous and aggressive public men of the old south.

BLOODHOUNDS TRAIL WRECKERS OF TRAIN

Natchez, Miss., June 22.—Bloodhounds working with a large force of deputy sheriffs, railroad men and citizens were employed in a search up the trail of the men responsible for the derailment last night of a northbound passenger train of the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley railroad near McNair, Miss. None of the passengers or trainmen was injured when five coaches of the train left the rails as the result of striking an obstruction believed to have been placed on the track for the purpose of wrecking and robbing the train. An investigation showed that a number of cross ties securely bound together had been fastened to the rails.

HIS HANDS TIED, HE QUITS OFFICE

U. S. Attorney McNab Resigns, Alleging Attorney General Is Interfering to Protect White Slavers.

San Francisco, June 21.—Charging that United States Attorney General McReynolds had ordered what he considered "fatal delays" in the prosecution of four men indicted by federal grand juries, United States District Attorney John L. McNab, of this city, tendered his resignation by telegraph to President Wilson last night, with a request that it be accepted by the same quick method of communication. Mr. McNab made public today the text of his telegram to the president, together with a message sent to the attorney general.

The Message to Wilson.

The message to the president follows:

"Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, Washington, D. C.: I have the honor to tender my resignation as United States attorney for the northern district of California to take effect immediately. I am ordered by the attorney general, over my protest, to postpone until autumn the trials of Maury Diggs and Andrew Caminetti, indicted for a hideous crime, which has ruined the girls and shocked the moral sense of the people of California, and this after I have advised the department of justice that attempts had been made to corrupt the government witnesses and friends of the defendants are publicly boasting that the wealth and political prominence of the defendants' relatives will procure my hand to be stayed through influence at Washington.

"In these cases two girls were taken from cultured homes, bullied and frightened into going to a foreign state and were ruined and debauched by the defendants, who abandoned their wives and infants to commit the crime.

"On receipt of the attorney general's telegram I prepared my resignation to take effect at the conclusion of the trial of the Western Fuel directors and the J. C. Wilson stock brokers cases, both of which I had instituted and which I wished to bring to a successful conclusion. Before I could send my resignation I received another telegram from the department ordering me to postpone the case against certain defendants of the Western Fuel company and not to try them unless ordered by the department.

In Humiliation of Spirit.

"In bitter humiliation of spirit I am compelled to acknowledge what I have heretofore indignantly refused to believe, namely, that the department of justice is yielding to influence which will cripple and destroy the usefulness of this office. I cannot consent to occupy this position as a mere automaton and have the guilt or innocence of rich and powerful defendants which have been indicted by unbiased grand juries on overwhelming evidence determined in Washington on representations on behalf of the defendants without notice to me.

"I am unable to convey to the department the understanding of the serious situation in which this action will leave this office. If the department in future has to review findings of grand juries and nullify their indictments, then this office might as well be abolished, for its functions will cease to have exist.

"Neither my sense of public duty can permit me thus to destroy the prestige of this office.

"With profound respect and regret that such a step is necessary, I have the honor, in view of my absolute inability to agree with the department, to ask that I be, by wire, immediately relieved from duty in order that the department of justice may be permitted to carry out its policy in these cases without future obstruction by me. JOHN L. M'NAB."

Says Defendants Will Escape.

The message to Attorney General McReynolds is similar in import:

"I am profoundly convinced," it says, "that the action taken will destroy the prestige and ruin the usefulness of this office and result in the ultimate escape from punishment of certain of these defendants. I have notified you that it is publicly charged in this state that the prosecution of the Diggs-Caminetti cases would be stopped by appeals to Washington. In the meantime corruption and subornation of perjury will weaken and destroy the cases long before autumn is here."

The white slavery cases against Drew Caminetti and Maurys Diggs have attracted widespread attention because of the prominence of the defendants' families. Caminetti is a son of A. Caminetti, recently appointed commissioner general of immigration by President Wilson. Diggs is a nephew of former State Senator Marshall Diggs, of this state, and is a man of wealth and strong political connections. The two are charged with having violated the Mann white slave act in eloping to Reno, Nev., with two Sacramento girls of the high school age. Both Diggs and Caminetti have wives and families.

Robert Bruce and Sidney V. Smith, of San Francisco, are the Western Fuel company directors whom United Attorney McNab sought to bring to trial without delay. They and others of the Western Fuel company are charged with having defrauded the government of hundreds of thousands of dollars of customs duties on imported coal through a conspiracy entered into with steamship and customs officials by which weight records were falsified.

NO ICE AT CINCINNATI BECAUSE OF STRIKE

Cincinnati, June 21.—The ice supply, affected by a strike of employes of ice manufacturers, was so limited here today that the ordinary consumer could obtain it only by presenting a physician's certificate to the municipal supply stations, stating that it was wanted for the sick. The strikers are supplying hospitals, while the breweries are taking care of hotels and cafes.

Some relief was in sight today after Mayor Hunt received word that, in answer to his appeals, Danville, Ky., would furnish 300 tons daily and that several carloads of ice were on their way here from northern Ohio cities.

PLAYING WITH SHOTGUN, HE SHOT GRANDPARENTS

Twelve-Year-Old Boy Killed His Grandfather and Fatally Wounded Grandmother.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 21.—Benjamin F. Hull, 65, a prosperous farmer of Dover Center, near here, was instantly killed and his wife was probably fatally wounded by their 12-year-old grandson, Leroy F. Reisinger, of Elyria, late today.

The boy was playing with a shotgun which he did not know was loaded and pulled the triggers. The greater part of the charge of shot struck his grandfather in the head. Part of the charge took effect in Mrs. Hull's right side and face, destroying the sight of one eye.

Neither of the old people saw the boy playing with the gun, and as they fell wounded the boy ran screaming to the home of a neighbor, stating that his grandparents had been wounded by the explosion of some cartridges placed on the stove. Later Sheriff Smith closely questioned young Reisinger, who finally confessed the story of the shooting. The killing is held by the authorities to have been accidental.

Stabs Self to Death.

Starke, Fla., June 21.—Earl Culbreath, traveling representative of a New York commission house, committed suicide in a hotel here today by stabbing himself several times with a knife. He left notes addressed to his brother and mother.

Kidney and Liver Ills

Mr. L. C. Figg of Chicago, Ill., says, owing to kidney and liver trouble, he was so run down that he had to quit work. Now he writes:

"Last Spring I was in poor health, my system was run down and debilitated. Cause, liver and kidney trouble. I lacked energy and ambition to do my work and felt that I must have a change and rest. I was advised to give a trial. I found it so effective that in two months I was a well man. I cannot praise it too highly." Lewis C. Figg. Wychmere House, Chicago, Ill.

FREE Medical Counsel and Advice

Dr. Hathaway & Co.

(INCORPORATED.)

Persons who are sick will find it to their advantage to consult the well-known specialists, Dr. Hathaway & Co., who make no charge for examination and counsel.

COMPETENCY. There is no department of life in which experience counts for more or is more important than in the practice of medicine. Before placing your case in the hands of a specialist, investigate his fitness for the undertaking. Be sure you will get honest business methods, conscientious advice and the proper professional skill.

VAST EXPERIENCE. Dr. Hathaway & Co. have had upwards of a quarter of a century training in the practice of their specialty, and with this large and valuable experience they offer the very best possible to be had. They have successfully treated in that time all manner of chronic and private diseases. They have had private hospital and sanitarium experience, and their aim has been to give the best possible to be had for their patients, and to that, but they have been in this community for many, many years, and are still young enough to appreciate and put in force new ideas.

HONEST METHODS. Dr. Hathaway & Co. do not make misstatements; they do not say one thing to a patient and do another. Their charges are moderate and medicines are furnished at cost. This by long since earned the reputation of always being frank and honest with their patients, and nothing has made them prouder than the fact that they are referred to by many who have consulted them as men who will give them honest, conscientious advice and opinions.

EXAMINATION FREE. In order that sick men and women may judge for themselves without expense, Dr. Hathaway & Co. make it an invariable rule to charge nothing for examination. Anyone can call on them to be examined, and all questions they wish, be instructed what to do for their trouble, with every assurance that no charge will result. They have without question the best equipped medical offices for the examination as well as the treatment of invalids. X-Ray appliances, Violet Rays, Static, Faradic and Galvanic electricity, Vibratory apparatus and the use of all of these is free to all callers for examination and treatment if they should take treatment. You or any of your friends can avail yourself of this privilege at any time.

DR. GAULT, who is now associated with us, was formerly with us about eight years ago. The doctor has won a reputation in the treating and curing of diseases of men that is excelled by no other physician in this line, and it is for this reason that he is in charge of this company today. Dr. Gault was one of the first physicians in this section to start advertising and begin the use of the "606" treatment. He has given over seven hundred treatments of the "606" and the "914." If you are suffering from specific blood poison, there is no better treatment than this. The doctor has thoroughly demonstrated this in numbers and numbers of cases, for he has been using the treatment for practically two years, and time has proven that the contra-indications and the dangers of the administrations of the "606" have been built on the bogie-man. All sorts of dangers and bad effects have been attributed to the drug, but time has shown the mistake of accepting these reports without investigation, and competent specialists no longer mention such dangers as blindness or deafness and death, for they don't occur from the use of this drug. Such reports have been now recognized as false or else due to faulty observations by those not posted upon the subject. Dr. Gault considers that there are practically no contra-indications for this drug after two years' experience, and in only a small portion of cases is it necessary to administer any other treatment.

CHRONIC DISEASES AND THEIR SPECIALTY. Dr. Hathaway & Co. will be glad to see at their office or have a letter from any man or woman who suffers from any disease that has baffled the skill of others. If you are afflicted, we cordially invite you to call and fully investigate our methods, and after we have gone over the case carefully and explained to you just what your trouble is and what we can do for you, if you are not entirely satisfied that you will receive not only honest business methods, but conscientious professional service and a cure for your disease, you will not be expected to take treatment.

THE DISEASES WE TREAT. We cure all chronic and private diseases of both men and women. SUCH AS INDIGESTION, DYSPEPSIA, PILES, FISTULA, FISSURE, CARCOSE VEINS, NERVOUS EXHAUSTION, LOST VITALITY, BLOOD POISON, KIDNEY AND BLADDER AFFECTIONS, CATARRH, OR ANY OTHER SPECIAL CHRONIC TROUBLE.

MOLE BURNED AND ITCHED

So Could Not Rest. Could Not Stand Anything to Touch It. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Route No. 1, Box 59, Muldoon, Tex.—"My sister had a mole on her back between her shoulders. It got to be a large knot and was red and angry all around it. It burned and itched and hurt her so she could not rest day or night. It got so bad we had to cut out her clothes in the back. She could not stand anything to touch it. It grew to be as large as a bird's egg. It was for this size a month, getting worse all the time. We thought it was a cancer. A friend said to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. We washed the mole with the Cuticura Soap and anointed it with the Cuticura Ointment three times a day. Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured the mole.

"My cousin had scald head. It was a yellow scab all over his head which itched all the time. All of his hair came out. It looked just like he had wet his head and rolled it in meal bran. It was a sight. He would keep his head tied up to keep anyone from seeing it. His whole scalp was a solid sore. He was ashamed to go anywhere his head looked so bad. We recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment, so they gave them a trial. It was not long before his head was well and he had a fine head of hair. Our two babies' heads broke out in little yellow blisters and then made sores. We tried several remedies, then we got Cuticura Soap and Ointment and used them twice a day and in two weeks they were sound and well." (Signed) Mrs. Lillie Parker, Oct. 7, 1912.

Cuticura Soap 25c and Cuticura Ointment 50c, are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

"STAY-AT-HOMES" FEAST OLD GUARD

Recent Trip to East and Reception in Northern Cities Described at Banquet on Saturday Evening.

Those members of the Old Guard Battalion of Atlanta who went on the recent patriotic journey to the large cities of the east to visit many of the most notable military commands on this continent, were highly delighted during the past week to receive invitations from the "Stay-at-Homes" of the Old Guard, to attend a reception to be given in the honor of those who went away, at the Cafe Durand last evening at 7 o'clock.

In addition to the guests of the command, a number of prominent men were invited to the reception and supper. Among these were Governor Joseph M. Brown, Governor-elect John M. Slaton, Supreme Court Judge Joseph H. Lumpkin, a former member of the Old Gate City Guard, General R. K. Evans, U. S. A., commanding the Department of the Gulf, and his aide, Colonel C. H. Barth, Colonel J. T. Van Orsdale, commanding Seventeenth Regiment, General J. Van Holt Nash, adjutant general of Georgia, Colonel E. E. Pomeroy, commanding Fifth Infantry National Guard; Clark Howell, editor Constitution; J. R. Gray, editor Journal and Foster Coates, editor Georgian.

Banquet Is Enjoyed.

At 7 o'clock the members of the Old Guard and their guests sat down to a sumptuous spread at the Cafe Durand, and began an evening of rare jollification and pleasure.

Colonel George M. Napier, who was selected by the committee as toastmaster, presided.

Colonel F. J. Paxon, being called upon, delivered a delightful welcome to the assembled guests, and stated that the evening had been planned to show the hearty appreciation on those of the command who could not go on the recent tour for their comrades who had been able to so, and who had illustrated the reputation of Atlanta and of the south in making a visit to the independent military organizations of the east.

A number of short speeches were made, and all who did not go on the recent peaceful tour to the east enjoyed interesting bits of report of the hospitality and entertainment accorded the members of the command which represented the city of Atlanta on this tour.

Among those who spoke were Colonel J. F. Burke, commander of the Old Guard; J. R. Smith, one of Georgia's most famous business men and political managers, who was on the trip to Boston, won the sobriquet of "Reverend," Colonel J. T. Van Orsdale, U. S. A., and Colonel Pomeroy, of the Fifth Regiment.

Praise For Hospitality.

In discussing the many delightful and long-to-be-remembered incidents of their recent trip, the members of the Old Guard who went on that happy journey were loud in their praises on the lavish hospitality of the commands which entertained them, indeed, they fairly toasted their military friends of the east who rendered their tour such a complete success, from point of entertainment and enjoyment.

Among the commands mentioned whose officers and men entertained the company of the Old Guard and showered so many courtesies upon them, were the military of Washington, D. C., the Fifth Regiment of Baltimore, the Fencibles of Philadelphia and their veterans on the occasion of the centennial celebration of the organization of that command; the Seventh Regiment of New York, the Old Guard of New York, the New Haven Grays, the Foot Guard of Hartford, Conn.; the Putnam Phalanx, also of Hartford; the Boston Light Infantry, C. A. C., and their veterans, the E. W. Kinsman, U. S. A., B. of Boston, the Ancient and Honorable Artillery of Boston, and the Georgia Hussars, of Providence, which accorded unstinted hospitality to the members of the Old Guard on their arrival by ship from Boston on their return from the tour.

A letter of regret was read from Judge Joseph H. Lumpkin, at one time a lieutenant in the Gate City Guard, who proposed the health of the Old Guard, and who drank it in a glass of cold water—cold enough and pure enough to satisfy the Honorable W. J. Bryan."

Occasion a Happy One.

It was an informal evening, the members of the Old Guard appearing in fatigue uniform and without side arms. And the reception and supper were marked by entire informality. Every one was made to feel at ease, and the whole evening was spent in the fullest enjoyment by all present.

All the guests, including the favored members of the Old Guard, voted the occasion a most happy one, and the idea of having the members of the command meet in good fellowship, in order to talk over the recent visit of the Old Guard to the military of the east, was praised by all as a fitting conclusion to the recent journey, which was so highly enjoyed.

COL. PAXON NOTIFIED OF STAFF APPOINTMENT

Colonel F. J. Paxon, of Atlanta, received official notification yesterday from Governor-elect Slaton that he had been selected to serve as chief of staff for the next two years. The reappointment of Colonel Paxon will give satisfaction to both his own and the governor's friends throughout the state.

Colonel Paxon has served as Governor Brown's chief of staff throughout his two terms of office. He is one of Atlanta's best-known merchants and business men and is a former president of the local chamber of commerce.

JACKSON ASKS WILSON TO HURRY SUCCESSOR

Collector of Internal Revenue Again Sends Resignation to the President.

Henry B. Jackson, collector of internal revenue for the state of Georgia since September, 1910, when he was confirmed by the United States senate following his nomination by President Taft, and who sent his resignation to the new administration March 28, has just advised the department for a second time that he is anxious to surrender his position June 30.

Before President Taft, from whom Mr. Jackson received his appointment, went out of office the collector sent to that administration his resignation and within a few days was advised that President Taft declined to accept it. Then within the month the administration changed Collector Jackson tendered his resignation, but hearing nothing from Washington, he duplicated the paper under date of June 4, urging its acceptance, as he was completing business arrangements for the future and that he contemplated a trip abroad.

"I have had no response from my last letter," said Collector Jackson yesterday, "and am anxious to turn my place over to President Wilson's appointee, whoever he may be. I have already booked passage for myself and family for a trip abroad and it will prove decidedly inconvenient for me to remain in office after the end of the present fiscal year. My official work is now in excellent shape for a transfer at the end of the current year. On that date I can surrender a completed term. And I sincerely hope the powers that be politically will relieve me as quickly as possible."

The records in the collector's office show that the revenue receipts within the state of Georgia have increased during Collector Jackson's term of office 25 per cent, whereas the general average over the United States, as shown by reports from Washington, has been 3 per cent.

HOTEL ANSLEY.

The Hotel Ansley, Atlanta's new $1,000,000 hotel, will open for business on Monday, June 30. The guests' register will be open at 6 a. m., and the hotel will be open for public inspection and for public use at 8 p. m. The first meal will be served in the hotel from 6 to 10 p. m., being an opening Table d'Hote dinner at $2.50 per plate. The dinner will be served in the main cafe. Ratskeller and private dining rooms. Two orchestras will furnish music during the evening, and the management will distribute to the guests beautiful souvenirs of the occasion.

Those who have seen the Hotel Ansley pronounce it to be one of the most attractive and most modern hotels in America. It will compare very favorably with any hotel in Chicago, New York, or elsewhere.

The Hotel Ansley is very highly and ornately decorated. The lobby contains several very beautiful paintings on tapestry, which were executed in this country and abroad. The scenes represent many historical epochs in the history of Georgia, and in the history of Atlanta.

Many beautiful scenes taken from Atlanta's parks are also reproduced on the walls of the lobby.

The writing room contains two magnificent paintings on tapestry of Atlanta before it was burned by order of General Sherman, and a composite painting on tapestry of Atlanta after it was burned.

The main dining room is pronounced to be one of the most beautiful rooms in the United States. The architecture is purely Italian renaissance. In the panels of the dining room are a number of paintings on tapestry of famous Italian scenes and castles.

The buffet and private dining rooms, and also the parlors, are all highly decorated.

The combination convention hall, ballroom and banquet hall on the eleventh floor is two and one-half stories high. It has been pronounced by those who have seen it to be a superb room, being symmetrical in its proportions and very pleasing to the eye.

The Ratskeller, Beauty Parlor, and Billiard Room and other public departments are situated in the basement of the building. The Ratskeller is especially unique. The walls and columns are lined with three-color tapestry brick. On top of each column is an owl sitting between two steins with their eyes blinking alternately. There are sixteen panels in this room. Each panel contains the coat-of-arms of well-known Georgia colleges.

All public parts of the Hotel Ansley are fitted with mechanical arrangements whereby the air is purified and cooled in summer and purified and warmed in winter, being forced through running water by powerful fans. An immense fan is situated on top of the building 180 feet high, which empties each room of its air every two minutes.

The Hotel Ansley is beautifully furnished in solid mahogany. All carpets, draperies, burlaps and papers harmonize in color, and the chairs and sofas for the main lobby and mezzanine floor, and also the dining room, are of the most luxurious character. Beautiful pictures adorn the walls, and every effort has been made to give the hotel a homelike and inviting appearance.

The Hotel Ansley is owned by the Ansley Hotel Investment company, who will operate the hotel. J. B. Pound is President; M. A. Irwin, Secretary and Treasurer; J. F. Letton, Manager, and Charles G. Day, Assistant Manager. The management states that the Hotel Ansley will be conducted on the highest standard of service at a minimum charge.

On the second or mezzanine floor are located three well arranged committee rooms, which are for the exclusive use of the public, and the management extends a cordial invitation to the public to use the same without charge.

All the machinery, consisting of boilers, pumps, motors, etc., used in the Hotel Ansley building to operate the plant are of the latest and the boilers in triplicate.

The Hotel Ansley has its own ice and refrigerating plant, with a capacity of 14 tons of ice every day.

The kitchen equipment is the very best and most modern that money can buy, and was selected by experts. Every bit of garbage collected in the kitchen is immediately put in tin cans and placed in the garbage refrigerator, where it is frozen into solid cakes of ice and hauled away at night. Among the special and up-to-date machines in the kitchen is a potato peeler, which will peel a bushel of potatoes in half a minute—very much better and with greater saving than a person could do in half a day. The machine accomplishes this same friction.

SPECIAL INVITATION TO GEORGIANS.

It is the aim of the management of the Hotel Ansley to make it the home of all Georgians visiting Atlanta, and they are assured of the most courteous treatment. They are invited to have their mail addressed to the Hotel Ansley, even though they do not register at the hotel.

OPENING DINNER.

Reservations for the opening dinner should be made in advance. Dinner served from 6 to 10 p. m. at $2.50 per plate. Telephone Ivy 2100.

HOTEL ANSLEY TO BE CONDUCTED ON EUROPEAN PLAN.

The Hotel Ansley will be conducted on the European plan, but club breakfasts will be served in the morning from 25 cents up; noonday lunch 50 cents, and Table d'Hote Dinner for $1, from 6 to 8 p. m. The Hotel Ansley will make a specialty of, and has better facilities for serving banquets, dinners, teas, etc., than any other hotel in Atlanta, and will make a specialty of this class of restaurant business.

Nurses' Directory Established

The Atlanta Registered Nurses' club has become one of the most active of the Federated Women's organizations, their purpose not only to benefit themselves and hold together in their profession, but to benefit the public, one of the means being the establishment of a central directory. Through this directory, which will be established in a central locality and under careful direction, there will be the certainty of the nurse having qualified to do nursing up to the standard of the best, this being one of the requisites of the Registered Nurses' club.

The nurses in this central directory will be so selected that they may be secured to meet the demands of the case for which they are needed. There will be those who make a specialty of contagious cases, of children's cases, of surgical cases, or of any branch corresponding with the specialty of the physician in charge.

The Registered Nurses' club has in view, among its purposes the establishment in time of a nurses' home, with reading rooms, rest rooms and the opportunities for the restful atmosphere denied many when off professional duty, or when they themselves are ailing.

The name "Registered Nurse," indicates the fact that all bearing the title have passed the examination for efficiency required by the state board of examiners, only those having the right to sign after their name R. N.

Graduate nurses are eligible to membership in the Registered Nurses' club, also those studying with the highest aims. Application blanks and membership cards may be obtained from Miss Mamie Mobley, treasurer, Peters building, Atlanta, Ga.

Cole-Keese Wedding.

Prominent in social interest this week will be the marriage of Miss Harriet Cole and Mr. Rogers Keese, which will take place on Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. H. D. Cole, on Peachtree circle.

Little Miss Elizabeth Cole will be her sister's maid of honor. Atwood Cole and Sophie Dawes will be ribbon bearers, and the bride will enter the drawing room for the ceremony with her brother, James Howard Cole. Mr. Roy Dorsey will be best man, and Rev. Dr. Warburton will officiate.

The wedding company will be small, and an informal reception will be held, after which Mr. Keese and his bride leave on a wedding trip.

Miss Cole has been since her debut last season one of the most popular young women in the younger set. Her beauty is of the flower-like type and she excels in the social graces. Mr. Keese is one of the most successful young men in the automobile business in Atlanta, and he has many friends to congratulate him.

Tribble-Dick.

One of the most noteworthy weddings in Georgia this season was that of Miss Ruth Tribble, of Athens, and Mr. Samuel K. Dick, of Atlanta, which took place last Thursday in Athens. A brilliant church ceremonial, it was followed by a reception which assembled not only the social life of Athens, but a large delegation from Atlanta, but many guests from other southern cities.

The ceremony took place at twilight with a handsome church decoration of palms and Easter lilies forming the background for the bridal group, the bride and her attendants presenting a striking array of beautiful young womanhood.

The reception combined the picturesque charm of hospitality indoors and al fresco. The garden, walled in with pine and spruce trees, was brilliantly lighted and supper was served the guests at small tables.

At the bride's table besides the bride and groom were Miss Barron, of Pennsylvania; Miss Martha Phinizy, of Athens; Miss Jane Thrall, of Pennsylvania; Miss Jennie D. Harris, Miss Callie Blake Smith, of Atlanta; Mrs. S. K. Dick, Messrs. Milton Dargan, Jr., James Harris, Wimberly Peters, Jackson Dick, of Atlanta; Mr. Robert Arnold, Mr. John Welch, of Athens; Mr. Frank Martin.

The table decoration was particularly beautiful, the centerpiece a fern bordered mirror arrangement simulating a lake out of which rose a tall silver vase, showering pink roses. The detail of color was pink and white, and souvenirs for the bridesmaids were photographs of the bride in silver picture frames.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick, on their arrival in Atlanta, after their wedding trip, will occupy an attractive apartment in the Sumner, on Juniper street.

The bride, who is the daughter of Congressman and Mrs. Tribble, will be a charming acquisition in Atlanta, where she has already a large acquaintance. Combining beauty and winsomeness, she has had the advantage also of travel and the social experience of life in Washington. Mr. Dick, who graduated last week from the law school at the university, is representative of families prominent in the business and social life in Georgia, Texas and Kentucky, and he has himself the qualities for success and popularity.

Carlisle-Clardy.

Of interest to many Atlanta friends will be the wedding on Tuesday at 1 o'clock of Miss Katie Guerry Carlisle and Mr. Luther Broadus Clardy, of Laurens, S. C. The wedding will be a quiet affair, taking place at the bride's home, 655 North Boulevard, with only the relatives of the bride and groom present. Dr. John Purser, pastor of the West End Baptist church, will officiate.

Among the out-of-town guests who will be present are: Mr. Felix M. Carlisle, Jr., of Nashville; Mrs. Pearl Clardy, Mr. James Clardy, Mr. and Mrs. Wells Clardy, of Laurens, S. C.

The bridal couple will leave immediately after the wedding on a trip to Richmond, Washington, New York and other cities of the east, after which they will make their home in Laurens, S. C.

Well-Known Couple Marries.

The Cedartown News of recent date tells the story of two well-known young people as follows:

One of the most elaborate social events of the season was the marriage Wednesday at 6 o'clock of Miss Marie England to Mr. Wallace Shelby Gudgell.

The home of the bride on East avenue was a bower of daisies and ferns, yellow, white and green being used in minute detail throughout the house. Mrs. Leslie Walker played Mendelssohn's wedding march, and the little ring-bearer, James Graves Hester, nephew of the bride, entered and stood under a bank of ferns. He was followed by the bride and groom. Rev. C. C. Heard performed the ceremony.

The bride's gown was of modena crepe, with brocaded court train, touched with seeded pearls, real lace and hand-done roses. The bride was a vision of youthful beauty as she took the marriage vows. She is the youngest daughter of Dr. W. G. England and one of the most popular of Cedartown's society set.

Mr. Gudgell is the son of Dr. Franklin Preston Gudgell, of Owensville, Ky. He is prominently connected with the Cedartown Iron company, holding a responsible position with the Alabama branch.

Mrs. R. O. Pitts, Mrs. William England, Jr., and Mrs. Ollie Willingham assisted in the dining room. Misses Lena Burbank and Forrest Pitts met the guests, and the punch was served by Misses Lois Wood and Roonie Pittman. Delicious ices and cakes were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Gudgell left immediately after the ceremony for their home in Alabama.

Among the out-of-town guests were Dr. Franklin Preston Gudgell, of Owensville, Ky.; Mrs. Sidney R. Brough, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Mrs. Andrew S. Hester, of Atlanta.

Roof Garden Open.

The roof garden of the Capital City club is now open, and has proved a popular place for social gatherings during the past week. Especially after the theater have there been many parties there. Many improvements have been made in the decorations, and the flower boxes, palms and general furnishings suggest the coolness and restfulness people desire most this weather.

Rook Party.

Miss Minnie Mae Baldwin entertained forty guests at a progressive rook party Thursday afternoon at her home on North Boulevard for her guest, Miss Celeste Webber, of Spartanburg, S. C. Flowers and ferns decorated the house. Miss Mae Hall won the prize for top score, a hand-carved friendship pin. Assisting in entertaining were Miss Mae Hall, Miss Winnie Isom and Miss Mary Baldwin.

THE MOTHERS OF MEN.

The keen-eyed twentieth century has rediscovered the mother. In so doing, it has banished the halo given her by the mawkish ballad-monger and the sentimentality of the cheap playwright. For these, it has substituted a more lasting glory. It has trailed and fixed with a mathematical exactness most of the natural laws of motherhood. It has shown the mother that by following them she may become the absolute arbiter of tomorrow. In her hands is the will to decide whether they who are to face the dawn shall be pygmies or builders of pyramids. Surely, these be thoughts more urgent than the tariff or the dicta*graph or the cost of living. Con*sidering them, we may forget for a while these lesser issues.

We are led to the subject by a very remarkable essay. It is the work of Miss Ida Lee Barron, of Clinton, Ga. She is a student of the Georgia Normal and Industrial college, at Milledgeville. Her theme is "Trained Motherhood." In accordance with custom, which singles out the best theals from each branch of the University of Georgia to be read there in commencement week, she read this essay at Athens recently. It is so clear and striking, and it so unusually combines common sense and vision that we reproduce it elsewhere in full. It is a plea for the training of motherhood, not merely in the physical sense, but in the symmetrical, well-rounded meaning that pertains to a glorious, matured womanhood. An indication of how the importance of trained motherhood rests upon the consciences of the men of Georgia is that this young girl's essay received perhaps the greatest ovation of any of those delivered during the week. The men of Georgia recognize the value to the race of mothers who are prepared. That is why many of the most distinguished of them listened to this essay with solemn concentration.

Miss Barron's central argument is quickly grasped. It is that women should be educated as home-makers, that they may make efficient the hearthstone of society; that they should be educated in pedagogy, that they may rightly train children; that they should be educated from the cultural sense, that they may bear sons who can "dream dreams and see visions." She believes the school at Milledgeville is discharging all three of these functions. Certainly, no institution could address its pro*gram to a more practical end.*

We hear today much talk of eugenics. People who marry, we are told, must be healthful, that they may produce healthy children. Ancient taints must be detected and eliminated even though it be by blood and tears. The generations who wait at the gates of life must be given a clean bill, a launching free of blot or barnacle.

These ends are important. We believe they can be promoted not alone by preaching the chill and sometimes cruel creed of eugenics, but by training the mother. The girl who knows that in her frail body lurk potential criminals or geniuses or statesmen or degenerates, and who is taught her duty to her children and to society—is likely to evolve into the type of woman who will not need the teachings of eugenics. The girl whose body is made strong and whose mind is made active and whose outlook is wholesome is not going to choose a profligate mate. That is what is meant by the training of motherhood, or to use a more satisfying term, a training for life.

We have learned finally that men are not what their fathers make them, but what their mothers make them. The old saying was, "The hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world." That is true, but also not all the truth and more sentimental than effectual.

The truth is that the mother is the prophecy of tomorrow—the *creator of to*morrow. Whether we are to have good or poor citizens depends upon—the mother. Whether we are to have a dull or an alert people depends upon—the mother. Let's be frank. We train animals with exquisite care for motherhood. How much care have we been giving the mothers of our race who bring to the sunlight of heaven immortal souls?

The theme Miss Barron chose is more important, after all, than the tariff, than currency reform, than peace or war, than poverty or riches. The right kind of children will rightly solve all these problems. Trained motherhood can produce within a very few generations a race of demigods. That is how important the subject appears to the thoughtful man.

HE'S A MASTER-BUILDER.

The University of Pennsylvania has honored itself by conferring upon George Washington Goethals the degree of doctor of laws. He was one of a batch of nine distinguished men thus singled out at the recent commencement ceremonials.

It is a fine thing to be a doctor of laws. It is a finer thing to be a master-builder. There are so few of them. And Goethals is a master-builder with a thirty-third degree station.

Folk in this country have a vague knowledge of and interest in the Panama canal. Every month, they read with more or less understanding the records of excavations. They shrug their shoulders, every now and then, and make ignorant remarks about the slides at Culebra. When they talk to foreigners, they inflate their chests and speak proudly of the money we are spending on the isthmus. A good many cities are perfecting their terminal facilities and taking other steps to reap the fruits when finally the Atlantic and the Pacific climb the big locks and mingle their waters.

And possibly one-half of one per cent of all these talkers realize the silent, unassuming genius that has made and is making the canal possible. America is big enough, of course, to have developed another engineer capable of this herculean job. We tried out several, though, and discarded them before pitching on the uncommunicative army officer.

It is to be doubted, too, if any other living engineer could have shown the rare combination of Goethal's technical skill and his almost uncanny executive ability. He is a born ruler of men—ruler, mind you, not slave driver or tyrant. He rules by suggestion and persuasion. The harsh word is unknown to him. But he gets results, for the reason that the men under him know that underlying the courteous demeanor is a steel-ribbed will, and a magical ability to scent out the shirker and the "four-flusher."

So the University of Pennsylvania does well when it makes Goethals a doctor of laws. All in all, the distinction is rather a paltry one, compared to what the man has done. But it is well for the university to let the world know that it appreciates the canal builder. And perhaps when his task is done, an intelligent government can devise some plan for more indelibly identifying him with one of the greatest achievements any nation has ever wrought in history.

CLASS DISTINCTIONS.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, gave the students at the University of Georgia and, incidentally, the people of the whole country, some wholesome advice in the baccalaureate address he recently delivered at Athens. Senator Lewis spoke to the theme of the personal equation in government and the necessity of each man taking an interest in politics, if affairs are to be administered honestly and efficiently. He is well qualified to speak with authority on this subject. Essentially a self-made man, he has come in personal contact with all the rough-and-tumble phases of politics and life. If anyone knows the American people, he should.

One of the most striking of his sentiments was the one in which he deprecated the frequent attempts to inflame class prejudice in this country. He spoke as follows:

> Let us be just, and declare as truth that our society is not divided into two parts, each arrayed against the other. It is not true that one class is captained by rich rogues and manned by traitors to liberty and enemies to justice. Nor is it true that the poor and the toilers are an army of incendiaries, captained by demagogues, inspired by lawlessness, and directing malicious violence against the prosperous. There are offenders in all classes of citizens but the offenders are the exceptions. It is not true, as some prominent men and publications assert, that all is corruption in public life and defilement in private homes.

The political trouble-maker would have us believe that a certain element in America preys upon the rest of the public. Just how many votes have been won and positions attained by this demagogic appeal, it would be difficult to estimate. As Mr. Lewis says, no such sharp cleavages exist. Essentially, we are all in one boat. There are as many abuses and as much dishonesty in one class as in another. No factor in our national life has a monopoly either of virtue or evil.

A message of this significance needs to be sent throughout America. There is too much nonsensical talk of "class distinctions," of the "upper and bottom rail," of the "rich getting richer and the poor poorer." There are, of course, certain distinctions in America as in every country. It would be futile and profitless to deny them. But they do not carry inherent antagonism with them, and the man who belongs today to one class is apt tomorrow to go into others. Senator Lewis was especially pertinent in his denunciation of the calamity-howler. There was never a time in the history of the country when the chanting of the dirge was less justified.

RECREATION AND CRIME.

Dan Carey, general manager of Atlanta's park system, has prepared an impressive study of the relation of crime and disease to recreation and recreational facilities. His analysis and statistics, comparing Atlanta with other cities of her class, is published elsewhere. Mr. Carey shows that Atlanta is spending less, proportionately, on parks and playgrounds, than many of the more important American municipalities with which she is classified. His arguments and conclusions are well worth the study of the Atlantan who believes in human conservation, and in building the race with tomorrow well in view.

It is needless to indorse the connection Mr. Carey sets up between physical well-being and morality. Physicians and students long ago demonstrated these theories exhaustively. The man and woman who has ample recreational facilities is apt to be a good citizen. They are apt to cultivate a sound point of view which combats the criminal instinct. They are provided with an outlet for surplus energy, and that is one of the recognized needs of civilization. They also make better workers, so that from the standpoint of dollars and cents alone, it pays for cities to give opportunities for play to men and women.

Atlanta has gradually evolved a fine park and playground system and for this much credit is due to the vision and executive ability of Mr. Carey. But it is essential that our policy be liberalized. More money spent intelligently on parks and playgrounds would be among the best investments in the power of the municipality.

CORN CLUB FIRING LINE.

We ought to have 100,000 boys engaged in corn club work in Georgia. That is the belief of Walter G. Cooper, secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. Secretary Cooper credits the boys of the corn clubs with much of the influence of increasing the yield of Georgia to the acre. He is convinced that since 10,000 boys have accomplished so great a transformation, 100,000 boys could do ten times as much. In other words, his gospel is that in the hands of the boys of Georgia rests in a way the agricultural destiny of the state.

That is true, to a great extent. United States farm demonstration agents believe that the activity of the corn club boys is largely responsible for the increased production of corn on part of the adult Georgia farmers, and also for the general tendency toward scientific agriculture. They say that the boys are marvelously quick in absorbing enthusiasm for the business methods of farming and that the owners of nearby farms, seeing before their very eyes the effect of selective methods, theselves are converted to the cause.

Taking advantage of these tendencies, the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce is planning in the early part of December an enlargement of its annual corn show. The list of prizes is to be extended and it is believed the number of entries will be doubled. Business men of Atlanta, impressed by the meaning of diversification and corn culture to every industry in the state, are subscribing liberally. Every penny expended in this direction is sure of tremendous dividends in the future.

There is every reason why the boys should take a leading part in the agricultural redemption of Georgia. It is axiomatic that education makes its greatest conquests among the younger generation. It is then that the individual is more receptive and least subject to the influences of tradition. This fact suggests that it would be an excellent idea if the common schools of Georgia maintained an agricultural instruction adjunct. It would probably be impractical to include a regular agricultural course in the county school curriculum. But the course could be broadened to include enough tuition in the essentials of agriculture to encourage the boy students to pursue inquiries where they could obtain exhaustive information. In this connection, it might not be amiss if the country school curriculum included also an elementary course in domestic science for the benefit of the girls.

Incidentally, the farm demonstration work of the federal department of agriculture is to be thanked for the tremendous impulse it has given to scientific agriculture in Georgia and all the other southern states. It would be difficult to estimate the benefit in dollars and cents, not to mention the higher standard of living, that has accrued to all portions of the south by reason of this feature of government work.

From a body of Arkansas students comes the word that "there is no hell." Yet that state has been known to raise something very like it, at times.

Mr. Marshall is doing his best to prove that a vice president is something more than a dim gas jet in a house of electric lights.

The financial prophets overlook the fact that money can do its own talking.

Why shouldn't our tired statesmen take a vacation, now that the season's graduates are ready to run the country?

Indiana can furnish all the authors the president needs for diplomatic posts, and then have a big surplus.

A fish story may be interesting up to the third glass; after that many an Ananias is caught in his own net.

Though informed that there's no such thing as a sugar lobby, the people are not going to guess again.

How inspiring it must be to see Brother Bryan leading a Sunday-school going trust in the straight and narrow way.

Little Wayside Sermons.

The saying that "The good die young" is responsible for so many grayheaded sinners.

Every man makes his own Land of Promise, and the latchstring is on the outside when he gets there.

AMERICAN COMMISSION VISITS GREAT STATE FARM IN HUNGARY

By Harvie Jordan.

Budapest, May 21.—(Special.)—From Italy the joint members of the American and federal commissions, about 100 strong, assembled at Budapest, the splendid old capital of the Huns and Magyars. Here we remained for headquarters during a period of seven days studying the various phases of agricultural, finance and other departments of farm life.

The high officials of the Hungarian government had made every possible preparation for our reception and placed every facility for gathering the information sought at our command. They were thoughtful enough to have the pamphlets on Hungarian agriculture prepared in English, which was especially appreciated, as the Hungarian language is one of the most difficult to speak and translate in the world. It is said to be more difficult than Chinese. There are about twenty different dialects spoken in the nation.

Hungary is one great plain with ranges of the Alps traversing the country in various sections. We crossed over one section of the Alps in our journey from Fiume on the Mediterranean to Budapest and passed through a driving snowstorm, which was the first experience of a heavy snowstorm I had ever witnessed in the middle of May.

From a scenic standpoint, the great plains, valleys and mountains form a most picturesque landscape, and to a Georgia farmer is most interesting.

Visit to State Farm.

Perhaps the most interesting description of Hungarian agriculture which I can present to the readers of The Constitution will be a short write-up of a visit the members of the commission made to one of the large Hungarian state farms under the courtesy and auspices of the officials of the Hungarian government. We were taken by special train from Budapest to Mezohegyes, the name of the big estate we were to inspect. We spent the night at the big hotel headquarters and were ready early the next morning to begin our drive of forty miles over the big farm. Forty beautiful open carriages, with a span of thoroughbred horses to each vehicle, and a coachman in gorgeous livery, received the members of our party at 7:30 and the journey began along wide, level roadways, with rows of large shade trees on both sides.

The farm is said to contain 55,000 acres of land, with about 10,000 acres in open pasture, as there are over 1,200 to 2,000 head of fine cows of the dual purpose type, milk and beef, were inspected by our party at several points on our journey through the estate. The average weight of the bulls we saw were from 2,500 to 2,600 pounds each, and were principally of the Swiss type. The cows would weigh from 1,200 to 1,400 pounds each and had the appearance of being good milkers, that is, an average of three gallons per day. There were 1,200 brood cows on the estate, and the young bulls are distributed over the kingdom the same as the stallions.

Plowing Done With Oxen.

The principal plowing animal in Hungary is the ox, and for this purpose young bulls are raised from the wild Hungarian cows and crossed on the farmers' cows, which gives a large and powerful bullock and fast to the plow or wagon—as fast as the average walk of a good horse. I saw one bunch of these semi-wild Hungarian cows and bulls herded on the prairie. They are large, almost white animals, with enormous horns. I saw within 50 yards of one specially fine cow whose horns were said to measure across from tip to tip 7 feet. A work-ox from this breed whose horns we measured with a tape line across from tip to tip was 7 feet 8 inches, which gives some idea of the width a gate or door would have to be for this animal to pass through.

The hogs are large, white, and the 200 brood sows I saw would average in weight from 300 to 400 pounds each. The sheep were also large and presented a fine appearance. There are several thousand heads of cattle, sheep and hogs on the estate.

The big white Hungarian ox has been in use on the farm as a draft animal for the past 1,000 years, and the type is still being kept pure. Although the biggest of this great estate and the perfect system with which every department of the work is done was highly creditable to the Hungarian government.

The plan of aiding the farmers through the use of thoroughbred horses and cattle to improve the live stock industry of the kingdom is a matter which our own American states might study and utilize with great profit in the same way. We go next into Austria.

The whole scheme and purpose of the operation of these big estates, aside from the general benefits to Hungarian agriculture and the annual profits which accrue to the government, is to have a large and ready supply of grain, cattle and horses for the use of the military in times of war. The clouds of war are always hanging on the horizon of these European countries, and Hungary has for centuries been a fighting nation, although the people there now hope for continuous peace, such as they have enjoyed for the past half century.

The Stock Breeding Department.

The live stock department of this great estate is fully as interesting as that of the field. The breeding of thoroughbred horses is conducted on an extended scale. Nothing but registered horses of the best English and Arabian types of thoroughbreds, which can perform the best service in the cavalry and artillery departments of the army are bred. This department is under the direct supervision of the military and 700 soldiers are constantly on duty to look after the horse-breeding department. There are 1,200 thoroughbred brood mares on this estate, principally dark bay and chestnut sorrel in color, and weigh from 1,100 to 1,200 pounds each. A large number of magnificent thoroughbred stallions are also on this estate, which are kept in large, airy box-stalls, in long, well-built stables, with splendid exercising ground on the outside and a trained soldier as a groom for each animal.

The large barracks for the hundreds of soldiers who attend to these animals are built near the royal stables. The young stallions at the age of 4 years are sent out in various portions of the kingdom for use of the farmers who raise colts. There are now in service for the Hungarian farmers in different points in the kingdom, 3,400 of these thoroughbred stallions, and last year's service was given to 130,000 mares, the stud fee being nominal, only from 50 cents to $3, according to the means of the farmers. None of these government stallions or mares can be bought for love or money.

The whole system is carried on under the strictest military discipline and the purpose appears to be to improve the breed of horses in the kingdom during times of peace, and also for use of the military.

In the same manner thoroughbred bulls, hogs and sheep are raised and distributed over the kingdom for the use of the farmers at but little expense to them. Great barns containing from 100 to 200 head of fine cows of the dual purpose type, milk and beef, were inspected by our party at several points on our journey through the estate. The average weight of the bulls we saw were from 2,500 to 2,600 pounds each, and were principally of the Swiss type. The cows would weigh from 1,200 to 1,400 pounds each and had the appearance of being good milkers, that is, an average of three gallons per day. There were 1,200 brood cows on the estate, and the young bulls are distributed over the kingdom the same as the stallions.

Personality—Napoleon.

(From The Indianapolis News.)

In a recent, and very interesting, article in the London Nation, discussing the question of personality as presented by Francis Galton in his "Memories," is the following: "The mere sound of Napoleon's title, 'The Emperor,' as he was ushered by his marshal on a scene of state, seems to have set half the audience trembling—some with fear, others with a sense akin to adoration. Countess Potoka, the first time she saw him in Warsaw, says: 'It seemed to me that he wore an aureole'; and immediately afterward she had the feeling 'that such a being could not possibly die.'" Balzac conveys much the same impression in one of his most charming stories. And it is known that there were thousands of people in France who refused to credit the news of Napoleon's death, or else insisted that, even if he were dead, he would return and reassume the government of France. Even today, one hundred years—almost—after his death, people eagerly read every scrap that is written about the man. His appeal plainly was not simply that of genius, for there have been other geniuses who served the world more greatly, and without a taint of selfishness, in whom men have little interest. The drawing force is that strange one that men have agreed to call personality. Napoleon underestimated his power, for he said that his presence was necessary to stir enthusiasm or rouse fear. That is, no doubt, true to some extent. For his physical presence on the battlefield was worth much—may, in some cases, have been the deciding factor. But thousands who never saw him felt his spell, and even yet he sways the imagination of many people—even of some sober-minded and thoughtful people. Undoubtedly there is a Napoleon myth, but there is nothing mythical about the stories that tell of his marvelous influence over men, individually and in the mass. The fact is attested by his enemies as well as by his friends. A countess of the old regime speaks of it in her memoirs. This, then, is one truth about Napoleon that might be accepted as proved beyond the possibility of dispute. He may not have had character, but he certainly did have personality.

Lawyers' Big Fees.

(From The Indianapolis News.)

Charles Reade, in his novel, "Hard Cash," has one of the characters therein, Joshua Fullalove, a Yankee, observe that British justice is a prime article, but it comes high. Cecil Chesterton, a newspaper writer, is held to be the responsible person for articles published in two British papers, wherein he charges conspiracy and corruption against two high officers of the state for the purpose of benefiting Godfrey Isaacs, who is related to one of them. This is the noted Marconi financial case. And here is a list of the counsel and their fees. For the prosecution: Sir Edward Carson, 11,000 guineas—$55,000—is a little more than five dollars—and 100 guineas a day; F. E. Smith, 670 guineas and 65 guineas a day; R. D. Muir, 420 guineas and 45 guineas a day.

For the defense: E. Wilde, 350 guineas and 50 guineas a day; Rigby Swift, 250 guineas and 50 guineas a day; E. Purcell, 200 guineas and 40 guineas a day.

This means 13,034 in retaining fees for counsel and $378 a day in addition as long as the case continues. Following which, for this is but the beginning, there will be "pippins and cheese to come."

Faded Pictures.

Only two patient eyes to stare
Out of the canvas. All the rest—
The warm green gown, the small hands pressed
Light in the lap, the braided hair

That must have made the sweet, low brow
So earnest, centuries ago,
When some one saw it change and glow—
All faded: Just the eyes burn now.

I dare say people pass and pass
Before the blistered little frame,
And dingy work without a name
Stuck in behind its square of glass.

But I, well, I left Raphael
Just to come drink these eyes of hers,
To think away the stains and blurs
And make all new again and well.

Only, for tears my head will bow,
Because there on my heart's last wall,
Scarce one inch left to tell it all,
A picture keeps its eyes, somehow.

A HINT TO THE WISE

A Handy Varnish Applied With A Cloth

That Restores the Original Beauty to Any Painted, Varnished or Filled Surface

NOT a polish but applied like one with a piece of cheesecloth. It flows like water and leaves a smooth surface. The result of years of scientific research and experiment. Offered to the public only after repeated tests had proved it to be the very best varnish ever produced. Used in the home, the office, the store--wherever wood or metal is to be varnished or refinished. Economical--a bottle of TACCO goes three times as far as the same amount of any other varnish.

Requires No Rubbing

Unlike other varnishes, Tacco produces a uniformly smooth surface which requires no rubbing. A woman can refinish chairs, tables, wardrobes, etc., with no more exertion than if she were dusting. You just dust the article to be varnished and then apply Tacco with a piece of cheesecloth. At once the beautiful grain of the wood comes up bright and clear and remains that way.

Dries in 2 to 5 Hours

The woodwork and all the furniture of an office may be varnished with Tacco at night and be dry and ready for use in the morning. In the house, the dining room chairs, say, can be refinished after breakfast and be ready for use before noon. From the instant Tacco is applied it begins to dry and when thoroughly hardened it forms a protecting coat that will last as long as the material beneath it.

Dust, Heat and Water-Proof

The steady glare of the sun, the heat of the steam radiator have no effect on any article varnished with Tacco. A table refinished with this varnish may be washed and scrubbed as often as you please without any ill effect. Acting as a filler, it closes the pores of wood and presents a hard surface from which dust may be easily wiped. Furniture refinished with Tacco not only LOOKS better but WEARS better.

Saves Time and Money

Tacco, by giving a beautiful luster to woodwork, not only brightens the home and the office, but saves time and money. It eliminates the necessity for oiling and polishing of furniture and it lengthens the life of whatever wood it is applied to. And, the fact that it is so easily applied with a bit of cloth effects a positive saving in repair and painting bills.

Sold in Bottles and Cans at all Good Drug and Hardware Stores

Sealy-Sellers.

The wedding of Miss Rebecca Sealy and Mr. Joe Coe Sellers was an event of the afternoon of June 18, taking place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Sealy, in Cuthbert at 2:30 o'clock.

The handsome home was beautifully decorated and an orchestra played the wedding music. Rev. T. E. Davenport performed the ceremony, the wedding party standing before an altar of ferns and palms. On either side of the altar were Marie Antoinette baskets filled with white daisies.

They left for their home in Dothan, Ala., where the groom is prominent in business.

The guests included many out-of-town friends and kinspeople, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lisenby, of Dothan, sister of the groom; Mr. Sellers, the father, and Mrs. J. T. Palmer, of Birmingham, aunt of the bride, were among the number.

Laine-Depuy.

An interesting event of the past week was the wedding of Miss Mary E. Laine to Mr. Frank J. Depuy, formerly of Atlanta, now of Colorado Springs, Colo., which took place at the Central Congregational church Wednesday last at high noon.

The church was artistically decorated by the Ladies' union and Christian Endeavor society with palms and daisies.

The bride entered with her father, Mr. George M. Laine, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Mrs. E. E. Eagan.

The bride's gown was of cream mull combined with hand-embroidery brought years ago from a Mexican convent to form part of her mother's wedding trousseau. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of Richmond roses and lilies of the valley.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Parker W. Fisher, wore a pretty gown of cream voile and carried a bouquet of red carnations and white daisies.

Mr. C. A. Depuy, brother of the groom, was the best man, and Rev. Parker W. Fisher, cousin of the bride, performed the ceremony. Mr. George W. Laine, Jr., and Mr. Gordon W. Donaldson were the ushers.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Depuy, of Boston, Mass., and Rev. and Mrs. Parker W. Fisher of Leburn Ky. Mr. and Mrs. Depuy were the recipients of many handsome gifts. They will make their home in Colorado Springs Colo. after the 15th of July.

Phi Delta Celebration.

Beside the club members, eight honorary guests were invited.

The party was chaperoned by Mrs. M. O. Blackwell.

TeBow-Freeman.

The marriage of Miss Rosa Will TeBow and Mr. Clyde Cleveland Freeman took place Wednesday morning, at 10 o'clock, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. S. E. TeBow, on Rawson street, and the ceremony was witnessed only by relatives.

The house was attractively decorated with palms, ferns and flowers. The bride wore her going-away gown of Copenhagen blue cloth, with hat to match, and she carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies. Mr. C. L. Boatwright was best man, and the bride was given away by her brother, Mr. J. E. TeBow.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman left for a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., and other points. They will be at home at 286 Oak street after July 1.

Jester-Hatcher.

The wedding of Miss Laura Bell Jester and Mr. Lawrence Hatcher was a pretty event of Wednesday evening, taking place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Jester, on Dunn street.

The ceremony was performed in the living room, where the bridal party stood before an altar of palms and ferns, and throughout the house the decorations were ferns and quantities of daisies in artistic arrangement.

Dr. Belk officiated, and there were no attendants.

On account of the recent death of the groom's mother, only members of the immediate families were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Hatcher are at home in West End.

Atlanta's Wave of Crime Is Easy to Explain: It Is Merely a Case of "The Devil Finding Plenty of Work for Idle Hands to Do"

(By Dan Carey, General Manager of Parks.)

In your issue of June 18, there is an article on the front page, headed "Crime Increases With Hot Weather," which states that "Nine homicides, twenty hold-ups and sixty-five burglaries tell the story of Atlanta's police records since May 1. Sweeping over the city, a crime wave is establishing unsavory history for Atlanta. Never before in police annals have conditions been so disorderly during the summer season. Police officials are unable to account for it."

The reason for this condition in Atlanta is so apparent to me that I selze this opportunity of again directing attention to the fact that Atlanta is not doing her duty in the matter of providing wholesome recreation during the leisure hours of her people. Writers who have been discussing the relation of crime to leisure, students of criminology and thinkers on sociological questions agree with a fallacy. If the tax rate is so low that it does not permit Atlanta to exist as modern cities are operated, then obviously the tax rate should be made to conform to the expansion in the government. There was one time when taxes were levied solely for the support of armies and to maintain the officials of state, but in those days every man was either his own policeman or hired a watchman; he carried a lantern instead of having his path well lighted by a White Way, he and his neighbor formed a bucket brigade and extinguished an fire that might occur; there was no system of public education, and governments generally did not assume the responsibilities which now rest so firmly, relief that it would be impossible to do away with them. Now comes along public recreation with its demand that it be added to the list of recognized functions of government.

In discussing recreation, one must speak necessarily of Chicago, which has set the standard. Chicago has spent millions on an ideal playground system, and she has found it a good investment. Among the adults, recreation centers have Americanized Chicago's immigrants. There have reduced juvenile arrests 28 per cent, and have increased by 32 per cent the efficiency of the morality dealing with children on probation.

Recently I made a study of the death records of the department of health in Atlanta, and I found that the toll of death among the children of Atlanta who were seeking wholesome recreation and who were at play in the streets is appalling. The record, of course, deals with 1912 and is confined to the city limits of Atlanta. I discovered that six children, while playing in the streets, had been run down and killed by automobiles; that 13 other young lives crushed out beneath the wheels of street cars; two were ground to death by railroad trains, three were drowned, three were killed while playing with firearms and one was run over by a dray. The total is twenty-five, and of the twenty-one seventeen were white children between the ages of three and seventeen years, while four were negroes. There have been the same ages. I shall not deal further with this phase of the question. It is too awful and harrowing, especially when we think that some of these lives could have been saved had the city been doing its duty in the matter of public recreation.

There is another angle from which this particular phase of the question may be viewed, and that is from that on those who drive automobiles, who operate street cars and who ride in them and who generally are in control of cars with such accidents. If substantial posts made of concrete were erected in the middle of the street directly in the path used by automobiles they could be dodged with ease, because the drivers would be on the lookout for them; but to dodge a crowd of children playing in the street is very different. Certainly the nervous strain, the lessened capacity for work, the decrease in the enjoyment of life and the general effect on the nervous system of these people must be tremendous.

Value of Recreation.

In a recent article in "The American City" Dr. Henry S. Curtis said some very impressive things about the value of recreation centers, and among other things he dealt with the effect of these institutions on crime. He said: "If we could stop the production of juvenile delinquents we should probably stop at least 90 per cent of the crime of adults, which costs our country between $500,000,000 and $600,000,000 annually. If we may trust the Chicago statistics as to the effect of the playgrounds on juvenile delinquency—and these statistics were very carefully gathered, taking the time of ten investigators for a year—we might expect an adequate and well administered system of playgrounds to prevent or cure about 50 per cent of the juvenile delinquency, and so to save the country about $250,000,000 annually—a rather tidy sum, which would maintain all the playgrounds in the country for fifty years. But if we suppose the playgrounds would only reduce delinquency and crime by 10 per cent, which is certainly a moderate estimate, this would still amount to more than $50,000,000, enough to maintain our existing playgrounds for ten *years. When we consider also the in*direct expense of crime, this estimate is certainly moderate.

The Rival of the Saloon.

"Public recreation is the most effective rival of the saloon that has thus far been discovered. If the city furnished a playground system like the one in Chicago there is always a place to go to until 10 o'clock every night that is physically much more attractive than the saloon. There are beautiful, well-lighted rooms in the field houses where clubs can meet for nothing and where intoxicants cannot be had. In the restaurant of the building are soft drinks and coffee at cost. If a party of young men wish to give a dance the field house offers a beautiful hall and good music, and it will cost them nothing. If they prefer to have gymnastics or swimming in the evening, the field house furnishes the gymnasium and the swimming pool and the physical director to see that it is worth while. If they wish to have athletics during the day, the playground furnishes the athletic field. The personal standards and touch of the directors influence the boy more or less, and he soon learns that if he would excel in the athletics which are apt to be his greatest interest he must abstain from drink. At the time West park playground No. 2 was opened in Chicago there were four dance halls within one-half mile of the site. All of these were connected with saloons, and all were vicious influences in the community. While one of all four of these halls had been closed. They had been closed because the young people had discovered that the field house was furnishing better places to dance, and because it had set up in the minds of these young people new standards of prosperity.

"Drink is the cause more or less directly of at least half of the crime, of very many industrial accidents, of much of the poverty that robs the next generation, and of the industrial inefficiency that leads to unemployment and low standards of living. If we suppose that an adequate playground system would save only 10 per cent of the cost of drink, conservatively estimated to be $2,000,000,000 a year, we believe it would save 25 per cent; this would still be $200,000,000 annually, enough to maintain such a splendid system of playgrounds for forty years, or the adequate system that we have been considering for two years."

Your article on crime states that these homicides in Atlanta were committed by negroes, and we who know can safely estimate that 90 per cent of the hold-ups and burglaries were committed by negroes. Must it not then occur to us as being significant that crime is more frequent among the class of people for which Atlanta has done nothing, so far as public recreation is concerned? I am informed that the contractors who are now engaged in that when the construction work ceases the increase of crime is noticeable, while on the other hand, when the negroes are practically all at work crime is reduced to a minimum. If this be true, obviously the record stated in your issue of June 18 is directly attributable to the failure of Atlanta to provide wholesome recreation for the negroes during their leisure hours.

I realize that I am not presenting the popular side of this question when I advocate the expenditure of the public money for the purchase of wholesome recreation for negroes, but I feel that the people of Atlanta have a right to know all of this subject that I must be heard.

Incidentally, I am writing as a Southern-born man, with several generations of southern-born forefathers behind me. I have known the negro for many years, I believe I understand him. I do not dislike the negro, but it is not for him that I am now appealing. Rather, I am appealing in behalf of the young white babies who are daily in the arms of their negro nurses. I am appealing for the safety of the white children who are occasionally made the victims of the vicious element among the negroes. I am appealing for the white people who suffer from murder, from burglaries, from stealing, from disease and who are made the innocent victims of this condition that exists among the black race.

The Negro Question.

No matter what phase of sociological work we study, our research leads inevitably to the negro. In criminology, in drunkenness, in crimes of all kinds, in sanitation, in tuberculosis work, in delinquency, in mental defectiveness, in the matter of hereditary diseases and in degeneracy, the work of the investigator inevitably leads directly into the homes of the negroes. This is plain talk, but it is true.

We have tried chaingangs on the negro, we have tried jails, we are maintaining hospitals for him, we are operating asylums for him, we are employing skilled policemen and detectives to watch after him, we segregate him when he has committed a crime, we are spending millions of dollars to punish the negro after he has committed his crimes, and after his mind is gone, but we spend not one penny to prevent him from committing crime, not one penny in corrective or reformative measures.

We have failed in our previous attempts with the negro. I say the time has come to try something new, something that something new ought to be a thing that has proved of benefit in dealing with criminal classes of people in other sections of the country.

No one can be good until his body is clean. There is not a single public bath in the city of Atlanta for negroes and, as we know, their homes are not provided with bathtubs. In a recent *circular proposing an inter*national conference for popular baths and school baths to be held at The Hague is this statement: "Originally the starting point of popular bathing was the promotion of hygiene generally and cultivation of cleanliness; of late years, however, science has taught us that there is no more efficient means to guard against infectious diseases and to prevent their progress than bathing. The researches into the origin of the plague, recurrent fever and spotted typhus have shown that vermin plays an important part in the spreading of these diseases. Cleanliness is a measure of the highest importance. . . . Localization and disinfection have their value in the struggle against epidemics, but cleanliness is the principal factor."

A short time ago I made an investigation of the cleanliness bath situation in the United States. I did not find all of the public baths naturally, but I did succeed in listing the records of twelve cities.

Interesting Figures.

The figures are quite interesting and show that a great many cities are literally washing away the sins of their people.

Do not understand me as advocating that all of the recreational work should be done among the negroes, nor do I wish you to understand me as believing that all the recreation work should be done among the poorer classes. On the other hand I maintain that the rich and the children of the rich are as much entitled to the benefiting, both mental and physical, that comes from attending recreation centers as are the children of the poor.

The time must come in Atlanta, as it has come elsewhere, when our people will realize that recreation is as important as any other kind for municipal endeavors. Public recreation is being opposed in its incipiency by those who do not use their brains, but all human progress has been unwelcome at its birth. The public school system was made the object of vicious attacks when it first began its operation, but who would dare oppose how the system of public education.

Atlanta is striving for a half million population in 1920. Business and commercial interests are rapidly pushing forward and there is every indication that Atlanta will be the big city of the south that she has always been, every indication but one. Mark my words and remember that the time is coming, and it is going to come in just a few years, when it will be as difficult to sell a piece of real estate in a city that has failed to provide for public recreation as it would be now to sell a home in a city that has failed to provide for public education.

We need not wait for the future, however, to show us what the results of our inactivity. Retribution is already upon us and we find it in nine homicides, twenty hold-ups and sixty-five burglaries reported since May 1."

THREE COUNTIES HAVE PART IN THIS KILLING

Man in Jackson Shoots Opponent in Walton and He Dies in Gwinnett.

It isn't often in the history of any state that a man is shot in one county and dies in another, but Winder, Ga., presents the peculiar and interesting case of a man standing in one county and shooting a man in another county, while the latter ran across the county line and died in a third county.

The three counties of Walton, Gwinnett and Jackson come to a common corner in the very heart of the city, the three-county corner post being located at the side entrance to the Granite hotel, which stands at the intersection of Broad and Athens streets. The north side of Broad street is in Jackson, while Broad street is the dividing line between Gwinnett and Walton counties.

Floyd Smith and another negro named Ramsey had a difficulty. Ramsey was standing in Jackson county at the time and fired across Broad street, inflicting a mortal wound upon Smith, who was standing in Walton. As the shot struck him, Smith ran a few yards across the street and died in Gwinnett county. It was some puzzle to determine where Ramsey should be tried, but Solicitor Marcus D. Irwin, at that time the leading criminal lawyer of Winder, now of Lawrenceville, successfully defended the man who did the shooting and the peculiar complications of Winder figured prominently in the case.

Other unusual facts have arisen as the result of this complication, upon which in part Winder bases its claim to a new county. Not long ago a Seaboard Air Line railway train stopped in Winder who was then in Gwinnett county, and dragged him across the street into Walton county, where he was killed.

Cases appealed from the mayor's court in Winder to higher courts have often been thrown out upon the ground that it was not specified in the trial as to which of the three counties the offense was committed in, yet every case of the kind is shown to have been committed within the limits of the city. Certiorari cases are often lost in the same manner.

When Winder wants to issue bonds for streets, schools, water, sewerage or other purposes, the city is forced to do legal advertising and take legal steps in all three counties. Recently Winder endeavored to issue sewer bonds, and after having spent several hundred dollars in the three counties for advertising and the usual legal formalities, an irregularity was found and the whole issue of bonds was lost.

A Gigantic Breed.

(From National Monthly for June.)

A woman at a recent dog show noticed a pretty girl gazing around as if puzzled. She went over to her and said: "Pardon me, but can't you find the kennel you wish? If not, I shall be glad to assist you."

"Oh, thank you," she replied. "Would you mind showing me where they are exhibiting the ocean greyhounds?"

EATONTON VOTES BOND ISSUE FOR PUBLIC LIBRARY

Eatonton, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—After years of effort through various sources, Eatonton is at last to have a public library. It will be open to all classes, and the whole county will have access to its books. In a bond election held here Wednesday the vote stood 121 for the issuance of bonds, with only 7 against.

There is great rejoicing here, in the birthplace of Joel Chandler Harris and Judge L. Q. C. Lamar, that Putnum is at last to have a public library, with a building worthy of her illustrious citizenry of the past and her historic record. Through the generosity of William Keith Prudden, of Michigan, son of Nathaniel Prudden and Amelia Prudden, who were residents of Eatonton during the sixties, Eatonton was offered as a memorial to his parents at this, his birthplace, $5,000 worth of books unconditionally except for their proper care and keep. This is the setting by the city of $600 annually for the support of the library to meet Mr. Carnegie's 10 per cent requirement, the Sage of Skibo castle has agreed to supplement this sum for books given by Mr. Pruden with $6,000 for a building. Thus Eatonton secures $11,000.

Putnam School Census.

Eatonton, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—County School Superintendent W. C. Wright has completed Putnam's school census, and is expressing gratification over the healthy gain recorded. Putnam shows a total increase of 260 pupils of school age over the last census. This year shows a total of 1,178 whites and 3,521 colored. Every school district shows a gain except two.

Revival at West Point.

West Point, Ga., June 21.—(Special.) Revival services began at the First Methodist church on Monday afternoon, and have been conducted by Dr. C. E. Pattillo, pastor of the church, till today, when Dr. C. A. Stakely, Columbia, S. C., will conduct the services till the meeting closes. D. Ward Miliam, of Atlanta, is in charge of the singing.

MILLEDGEVILLE TO HOLD FIDDLERS' CONVENTION

Milledgeville, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—The Fiddlers' convention will be held in this city at the Grand Opera house, June 23 and 24.

There will be a number of fiddlers of renown in attendance. Among them will be A. V. Pool, a one-armed fiddler, and also several others of equal reputation from north Georgia and Alabama.

Nothing like this convention has ever been witnessed here before. The fiddlers from this section will participate, and prizes will be offered for the best player among them. There are a number of good old-time fiddlers around this section, and the contest is going to be a great one.

"AWAY ABOVE EVERYTHING"

Flying 220 Feet a Second

VEDRINE, the French Aviator, eclipsed the greatest speed ever attained by man or living thing when he vaulted the Pyrenees on his way from Paris to Madrid in June 1911. Caught in a storm, he was driven along in his aeroplane at a velocity of 155 miles an hour or 220 feet a second.

NIGHT OWLS MUST TELL WHY THEY ARE OUT LATE

After Midnight the Police Will Question All Suspicious-Looking Characters.

Every suspicious looking man who walks the streets of Atlanta after midnight has to give a satisfactory explanation to the policemen he may meet, or else be sent to the police station, said Chief Beavers last night, addressing the morning watch just as they went on duty at midnight.

Chief Beavers told his men that he wanted the loiterers and street loafers to be at home at this time of the night, unless they had a good excuse for being out.

The chief thinks that by rounding up all suspicious characters who have the habit of making night owls out of themselves that he may be able to stop the wave of crime that is sweeping over the city.

In a statement yesterday afternoon, Judge Broyles said that he would support Chief Beavers in his fight on the loiterers of the city, and with these two guardians of law and justice fighting side by side, it is certain that there will be a decrease in crime in Atlanta.

Saturday was a record-breaking day with the police force. Over 100 arrests were made, and at least twenty-five copy cases made by the department. Everything from loitering on the street to toting guns were charged against the parties arrested.

One reason of the large number of arrests was the fact that the loiterers about the poolrooms and near beer saloons are being rounded up by the dozen, and then, being Saturday, an unusually heavy day was experienced.

ROPER GIVES AN ORDER TO HURRY NEWSPAPERS

Washington, June 21.—Instructions went forth today from First Assistant Postmaster General Daniel C. Roper to all postmasters directing them to handle daily newspapers sent to subscribers through the mails with the utmost dispatch possible after disposition of first-class matter.

"Many of these publications contain market quotations and other commercial data which are used frequently as the basis of the subscribers' daily business operations, and the value of this information is lost if it is unduly delayed in transit, explained Mr. Roper to the postmasters.

He directed that on receipts of mail at a postoffice, all sacks labeled "daily papers" should be distributed promptly and every effort made to effect their delivery on the first carrier trip after the receipt of the mail of the office, provided the delivery of first-class mail was not delayed.

Record-Breaking Crowd Will Attend Big Merchants' Meeting

Plans for entertaining a record-breaking convention of the Southern Manufacturers' and Merchants' association were outlined at an enthusiastic meeting at the Piedmont convention hall last night. Following a good old-fashioned Dutch lunch Bolling H. Jones, president of the Atlanta Manufacturers' and Merchants' association, sounded the keynote of the meeting when he predicted the attendance of more business men from all over the south than have ever attended a commercial gathering in Atlanta.

"Already $7,500 has been raised for the entertainment of the thousands of business men who are expected in Atlanta during the first two weeks in August," he said, calling attention to the 25,000 invitations which have already been issued.

"Last year was the first annual convention of this great southern commercial organization with headquarters in Atlanta, which attracts business men from all the territory between Virginia and Texas. At that first convention there were 2,000 delegates, and one year of aggressive work has witnessed the addition of many times that number to our lists

Advertised Atlanta.

"They returned home to all parts of the south with such glowing accounts of the barbecues, the banquet at the Piedmont Driving club and the cordial hospitality extended them, that large numbers of manufacturers and merchants are looking forward to this year's convention in Atlanta, where they can enjoy first hand the hospitality of the 'late City of the south.'

"Enlist the country merchant and the southern manufacturer in a discussion of the problems which effect their business, and you will give them something of lasting value to take away with them, in addition to pleasant recollections of Atlanta hospitality," said C. W. McClure, in an appeal which met with instant approval, and forthwith came many suggestions of subjects of live interest.

"How to turn dead stock into live capital," was urged by A. C. Welborn, as of vital interest to the small rural merchant, and announcement was made that all Atlanta merchants and traveling men will be urged to line up similar subjects for discussion at the convention.

Other subjects which met with favor and which will be discussed at the August gathering are credits, and discounts, credit men's associations, bad accounts the cause of most failures, and buy home-made goods.

Buy Home-Made Goods.

In fact, the keynote of the entire Southern Manufacturers' and Merchants' convention is the slogan, "Buy home-made goods!" This, coupled with the suggestion, "Make good goods, and let the people know it," plus "It pays to advertise," are favorite themes for the convention program. The value of a diversified crop will be advocated by able speakers, and other subjects will be added to the program every day.

The convention, which is heartily indorsed by the chamber of commerce, will be in session the first two weeks in August, and the following committee will be in charge of the arrangements: Bolling H. Jones, chairman; R. O. Crouch, of Griffin, Ga., and Willis E. Ragan, vice chairman; Harry Moore, secretary; H. B. Wey, treasurer.

"Get them here" is the motto of the entertainment committee according to the chairman, Mr. Ragan, and the 3,000 traveling men out of Atlanta have pledged themselves to create enthusiasm over the country, which will attract a great crowd to the convention.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT WHILE DRIVING GIRL, BAMBERG MAY DIE

Valdosta, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Frank Bamberg, 15-year-old son of S. F. Bamberg, a prominent citizen of Jasper, Fla., is lying at the point of death in a hospital here as the result of an accidental pistol wound. The young man was brought to this city by his uncle, Fred Bamberg, of Valdosta, last night, and was operated on this morning. Little hope is entertained for his recovery.

Young Bamberg and a young lady friend were on their way to a picnic at Suwanee Springs when a pistol which the young man had laid in the seat of the buggy was accidentally fired, the ball passing through his body. The young lady drove with all haste with the wounded boy to Jasper, and he was hurried here for the operation. His death is expected at any time.

HE COMMITS SUICIDE BY VOMITING MEDICINE

Cordele, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Refusing to work and determined to end his life one way or another because he had been put on the Crisp county chaingang for stealing, Jesse Dennard, a negro, succeeded yesterday in killing himself. He had been seriously ill from fever several days and when the county physician gave him medicine he would thrust his finger down his throat and rid his stomach of it, the fever eventually causing his death. Dennard attempted to suicide recently by throwing himself beneath the wheels of a road machine, but was dragged out uninjured.

TARIFF REVISION BEFORE CAUCUS

Underwood-Simmons Measure Receiving Harmonious Support—Income Tax Section Is to Be Redrafted.

Washington, June 21.—The Underwood-Simmons tariff revision bill, as agreed upon by the democrats of the senate committee went through a full day's session of the senate democratic caucus today with practically no change and with harmonious support for most of the alterations the finance committee members had made in the original Underwood bill.

Chemical Schedule Completed.

The tariff duties on chemicals, oils and paints; on earthenware and glassware, and on two-thirds of the articles comprised in the metal and machinery schedule, had been disposed of when the caucus adjourned late this afternoon.

Democratic members of the finance committee met tonight to finish redrafting the income tax section of the bill. The important changes to be made in this provision, reducing the exempted income from $4,000 to $2,000 probably will be completed Monday and the income tax and administrative features of the bill then will be turned over to the caucus for consideration.

Criticism of the tariff bill in the party conference was limited to a few specific rates and a half dozen of the items were sent back to the finance committee for further investigation and report. The committee's report putting cement on the free list was sustained after some debate. The proposed duties on flaming arc light carbons; on artificial flowers and on field glasses, optical and surgical instruments and photographic lenses came in for criticism and were referred back to the democrats of the finance committee.

For Cheap Autos.

Cheap automobiles as necessaries of business and farming were the object of much of the "debate." The finance committee democrats had already put the rate in the Underwood bill from 45 per cent ad valorem to 35 per cent on motor cars valued at less than $1,500. Several democratic senators urged a further cut and recommended that the tariff be only 10 or 15 per cent on machines valued at less than $1,000.

This demand was made on the ground that cheap automobiles were now common necessaries.

The caucus did not settle the automobile controversy, but asked Chairman Simmons and his colleagues on the finance committee to investigate further.

Advocates of the lower duty claim the government would lose little revenue as the high priced machines pay most of the tariff.

Harmony Is Predicted.

Harmony was predicted by the democratic leaders today after the caucus broke up. None of the bitterly fought sections of the bill had been reached, however, and no effort has been made thus far to assert the binding authorities of the party caucus upon individual senators.

Senator Kern, the party leader, said the caucus would bind all its members upon all features of the bill, except where they had made pledges to their constituents or in fact that they could not conscientiously abide by the action of the majority.

Caucus consideration of the bill will be resumed at 10 a. m. Tuesday, and it is believed the measure will be ready for presentation to the senate Thursday or Friday.

All Work Completed.

The democrats of the senate finance committee completed all work on the income tax and administrative features of the tariff bill late tonight. The revised draft will be sent to the printers tomorrow and will be submitted to the democratic caucus Monday. The basis of $3,000 as the minimum income upon which an unmarried man must pay a tax was retained by the committee tonight. This reduction from $4,000 minimum of the Underwood bill was agreed upon several days ago. The committee changed many provisions affecting municipal bonds, mutual insurance companies and exempting chambers of commerce from the operation of the tax. Chairman Simmons said tonight the income tax provisions had been rewritten in many important features, but members of the committee declined to give out a synopsis of the changes until the report is prepared for the caucus.

INDICTED FOR USING MAILS TO DEFRAUD

St. Louis, June 21.—Harry Goldman and Morris Coleman, in business here under the firm name of the Dr. Haux Specialty company, were arrested on federal indictments today charging them with using the mails to defraud and sending through the mails letter envelopes that reflected upon those to whom they were addressed. The men, who gave bond, are charged with having advertised to sell "perfect vision glasses, worth $5, for $1 a pair." The federal district attorney will try to prove that the frames were worth $2.40 a dozen and the lenses fifty cents a dozen pair.

It is charged the men sent out circulars advertising their wares, but that if the persons to whom they were sent did not buy, a series of letters followed, being marked on the envelope "first request letter," "second request letter," "final request letter." These *envelopes, it is said, conveyed the im*pression that they contained dunning letters.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN IN LEGISLATIVE RACES

Many Are Unpledged.

"I have written statements from nearly a majority of the members made within the past ten days, in which they state that they have now unpledged and that they will remain unpledged until they reach the capitol and look over the situation. Were I to count the supporters those members who have expressed themselves as follows: 'I would like to see you speaker,' or, 'I see no reason why you should not be speaker,' or 'I think you would make a good speaker, and I see no reason why I should not support you,' this number would make me quite as many supporters as those claimed by my friend, the gentleman from Hancock.

"I was myself very much impressed by the numerous, repeated and extravagant claims made for one of the other candidates for the speakership—and I came to Atlanta on Wednesday last with the avowed intention to look over the situation and if the facts, upon investigation, justified the claims made by my distinguished friend, who opposes me (and I really believe that I would find them true), I intended to withdraw from the race. But I will state just as frankly and sincerely that after carefully investigating and going over the entire situation, I am convinced that the speakership race is in doubt, and will not be settled until the vote is taken on the 25th. My chances are equal to those of any other gentleman in the race."

Statements Are Exciting.

In striking contrast to these moderate statements made by two of the candidates for speaker of the house are the very emphatic claims of victory that have been made for themselves by the two distinguished gentlemen who are pitted against each other for the presidency of the senate. At last accounts both Mr. Allen and Mr. Anderson were in possession of 28 votes pledged and as good as counted.

As both men are equal in the reputations they bear for telling the truth and are equally strong in their absolute convictions of victory, it need hardly be added that one of them is certain to suffer a pretty severe disappointment. Friends of Mr. Allen Saturday declared that his stock was going up and that he would get more votes than he claimed. But friends of Mr. Andersen were just as assertive on the other side that everything was going his way. So the outcome remains as much in doubt as ever.

Only this much is certain: Some senators, who are now being claimed by both sides, whether justly or not cannot be said, will likely find themselves called upon to make explanations of why they voted as they did after the battle is over. One thing is evident to all close observers of the race, and that is that there are some senators who now have their names put down on both sides.

State Finances.

As to what matters the legislature will take up after the contests for the presiding officers are settled and the houses regularly organized for business it may be said that the first thing on the program will concern the state's finances and the question of tax revision.

This subject is such a large one and so many conflicting interests are involved in its solution that it is believed that there will be time for little else this summer. Nearly all bills of a general nature, excepting tax and appropriation bills, will probably go over to the next session for settlement.

It may be added that there is a fine prospect that the legislature will find some solution for the state's financial worries, about which so much has been written and said for the last four or five years. Public sentiment is so rapidly crystallizing in favor of action on this question this year that the legislature will hardly dare to evade or shuffle over it, even if it wished to.

Among the representatives besides the candidates who were seen here Saturday are Shelby Myrick and H. C. Shuptrine, of Chatham; Charles A. Picquet, of Richmond; D. B. Ballard, of Campbell; Barry Wright, of Floyd, and W. G. Harrell, of Decatur.

ATLANTA MILK SUPPLY SUBJECT OF LUNCHEON

Meeting of Chamber Representatives Thursday Will Look to Dairy Improvement.

It is expected that there will be a full attendance of members of the chamber of commerce, who compose the house of representatives of the body, at the luncheon to be held at the Piedmont hotel next Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock, for the purpose of hearing the report of the chamber's committee on milk supply. The luncheon was at first set for Tuesday, June 24, but has been postponed until Thursday, June 26.

In the absence of Dr. Samuel A. Visanska, chairman of the committee, on account of illness, the report will be presented by the vice chairman, Oscar Elsas. Other members of the committee are Ivan E. Allen, Beaumont Davison and Dr. Michael Hoke.

As a result of the committee's labors, it is expected that a system of certified milk may be adopted for Atlanta.

The committee has been in correspondence with Dr. Charles E. North, of Philadelphia, the well-known sanitarian and expert on milk, with a view to having him come to Atlanta to make a survey of the dairies from which the milk supply is derived and to give advice upon the subject. Whether or not Dr. North's services will be obtained depends largely on the action taken at the luncheon Thursday.

MRS. ARMOR TO SPEAK NEXT TUESDAY EVENING

Mrs. Mary Harris Armor will speak at the First Methodist church Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Armor was at the head of the W. C. T. U. in Georgia when the hot prohibition fight was in progress in this state and is well known for her work for prohibition.

Heat Is Quick to Affect the Bowels

Well-Known Fact That Extreme Heat Conduces to Chronic Constipation.

So many people are in the habit of eating cold food in hot weather that constipation is very common during summer. It is best to vary the food and have some hot things, as, for example, soups and hot fish and meats, if that is to be the diet. Iced water should be drunk sparingly.

In spite of all care people will become constipated, and if you find yourself in that condition you can get immediate relief by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. There is no time of the year when you should be more careful of constipation than in the summer, for many of the serious illnesses as well as the fatalities result from a clogging up of the bowels. You also need general good health to withstand the heat, and hence Syrup Pepsin is best to take because it contains tonic ingredients that help to build up the entire system.

Numerous users throughout the land will verify these facts, among them Mr. George C. Allen, 408 N. Main St., Reading, Mass., who recovered his health completely after using only two bottles; and Miss Anna Schoff, 249 S. Washington St., Baltimore, Md., who uses it for constipation and now has her mother and friends also using it. They now avoid drastic remedies like cathartics, tablets, purgatives, salt water, pills and such things. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, mild and pleasant, and children like it. You can obtain it of any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar, a large bottle. Each bottle must do what is claimed or your money will be refunded.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it, postpaid, by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 418 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

It Hardly Seems Our Business To Apologize For COFFEE

But simply to place the truth before people and let them act as they see fit.

That easily explains the cause of many a coffee drinker's disturbance of heart, stomach, liver and nerves.

It's a good idea when the body begins to show disturbances, to quit coffee and use

INSTANT POSTUM

This pure food-drink, sold by grocers everywhere, is warranted pure and absolutely free from the coffee drug, caffeine. It feeds and nourishes where coffee destroys the tissues.

Instant Postum is made of prime wheat and the juice of sugar-cane, roasted and blended to produce a flavour much resembling high-grade Java.

A level teaspoonful of Instant Postum in an ordinary cup of hot water dissolves instantly, and makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular Postum (must be boiled).

Instant Postum doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water.

MAJOR GRASTY DIES SUDDENLY

Prominent Confederate Veteran Entered the Civil War With His Classmates of Virginia Military Institute.

Major William C. Grasty, a distinguished confederate veteran died suddenly at his residence, 59 East Ellis street, Saturday evening. He was a native of Danville, Va., and was a member of the V. M. I. cadet corps at the battle of New Market in Shenandoah Valley.

When the war between the states broke out he was a student at the Virginia Military Institute, and with his classmates, he enlisted in Lee's army, when but a boy.

Though an unassuming, quiet man, he always took pride in the personnel of that cadet regiment, which turned out several men who achieved considerable distinction in later years. He fought side by side with Governor John S. Wise, of Virginia, who was a classmate at the V. M. I.

Classmate of Sculptor.

Another member of his cadet corps was E. Ezekiel, the famous sculptor who has made many notable statues, including the marble statue of Lee, which is now in Richmond, and a statue of the V. M. I. cadets which adorns the school campus in Lexington. Ezekiel, who is now in Rome, working on a statue of Stonewall Jackson, was one of Major Grasty's favorites as was Ballinger Baylor, an Atlanta civil engineer.

After seeing valiant service throughout the entire war, he was present at the surrender at Appomatox. He had earned the commission of a captain, but to his many friends in Atlanta he is more familiarly known as major.

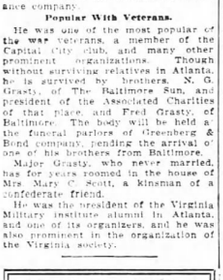
He came to Atlanta in the seventies, engaged in the commission business, later being his specialty. He was also connected with the Aetna Life Insurance company.

Popular With Veterans.

He was one of the most popular of the war veterans a member of the Capital City club, and many other prominent organizations. Though without surviving relatives in Atlanta, he is survived by brothers, N. G. Grasty, of The Baltimore Sun, and president of the Associated Charities of that place, and Fred Grasty, of Baltimore. The body will be held at the funeral parlors of Greenberg & Bond company, pending the arrival of one of his brothers from Baltimore.

Major Grasty, who never married, has for years roomed in the house of Mrs. Mary C. Scott, a kinsman of a confederate friend.

He was the president of the Virginia Military Institute alumni in Atlanta, and one of its organizers, and he was also prominent in the organization of the Virginia society.



MAJOR W. C. GRASTY.

WILSON LOST HIS WAY ON TRIP TO WEDDING

President and Party Piloted to Baltimore Through Mud and Water.

Baltimore, June 21.—President Wilson and members of his family arrived at Brookland Wood, country home of Captain Isaac E. Emerson, at 4:15 this afternoon for the wedding of Frank H. McAdoo, son of the secretary of the treasury, and Ethel Preston McCormick.

The marriage took place indoors, the plans to have an outdoor ceremony having to be abandoned because of an electrical storm.

Wilson Lost Way.

Washington, D. C., June 21.—President Wilson and his party returned to the white house at 8:45 o'clock tonight after a difficult motor ride through muddy roads and a downpour of rain.

The president and his party lost their way a few miles north of Baltimore. "I'll tow you in," volunteered Frank Primrose, of Catonsville, who was motoring along with his family. He warned the chauffeur not to attempt the route they had chosen, as the hills were muddy and dangerous. Primrose did not know that he was piloting the president of the United States, but discovered it later, as he noted the American coat-of-arms on the president's car.

"I helped former Governor Warfield get to town only yesterday," said Primrose proudly, as he got the president's party on the right road and directed them to Baltimore.

The three big machines carrying the president, his family and secret service men plowed through water and mud at a good clip. Once, however, the rain was so heavy that the party stopped under a covered bridge. The 120-mile ride was the longest the president had taken in an automobile since he came to Washington.

Some of the members of the cabinet came back by motor, but most of them returned on a special train.

COYLE IS ACQUITTED IN GIN "TRUST" CASE

Guthrie, Okla., June 21.—W. H. Coyle, millionaire cotton man; F. E. Houghton and Jacob Douglas, of Guthrie, and R. A. Yoe, of Oklahoma City, were found not guilty by a jury in the state court here tonight on an indictment charging them with violation of the Oklahoma anti-trust law by forming a pool to raise the price of cotton ginning.

The defendants, who are prominent figures in the cotton industry of the state, were charged with seeking to control the cotton ginning situation through an association known as the New State Brokerage company. The case has been on trial for several days and went to the jury today.

A number of cases in Oklahoma men interested in the cotton ginning industry have been indicted on similar charges.

The prosecution concedes the outcome in the Coyle case will govern in the other indictments.

ADOLPHUS BUSCH III. WEDS DIVORCED WOMAN

St. Louis, Mo., June 21.—Adolphus Busch III., grandson of Adolphus Busch, the multimillionaire, and Mrs. Florence Parker Lambert, a divorcee, were married tonight at the summer home of the bridegroom's father, Augusta Busch, Stafford Parker, of Richmond, Va., a brother of the bride, gave her away.

In application for the marriage license the bride's age was given as 31. Busch is 22. Mrs. Adolph Busch III. was divorced from Marion L. J. Lambert and has three children.

CHILD'S DEATH RECALLS FATHER'S TRAGIC END

Bessie Morris, the 4-year-old daughter of Mrs. Aaron Morris, for whom The Constitution raised between $2,000 and $4,000 following the burning of her husband over one year ago, died at a private sanitarium Saturday night, and the body was removed to the funeral parlors of Greenberg & Bond company. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

The death of the little girl recalls the tragic death which her father met on year ago, when aroused by the screams of a woman, he remonstrated with the negro who had grabbed her and was then stabbed to death.

Bull and Washburn Win.

New York, June 21.—Charles M. Bull, Jr., and Fred Washburn won the Metropolitan lawn tennis championship in doubles here today at the West Side Tennis club. In the final round they defeated R. D. Little and W. M. Hall, 7-9, 6-2, 8-6, 6-2. The result was an upset, as Little is an exnational champion and member of the Davis cup team, while Hall has been rated at No. 19 on the national list for the country.

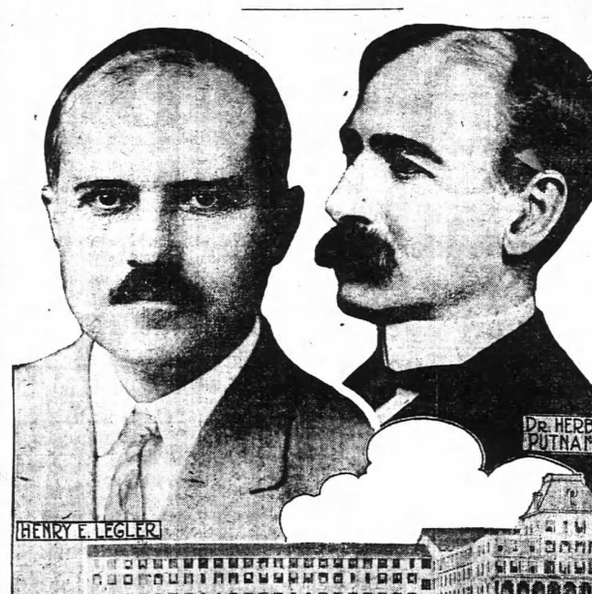
Travis Is Winner.

Wilmington, Del., June 21.—Walter J. Travis, of Garden City, defeated B. Warren Cockran, of Baltimore, 3 up and 2 to play in the final round for the Wilmington cup today at the annual golf tournament at Wilmington.

The Marriage Fee.

The marriage fee has been announced as graft, not by smarting under the necessity of paying it, but by one accustomed to receiving it. The Rev. Almer Pennewell, rector of the Euclid Avenue Episcopal church of Oak Park Ill., has decided not to take any more fees for such service, holding that since the church insists that marriage is a church rite it should make it free to all. The minister says that not need a fee, he things, should ashamed to take it, while if he really needs help it is the part of the church to be ashamed and promptly to raise his salary. But is he altogether just to his fellow clergymen, when he says they stand at wedding with an open hand behind them? There is no compulsion in the matter of wedding fees. If a high, fixed price were established which discouraged marriage and encouraged immortality, it would be another question altogether. Such is not the case. The clergyman says what he wishes, and sometimes nothing at all. It may well be asked, are clergymen competent to pass upon a matter of this sort? A very, one knows, marriage fees in many churches go to the minister's wife. Has the dominie a right to give up what doesn't belong to him? Provided he is a single man, the Rev. Mr. Pennewell is quite competent to say that he will no longer take wedding fees, but let him not encroach upon the time-honored privilege of the mistress of the manse.

LIBRARIANS GATHER FOR BIG CONVENTION



When 1,200 members of the American Library association meet at the Hotel Kaaterskill, in New York state, on June 23 for their thirty-fifth annual convention, William Sulzer, governor of New York state, will be one of the principal speakers. He will discuss the relation of the public libraries to the foreign population of the United States at the Tuesday morning session under the subject, "Our Fellow Citizens of Foreign Birth," and show how the institutions are helping the foreigners adjust themselves to American conditions. Henry E. Legler, president of the association, will open the first session of the convention on Monday evening, June 23, with an address on "The World of Print and the World's Work." Mr. Legler is one of the best known librarians in this country. Formerly he was chairman of the publishing board of the association and for several years previous to that was secretary of the Wisconsin Free Library association. He was also elected to the Wisconsin legislature for one term and is the author of a history of Wisconsin. Dr. Herbert Putnam, the librarian of the library of congress at Washington since 1899, will attend the convention and discuss the future of the library system with the other delegates. Dr. Putnam has had a long experience in library work. He was formerly at the Minneapolis public library and later went to the Boston public library, from which post he advanced to the position he now holds. Under his administration the library of congress has become its place as the national library of the country in a fuller sense than that institution previously had. Dr. Putnam has been twice the president of the association and is prominent in its councils. Other prominent delegates who will attend are Edward Stevens, director and librarian of the Pratt institute free library of Brooklyn; Senator E. Bostwick, librarian of the St. Louis public library; Miss Mary Frances Isom, librarian of the Oregon Library association, and Matthew S. Dudgeon, secretary of the Wisconsin Library association.

MODERN PSYCHOLOGY APPLIED TO CLOTHES

New York, June 14—Carlyle made familiar to us the philosophy of clothes, proving beyond the possibility of effective contradiction that man's garb is a mere index of his life, but the psychology of clothes is quite another question. That is a modern discovery which is slowly and surely gaining the attention of the lay mind. Perhaps the majority of us are too busy in our endeavor to get clothes of any quality, color or construction to waste our much-needed energy on solving the question of whether this or that color scheme harmonizes with our temperament or, when adopted by us, typifies the bent and peculiarity of our personality. The woman who dresses well makes us conscious of her beauty, charm, softness and grace, and the nearer she approaches perfection in the art the more does she give us a happy impression of harmony and loveliness, unmarred by an obtrusion of detail. This is dress technique at its highest. To accomplish this woman must know herself. Her clothes must be the crown and culmination of her personality.

The frock seen in the first figure not only conforms to the dictates of fashion, but it may impersonate also the indiosyncrasies of the wearer. If the hair be brown, the complexion clear and the eyes brown or blue, shades either blue or brown will develop it advantageously. As represented the dress was made of checked brown-and-tan silk. Collar, cuffs and girdle of Bulgarian silk effectively brighten the costume. The "toss and feathery" neckwear may also tell a tale of personality. Usually women of most discriminating taste prefer little elaboration; with them line is the most important factor of the gown. It is made to accent all good points and conceal all bad ones. Therefore the task of the woman who does her own sewing, to choose a model suited to her style.

At the present moment Bulgarian and Futurist trimmings are thought to produce just the right touch of piquancy and picturesqueness, but whatever country, from Japan to Turkey, serves as fount of inspiration should use discrimination in adopting its color scheme and choose only those whose main tone is to them becoming. A touch of color at throat, wrist or waistline is generally considered sufficient to brighten the most somber gown. Should the gown be of light tone, trimming in pleasing contrast may be used with good effect, and on the more serviceable frocks of coarse mesh and fabric the gay color effect is most pleasing. For evening, however, all such conspicuous shades are passe. Delicate pastel tones are preferred when the choice of trimming is silk or satin. But beads, bugles, rhinestones, and fancy buckles, buttons and soft-toned pearls, are first choice. All of these are very effective on the wonderfully soft chiffon and tulle used for evening. On some of the simpler frocks pearls alone are used. The most elaborate lingerie dresses this season are made of batiste embroidery combined with genuine laces of Cluny, filet, Venise and d'Alencon. Net, combined with batiste embroidery, is also much in favor for both afternoon and evening.

English eyelet embroidery is quite smart, but the material used is batiste, not linen, and is wrought in many spray and floral motifs as well as much "eyeleted."

Since gowns of sheerest fabrics—voile, marquisette, sheer linen and chiffon—are most fashionable, the petticoat, on which heretofore some economy could be practiced, has come forward as one of the most important of garments, quite as great a factor as the dress skirt. Not infrequently the entire effect of the costume depends on the style and material of the petticoat. Those of chiffon, for evening wear with the frock of the same diaphanous web, are very charming. They may either harmonize with or match the shade of the frock and they are to be had in white, pink, blue, lavender and yellow. Many are trimmed with lace medallions and have flounces of shadow lace. Rosebuds, outlining the top flounce, make a pretty finish.

A recent novelty is a petticoat, all of net, unlined, with corset waist to match. This is most effective for wear with summer frocks. Petticoats of shadow lace and net are popular and may be worn either with evening or afternoon dresses. Crepe de chine, nainsook and fine French batiste or linon are also much used. For the dark tailored suit, petticoats of messaline and soft taffeta are still popular. It is very important that the petticoat be well cut. Under the tight skirts a few inches of extra width will make a crease in the skirt. Every particle of superfluous flare in the lower of underskirts, but of every undergarment worn with the present-day costumes, must be carefully cut away. It is only in the frock for practical wear that woman can afford to be extravagant in underwear. For wear with a costume such as that of the second illustration, the cut of the petticoat must be as carefully considered, but the materials and finish may be less fragile and dainty. The charming shirt waist in this figure was developed in white voile. Low collar and yoke proclaim the prevailing mode. A girdle of silk is in pleasing harmony with the green stripe of the skirt. The skirt was developed in green and tan summer silk, with a few folds of drapery at the left side. Buttons form an effective finish. To the woman who cannot afford one of the new mannequins of chiffon or soft silk so dainty for summer wear, it will be a consolation to know that she may wear the cost of her silk suit with her sheer lingerie frocks and be considered quite smart.

MARRY AT POLICE STATION EARLY ON SUNDAY MORNING

Call officers at police station are accustomed to thrills, but there was a new one in store for them this morning at 2:30 o'clock when they were called upon to act as witnesses at the wedding of Miss A. C. Whaley and Mr. Edward Ewart, both of 235 Whitehall street.

The young couple were scheduled to get married on Saturday afternoon, and had secured a marriage license, but had been unable to find a minister. So they appealed to Plain Clothes Officers Lloyd and Kilpatrick, and the officers sent them to police station and gave their ready assistance to Dan Cupid.

The owner of an automobile who was at the station was impressed into service and sent after Justice of the Peace Girardeau, and at 2:20 o'clock this morning, with newspaper reporters and callmen as witnesses, and with the police station fire alarm and patrol bells ringing loudly, the ceremony was performed.

BRYAN BACKING WILSON ON CURRENCY MEASURE

Secretary Announces That He Will Work for the Glass Bill.

Washington, June 21.—Secretary Bryan tonight announced that he was strongly in favor of the Glass currency bill, and let it be known that he would use what influence he could in bringing about its early enactment by congress.

Mr. Bryan had intended issuing a statement tonight, giving his view on the measure in full and giving his reason for supporting. The statement, however, will not be issued until tomorrow, his decision to withhold it being the result of a conference with President Wilson and members of the cabinet. Secretary Bryan, it is understood, has given the subject of currency reform the closest attention, and has come to the conclusion that the need of reform measures is urgent.

For many weeks rumor has been in circulation that Mr. Bryan was not in entire accord with those in charge of the currency reform plans, and that he might use his influence to prevent present action upon the legislation.

President Wilson has taken a firm stand behind the Glass currency bill and has told democratic members of the house banking and currency committee that, as under the constitution he had the right to recommend specific legislation to congress, he feels justified in recommending the measure now before them.

It was said at the white house today that he would not compromise on the essential features of the measure, particularly those which concern concentration of the reserves in New York city and control of the money market.

The fight over retirement of $700,000,000 two per cent bonds promises to be a spirited one.

Real Boy Judges.

The boys' court of Boston, managed and presided over by boys, is a social settlement of the government, and its decisions are of as much binding force as those of any other court. It tries cases, principally, against especially newsboys—for the infraction of city ordinances, such as those against jumping on moving cars and against gambling. It has greatly reduced the police problem, and it has raised the ideals of the boys, as appears from the following conversation with a boy judge of the court, reported in the World's Work for June:

"How do you like your job?"

A serious expression came into his face as he replied, "In a way I like it, but a fellow has got to keep his eye peeled on himself, and his 'think-tank' pretty clear."

"How your court sat very late last night."

"Yes," he said, "we have a good many cases last night."

"Ho w many sessions do you hold a week?"

"One usually, and sometimes two."

"How much are you paid for service on the bench?"

"Fifty cents from the city every night we serve."

"Who decides the number of nights you shall sit?"

"We do—the judges."

"If you wanted to, could you hold a session every evening?"

"I think probly we could," he answered.

"Then why don't you hold more sessions instead of continuing them so late?"

"Because," he said, "we don't want to have it look as if we was grantin' off the city."

Japanese Moral Standards.

The moral and business standards of the Japanese are difficult for the white man to comprehend. It is a common observation that the Chinaman's only virtues are business virtues, whereas the chief faults of the Japanese are business faults. Therefore the American business man, understanding no standards but business standards, judges the Chinese by his virtues and the Japanese by his faults.

American and Chinese civilizations are built on contract. Japanese civilization is built on personal honor and loyalty. So when the American business man sees the Chinese keeping his contract, he discovers in him the rudiments of his own high ideals. But when a Japanese finds himself in a contract which changed conditions have now made burdensome, he wonders uncomprehendingly how an honorable gentleman could desire to impose on him terms which are now unjust. And the honorable gentleman understands only that the Japanese wants to sneak out of an honest bargain. The two moral standards are incommensurable. The Japanese who may evade a business obligation but who will sacrifice his life to a punctilio of honor or patriotism—he is a mystery. But the Chinese who will rob his government, or perjure the member of a rival tong to the gallows, but whose business is honest, is a mystery.—World's Work.

COL. FELDER RETURNS FROM TRIP TO OHIO

Journey Had No Relation to the Phagan Mystery or Dictagraph Incident, He Says.

Colonel T. B. Felder returned Saturday from a six-day trip to Cincinnati. Much speculation was created by his departure for Ohio last Sunday and it was hinted that he had made the journey in interest of his recent connection with the famous dictagraph plot.

It was also reported that he had gone in behalf of the Mary Phagan investigation, in which he has been an active figure. His departure within less than twenty-four hours after Solicitor General Hugh Dorsey had left the city gave rise to this suspicion.

He declared to a Constitution reporter last night, however, that the Cincinnati trip had been made solely on personal business and that it had no connection at all with either the Phagan mystery or the dictagraph episode.

Colonel Felder stated that he had received no information from the grand jury regarding his demand that Gentry's charges be investigated and that he did not know when that body would take up the proposed probe.

A. S. Colyar, a leading actor in the dictagraph case and instigator of the alleged trap, last night in the afternoon visited Chief Lanford for a long conference and also had a few words with Chief Beavers.

It is said that he will remain in Atlanta for some time.

Bible's Noble Style and Diction.

(From the Springfield Republican.)

Professor Quiller-Couch recently delivered at Cambridge university a lecture on the authorized version of the Bible. He said that he did not admire Elizabethan prose, and gave credit for the beauty of seventeenth century English to the forty-seven translators of the Bible. Professor Quiller-Couch's admiration of the St. James version is shared by all, but critics of the English of government acts of the St. James version are found in the earlier sixteenth century versions. "If," he will turn to the versions of Wiclif and Tyndal," written in the time of the Westminster Gazette, "or to that of the Rheims revision, he will find some at any rate of those unnumbered felicities which have become part and parcel of our English tongue." Another correspondent asserts that the "noble style and diction" were certainly of the sixteenth century, not the seventeenth. The new professor, who, it will be remembered, is a novelist, and who holds a chiefly ornamental position at Cambridge, has been convicted of an ungraded—to put in harshly, an unscholarly—statement.

Posing a Hungry Lion for Motion Pictures.

DIES SUDDENLY

"OH! - - OH!"

Try "GETS-IT," the Painless New-Plan Corn Cure. See Your Corns Vanish in a Hurry.

"Whew! hurts my feet to my heart. I've tried almost everything for corns." Corn-suffering corpulent boy in hand: "GETS-IT" is the only real enemy any corn ever had. Put "GETS-IT" on in 2 seconds, and away they go, shrivel, vanish. No more cotton rings to make the corn sharper and more bulky, no more bandages to stop circulation and stick to the stocking, no more salves to turn the flesh raw and make the corn "pull," no more knives or razors with danger of bleeding and blood poisoning.

"GETS-IT" is painless, stops pain, and is absolutely harmless to healthy flesh. Warts and bunions disappear. "GETS-IT" gives immediate relief.

"GETS-IT" is sold at drug stores at 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price to E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

ISLE OF PALMS NOW OPEN

Exceptionally Large Crowd at Isle of Palms This Week.

The principal attraction at Isle of Palms today will be the motorcycle races on the beach. Similar races will be run every Sunday during the season, expert riders from Atlanta, Augusta, Greenville and other cities being invited to compete for prizes and the silver cup offered the champion rider of the summer. Amateur rules govern the contests, managed by M. S. Sullivan, of Charleston.

On Friday, June 27, a special train will leave Atlanta bearing the delegates in attendance to the City Salesmen's Association Convention. The very low rate of $6.00 round trip from Atlanta to Isle of Palms and return, will be in effect on special occasion. The regular season rate of $10 round trip for ten days is good for the entire summer.

As a convention center, the Isle of Palms is fast gaining recognition in the south. The largest convention yet handled assembled there the first week in last September, when the Improved Order of Red Men met there and they found ample room in the main pavilion for their large convention. This pavilion has a seating capacity of 3,000.

Mr. Edw. A. Passalisigue, advertising manager of the Isle of Palms, was in Atlanta this week telling of the wonderful improvements which have been made there this season. Mr. Passalisigue says: "The resort promises to be the most popular on the Atlantic coast this summer. The hotel property which was recently purchased by Mr. Jas. Sottile, is under his personal operation and is being managed by W. J. Hanlon, of the New Charleston Hotel. Mr. Sottile has expended $250,000 in improvements, which has made the Isle of Palms one of the most attractive resorts on the entire Atlantic coast." Every attraction has been provided for guests, including a military band, which frequent concerts during the week and dancing every night. There is an excellent bathing beach entirely free from undertow. There has not been a death by accident in the Isle of Palms in the past seven years. Large corps of expert life guards are maintained, however.

A half hourly trolley schedule has been provided from Charleston. Reservations are being made from Atlanta.

Bride of Last Week

MRS. FRANK H. THIELE,
Of Chattanooga. Mrs. Thiele was Miss Ethel Daniel, of Atlanta, and her marriage took place last week.

AUGUSTA'S SOCIAL SIDE

Augusta, June 21.—(Special Correspondence.)—One of the interesting society events of the week was the bridge party given by Mrs. William A. Mulherin on Thursday afternoon at her home on Greene street, in compliment to Mrs. James Moore, of Hillsboro, Tex., who is the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Joseph C. Fargo. The prizes, which were gold hatpins, were won by Mrs. Milledge Lockhart and Mrs. George Traylor, and the honor guest was presented with a bluebird pin. Ices were served after the game.

Miss Katie R. Mims was married on Thursday at the parsonage of the First Baptist church, Rev. M. Ashby Jones officiating, to Mr. James L. Fountain, of Brookhaven, Miss. Owing to a recent family bereavement there were no cards of announcement and the ceremony was quietly performed in the presence of only a few near relatives and friends. After an extended bridal trip Mr. and Mrs. Fountain will make their home in McComb, Miss., where the groom is in business.

Cards have been received by Augusta friends to the marriage of Mr. S. D. Morris, of this city, and Miss Mary V. Herndon, of Powelton, Ga., on Friday, June 25, in the Baptist church at Powelton. Mr. Morris has for years been connected with the circulation and advertising departments of the Augusta Chronicle and is receiving many congratulations and good wishes from a large circle of friends.

After attending the Alexander-Jackson wedding, Mrs. Gordon Harrison has returned to Savannah. She was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. James U. Jackson during her stay in Augusta.

Mrs. Edward B. Hook and Master Francis Hook have gone to East Lake, near Atlanta, with Mrs. Mary Burt Howard for the summer months. Miss Eleanor Hook will visit her cousin in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Stephens Hook.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. White and daughter, Cornelia, leave today for a stay at Old Point Comfort.

Mrs. William Cozart and Miss Elizabeth Cozart motored to Savannah on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Dunbar, Jr., of Johnston, S. C., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Otis for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Weisiger have returned from Atlanta.

Miss Belle Blackstone has returned from a pleasant visit to Atlanta.

Misses Catherine and Annie Caperton have returned to their home in Virginia, after being guests at the Alexander-Jackson wedding Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Ella Baxter and her daughters, Misses Lucy and Vera Baxter, have gone to Beaufort, S. C., for a sojourn with Mrs. O'Dell.

Lieutenant and Mrs. L. C. Hair, of Charleston, paused in Augusta on their bridal trip as the guests of Mrs. James B. McKie, in North Augusta. The bride, as Miss Sadie Jervey, visited Mrs. McKie last summer and has a number of friends in this city.

Miss Mary Ada Williams, of Valdosta, who is visiting Mrs. Percy May, was pleasantly entertained by her hostess on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Stephen B. McCord entertained her Card club on her lawn under the shade trees at her home on Chafee avenue on Thursday afternoon. Five-hundred was the game played and the prize for the highest score was awarded to Mrs. Zachary Beard, a pretty hand-embroidered centerpiece. Salad, tea and ices were served after the game.

Mr. Milton Hargrove, of Augusta, and Miss Julia Hutchinson, of Laurens, S. C., were married in Laurens on Tuesday at the home of the bride. Dr. Lawson, pastor of the Baptist church, officiating. They went north on their bridal trip.

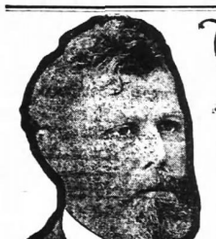
The Doctor's Advice
by Dr. Lewis Baker



The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Kit" writes: "I am far below normal weight. I suffer with headaches and am nervous to the point of exhaustion. If you can tell me something to help me I shall be very grateful."

Answer: I can prescribe nothing so effective as a thorough course of three grains hypo-nuclane tablets. These tablets will aid in extracting the nutrition from the food which will increase the red blood supply, overcome nervousness and you will become plump and healthy. The treatment should be continued for several months, as it takes time to change the tissues and cells of the body.

* * *

"Sarah" says: "Can anything be done for one who is bothered with rheumatism. If so please reply."

Answer: You can be entirely cured of your rheumatism if you take the following: Mix by shaking well and take a teaspoonful at meal times and at bed time and you will soon be cured. Comp. essence cardiol, oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; syrup sarsaparilla comp., 3 ozs.; wine of colchicum, one-half oz.; sodium salicylate, 4 drams, iodide of potassium, 2 drams.

* * *

"Ray" writes: "Can a sufferer from bronchial trouble be relieved? Doctors do not seem to help me, what would you suggest?"

Answer: To cure chronic cold, sore throat, and bronchitis, I would advise the use of concentrated essence menthol-laxene. Purchase this at any drug store in 2 1-2 oz. packages and mix according to directions given on bottle and you will very shortly be cured of all bronchial trouble. This will not only relieve, but will cure, and is very pleasant to take.

* * *

"Hulda" says: "I cannot eat without great distress after eating I am sleepless and restless, nervous and irritable. Can you tell me anything that would cure me?"

Answer: Your trouble is all due to your stomach which causes the nervous, restless feeling. Take tablets trionpeptine and you will soon be cured of all this trouble. These are packed in sealed cartons and are pink, white and blue tablets to be taken after meals. Take the pink tablet after breakfast, white after dinner and blue after supper. If this is continued the curative agencies will soon restore natural digestion.

* * *

"Miss M." writes: "I suffer greatly with my nerves, am almost on the point of nervous prostration. I cannot sleep and am hysterical at times. Can you help me?"

Answer: Many women, old and young, who have suffered as you do, have been cured by using the following tonic restorative treatment. Get from your druggist 1 oz. tincture calabrese (not cardamom) and 8 ozs. syrup of hypophosphites comp., mix, and take a teaspoonful before each meal. Always shake well before taking.

* * *

Miss T. R. asks: "Do you think a weight of 170 pounds is too much for a girl of medium height; and what can I safely take to reduce about 30 pounds?"

Answer: Your weight is excessive, and if it increases it may cause much suffering and discouragement. I advise the regular use of 5-grain arholene tablets, which are sold by most pharmacies in sealed tubes with full directions for self-administration.

* * *

"Carpenter" writes: "My liver and kidneys are in a bad condition. I have dizzy spells and dark spots before my eyes. Also have twinges of rheumatism. Can I be helped?"

Answer: To cure kidney and liver trouble use three grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur). These are packed in sealed tubes with full directions for taking. They act pleasantly and tone up the bowels and liver and purify the blood. They are convenient, effective and highly curative.

* * *

"Phoebe"—The following will cure your children of bedwetting. Get 2 drams of tincture rhubarbiac, 2 drams tincture cubebs and 1 oz. comp. fluid balmwort. Mix, and give the child from 10 to 15 drops in water about one hour before each meal.

* * *

"Maud" writes: "I have suffered a great deal with catarrh. It gives me headaches, affects my eyes and my breath is awful. Can you prescribe something to cure it. Only my nostrils and throat are affected."

Answer: I have prescribed antiseptic valine powder and grateful letters from hundreds indicate that it is speedily curative, but must be used carefully to prevent a recurrence. Get a two-ounce original package of valine powder; use a half teaspoonful to a pint of warm water. From the palm of the hand snuff the water through the nostrils until thoroughly cleansed, two or three times daily. Mix a level teaspoonful of valine powder with an ounce of lard or vaseline and apply well up into the nostrils twice daily and your catarrh should soon be cured.

"Onda" writes: "I am troubled with itching scalp, dandruff and my hair is falling out. It is harsh and brittle."

Answer: Plain Yellow Minyol is the best remedy for itching scalp, falling hair and dandruff that I know of. It can be bought in 4 oz. jars and if used according to directions will cure all diseases of the hair and scalp. If the hair is harsh and brittle and you are bothered with those straggling locks, the use of minyol will restore that soft, fluffy appearance and bring back the intense natural color.

EVERY WOMAN'S DUTY

The chamber of commerce has opened the path for a cleaner city by inaugurating a social survey of Atlanta.

This survey will touch on sanitation, and it behooves the housekeepers to note carefully the conditions which affect the home.

The outline of the work projected by the health department of the General Federation is given elsewhere. This outline gives an idea of the work which we could do to follow up the social survey.

One most striking need is that of better sanitation in negro quarters. We of the south must realize the necessity of making negro servants keep clean.

As Dr. Weatherfort says: "Whether we sit down to dinner in our homes or in a hotel it is a vital question which cannot be lightly passed over, under what sanitary conditions does the negro who cooked and served this meal live?" It is indeed a vital question, the disease and immorality which is bred in filthy quarters of a town cannot be kept there. The contact of servant and mistress is most intimate.

Can meals be sanitary when cooks live under insanitary conditions? Can children be well reared when the morals and tongues of nurses are uncontrolled?

We owe this much to ourselves! Namely, that our servants be better trained. If the altruistic motive which leads a strong woman to help a weaker in times of trouble would not lead us to exercise a maternal care over the health of our servants, the danger of disease to ourselves certainly ought to prompt us to do so.

Do you know where and how your cook lives? Do you know with that filth your wash is contaminated weekly? If not, find out. Maybe your servants clean. It is not only your civic duty, but your duty to your family and yourself to follow the work of the social survey and prevent the spread of disease in the fly months.

Slighting Southern Literature

Under this caption a recent number of the Literary Digest discusses a protest, made by Mrs. Townes Randolph Leigh, state historian of the Alabama division, U. D. C., against the use of Professor Branden Mathews' "Introduction to the Study of American Literature" as a text book in the high schools of the south.

It is a lamentable fact that even Lanier is shown scant attention by northern critics, and our lesser literary lights almost ignored, with the exception of our own Joel Chandler Harris. Perhaps the judgment of future will reverse much of the partisan criticism of the present. However, that may be, the south itself is much to blame for non-recognition of its own writers.

In how many libraries are Hayne and Timrod and Lanier to be found? How much do our young people know of southern literature?

The stories the Federation of Women's Clubs have offered a prize for the best essay on "The Soul and Mind of the Southern People as Expressed in Their Literature," the ages of contestants to be between 18 and 25 years.

This was done with the altruistic motive of stimulating interest in and increased knowledge of the poetry, fiction, oratory, essays and history written by southern authors.

The state literature district presidents will furnish all detailed information and receive the essays when sent in.

The committee is most anxious to meet with response to their appeal to the young men and women of the state in this contest.

FOR THE ALL-ROUND LIFE, NACOOCHEE SCHOOL STANDS

Nestling in the heart of the Nacoochee valley you will find this institution in which a large number of Georgia women are taking an ever-deepening interest.

Its work consists in a central school, conducted for the usual term of nine months, and a system of supplementary schools carried on during the summer andnearly fall.

At Nacoochee institute there are about 150 pupils who are being trained by five Christian teachers for service to God and their neighbors.

In the five extension schools are gathered from 125 to 150 others who are reached by the central school. Five Sunday schools are conducted, through which 250 people, outside the central work, are being reached in a most helpful way.

The Work of the School.

Nacoochee institute stands for the all-round life. Our effort is to train the hand as well as the head and heart. Everybody is required to do actual manual labor.

The boys cut wood, draw water, care for stock, make fires, build roads, dig ditches, or anything a boy may be expected to do in his own home.

All the housework is done by the girls, and they do their own laundry work in a building erected largely through funds contributed by a club of young girls in Augusta.

Athens has equipped a domestic science department for our school where the girls are given an opportunity to learn the essentials of plain cooking. While thus training the hand and heart we believe "as a man thinketh in his heart, so he is." Each day both in dormitory and school room the Bible Word is given specific time and place. From the primary grades to the seniors the Bible is becoming a familiar textbook.

The Cry of the Mothers.

Nacoochee institute is trying to answer the cry of the mothers of the hills, who tell us: "Our girls have no chance." Appreciation of the efforts put forth here is not wanting. One mother having an offer made to her of a term in Rome for two of her daughters, turned with the light of self-sacrifice shining in her eyes, said: "And who will take care of the babies of this world come to the likes of us."

Here are people of the best ancestry; people of magnificent possibilities; people of whose fathers fought for our religious liberty. Shall we now deny them the very privileges they helped in days gone by give to us?

The work of the year gone by ending May 30, has been harmonious and fruitful. Six splendid women of training and culture has this year given themselves to this work. No one can doubt they are here for love of its work. Each one is making a definite sacrifice as the salaries are uniform. Each one receives $25 per month and board.

One of the workers, a woman of wide experience in mountain schools, says after ten months over at Nacoochee: "I say that the work here appeals to me as one of large scope. It's strength and its weakness have impressed me from the first. I am happier here than I have ever been."

Miss Mary Mr. Coit was leaving to attend the layman's convention in Memphis, one called out: "Mr. Coit, tell the people that you left behind a very happy set of workers at Nacoochee!"

REBECCA GALLOWAY COIT.

Work of Health Department of The General Federation

By Mrs. S. S. Crockett.

When one reflects upon the surprising political events of 1913, wherein a man of letters, a seer, a statesman, albeit a college president, has been made president of the United States; and wherein a country school master, a prohibitionist, a man of vast intelligence, but without guile or experience in wire-pulling, has been sent to the United States senate from Tennessee (storm-tossed and disrupted as we are supposed to be politically), the veriest peasimist must admit that a brighter day has dawned for altruistic work.

This evolution of the altruistic spirit is exemplified in the women's club movement where we still study to improve our minds, but where we are coming more and more to believe that we must translate our mental improvement into deeds of human helpfulness if we would have our organizations keep step with our country's economic and sociological progress.

The health department of the General Federation of Women's clubs seeks to take its place in this progressive march by furnishing leadership, for club women, in national health movements and as far as possible, serving as a clearing house for ideas, along the lines of health activities which may be adapted to the needs of local situations.

The Last Federation Resolutions.

During the present term the general federation health department is aiming at consecutive cumulative results in club health work by endeavoring to lead the states to link their work with the health resolutions adopted at the San Francisco biennial. In the past few years Mrs. Moore and now Mrs. Pennybacker, as president, have been awakening our consciences concerning the subsequent treatment of the resolutions which we adopt, and (as Miss Julia Lathrop expresses it) "so often merrily flutter off to something else."

I therefore beg to briefly enumerate these San Francisco resolutions, with some explanations, which I hope will serve to earn for them favorable consideration of club women:

Resolution one bears an intelligent interest in the honest enforcement of food and drugs act, in which connection it would especially attention to the articles on meat inspection which are now appearing in Pearson's Magazine from the pen of our advisory member, Caroline Bartlett Crane. As a consequence of Mrs. Crane's investigations Congressman Nelson, of Wisconsin, introduced a resolution into congress which will be acted upon next December. He is very optimistic as to the attitude of the present administration, but the time is now ripe for housekeepers to take an intelligent interest in this important subject.

Resolution two urges the carrying forward of plans which shall relieve physical defects and shall develop bodies in the young and lead to more wholesome living through medical inspection, employment of additional school nurses, outdoor schools for the physically weak, and such other means as may be found helpful in decreasing truancy, decreasing absence on account of illness, and alleviating suffering.

Child Welfare.

The child welfare section, in addition to the work for medical inspection (resolution 2), is specializing on better physical training for children, and "baby health contests." The former line of work is taken up at the request of the children's bureau, Miss Lathrop, and consisting in the scoring of photograph for distribution by club women; the second, the so-called Iowa plan, and consisting in the scoring cards copyrighted by one of our committee members, Dr. Margaret V. Clark, of Waterloo, Iowa, and she has prepared special forms for our child guidance. Miss Lathrop and Dr. Clark are now in communication with each other and it is hoped that this section will be a mammoth baby health contest at the conservation exposition to be held in Knoxville in the autumn.

The section is now co-operating with the international congress on school hygiene meeting in Buffalo, N. Y., August 25-31, and it is hoped that fully call the attention of clubs to the advantages of attending this convention.

Resolution three stands for the union and strengthening of the various governmental agencies relating to pure food, drugs, insecticides and human health—a health service devoted exclusively to the conservation of human life. Ellis Island. Efforts for the passage of this bill have been maligned and misinterpreted by its detractors, but it is only necessary to ask for a careful reading of the bill. A prominent plank in the democratic platform called for such a service, and it is believed that President Wilson is personally interested in seeing its consummation during his administration.

Resolution four asks for education toward the time when all states will have laws requiring a certificate of freedom from venereal disease of every applicant for a marriage license. The club women of Vermont have succeeded in passing such a law almost entirely on their own initiative. Iowa has also succeeded. Oklahoma club women failed after a valient fight, but have only paused for breathing space. California is in the midst of a well-planned campaign.

Much more could be added by way of elaboration and explanation of each of the subjects mentioned herein, but by way of emphasis, I shall recapitulate our outline for the coming season's work: honest enforcement of meat inspection laws; physically sound babies; healthy school children; registration of births and deaths; national health service; a clean bill of health before marriage, and in which specific lines of endeavor the general federation-health department is asking the cordial sympathy and support of clubdom.

CLUB IS ORGANIZED BY WOMEN OF QUITMAN

Enthisiasm Is Roused in South Georgia Town as Result of Page in Woman's Edition.

That our men were aroused and helped by the great Woman's Edition as well as our women is evidenced by the many assurances of co-operation.

Mrs. Nichols Peterson quotes Mrs. J. R. Davis as saying that the splendid page, devoted to Quitman's interests, quickened activities along club lines and hastened the organization and federation of the Woman's club. The men were so pleased, too, and they will organize a board of trade.

Quitman has been almost the only city of its size which had no woman's club, and Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. Fitzpatrick and the whole federation welcome this new asset most heartily.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick spent her girlhood in this famous Hickory Head community, and it has been one of her ambitions to see a big club organized here during her term of office.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Peterson and Mrs. Brantley, president of the eleventh district, were present on June 16, at a mass meeting of the women of Quitman and assisted in perfecting the organization of the Woman's club.

Officers are Named.

The new club has named Mrs. Jeff Davis, president; Mrs. L. C. Chapman, vice president; Mrs. W. T. Thompson, second vice president; Mrs. J. B. Tillman, secretary; Miss Willie Allbritton, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. L. Davidson, treasurer.

There will be departments of civics, home economics, literature, music. The energies of the club will be devoted mainly to civic work, including garden clubs, street and home improvements.

While There Is Yet Time.

Stone Castle Chapter Gives Loving Cup to Retiring Regent

The largest and perhaps the best of the many intergsting meetings enjoyed by the members of Stone Castle chapter, D. A. R. of Dawson, was the observance of "flag day" at the home of the regent, Mrs. J. S. Lowrey, the occasion marking the close of the two years of her administration.

An artistic arrangement of the national colors in the reception hall and parlor gave a festive air to the interior of the home, cut flowers in the bright hues of red, white and blue enhancing the charming effect. Miss Berta Baldwin welcomed the guests at the door, and punch was served from a silver-laden table by Misses Louise McNulty and Mamie Dean. After singing "America" and repeating the Lord's Prayer in concert the members responded to roll call, giving an incident in the life of an ancestor.

A short business session cleared up all unfinished matters and brought about some changes in the bylaws looking to the best interests of the chapter. For the convenience of some of the members the day of meeting was changed from Saturday to the third Thursday in each month. An instrumental duet by Misses Alice Melton and Annie Lou Dasher was splendid program arranged by Mrs. F. M. McNulty. Mrs. E. T. Jordan in an entertaining paper told "What Woman Has Done in America That Should Never Become Rags" was the subject of a reading by Miss Alice Melton, and a poem by Mrs. R. T. Lee, "The American Flag," was the closing number.

Officers Elected.

This being the time to elect officers for the ensuing year the nominating committee reported the following names, the secretary casting the vote: Regent, Mrs. J. S. Dean; vice regent, Mrs. F. M. McNulty; recording secretary, T. C. Geise; corresponding secretary, Mrs. R. E. Bell; treasurer, Mrs. J. D. Weaver; historian, Mrs. G. W. Dozier; registrar, Mrs. L. C. Hoyl, Jr., chaplain, Mrs. J. R. Mercer.

In well chosen words and with deep feeling the retiring regent expressed her appreciation of the loyalty and co-operation of the chapter, which made her work a pleasure, and presented a beautifully carved gavel of historic interest, it being a part of the mahogany wood from the ill-fated battleship Maine, the silver band bearing an appropriate inscription. Miss Mary Horton, in behalf of the chapter, voiced the sentiment of each member in loving gratitude for Mrs. Lowrey's splendid service in building up the work of the organization, and in turn presented to her in behalf of the chapter a handsome silver loving cup, which was brought in by Mrs. J. D. Weaver on a tray banked with white and blue flowers. The selection of the gift and the engraving reflected the good taste of Mrs. Weaver. This feature of the meeting was a complete surprise to the regent, and her voice was filled with emotion as she made an effort to express the feelings that welled up out of a full heart.

Cream and cake were served in the social hour that followed, each cake being ornamented with a United States flag to carry out the patriotic color scheme.

In addition to the large number of members present the chapter was pleased to welcome as visitors Mrs. J. W. Watts and Miss Inez Coxwell, of Shellman; Mrs. A. B. Adams, of Sabine Pass, Texas; Mrs. Walter Taylor, of Taylor, Texas; Miss Louise Jordan, of New Orleans and Mrs. and Miss Elmira Green, of Atlanta; Mrs. T. W. Glaze, of Augusta, and Miss Lucile Norman, of Rocky Ford. The presence of the bright young girl members on the chapter added life and beauty, and the gray-haired mothers, who have added dignity to the organization by having their names enrolled, were the center of loving interest, each younger daughter of the large crowd counting their very presence a benediction.

PRIZE GIVEN AT DALTON FOR GEORGIA HISTORY

The Governor John Milledge chapter, Daughters of he American Revolution of Dalton, enjoyed an interesting meeting with Mrs. W. R. Cannon, the m eeting being the last of the summer and attracting an excellent attendance.

Those present were highly entertained by one of the O. Henry stories, excellently told by Mrs. Lucas. In the business meeting plans for the benefit entertainment to be given at the Crescent theatre by the junior U. D. C. were discussed. The chapter will have charge of the program on that day, both at the afternoon and evening shows, and a special feature, in addition to the motion pictures, will be given by local talent.

The subject for the prize of $5 offered by the chapter to the public school pupil making the best grade in Georgia history during the year, was taken up, and Miss Alex Virgin and Joe Wrench, tied for the prize, and it was divided between them. The chapter was thanked for the prize by the school, the prize spurred the pupils on to extra efforts in the history work, than would have been the case had there been no prize at all, and we live to cause them to give time and attention to the work.

Following the business meeting a delightful social hour was spent with Mrs. Cannon, refreshments being served.

Mrs. Howard Mobley, of Oakland, Cal., and Mrs. T. S. Lucas were special guests of the chapter, and Mrs. R. M. Herron, one of the chapter members who lives in Chattanooga, was present at the meeting.

NEW OFFICERS NAMED BY DOROTHY WALTON CHAP.

The Dorothy Walton c hapter, D. A. R., of Dawson, had an interesting meeting on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Julia Hardie. The largest number of members in the history of the chapter were present. The attractive home was unusually bright and pretty with quantities of cut flowers, nasturtiums and sweet peas being used. The meeting was largely one of business, a number of important questions were discussed. The following officers for the coming year were elected: Mrs. R. L. Saville, vice regent; Mrs. J. C. Hollingsworth, recording secretary; Mrs. J. M. Griggs, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Roy Smith, treasurer; Mrs. C. M. Curric, registrar; Mrs. M. H. Harper, chaplain. A committee appointed for the purpose reported that arrangements had been made for a basket luncheon at Jones' mill on the 27th of June for the chapter members and their families. Guests of the chapter were Mrs. McKenzie and Mrs. Lipsey, of Cordele, who have been guests of Mrs. Julia Hardie; Mrs. G. R. Cannon and Mrs. C. W. Curry and Miss Ella Stevens, of Atlanta, and little Misses Lou Ella and Frances Nash. Mrs. Hardie assisted in entertaining. Cream and cake were served.

HISTORIAN'S REPORT OF HANNAH CLARK CHAPTER

The Hannah Clark chapter of the D. A. R. began the year with a membership of thirty-seven. Early in the year a letter was read by Mrs. Ogletree from Mrs. Brooks, urging the chapter to use "The New Song of the Revolution," written by two Atlantans. The suggestion was favorably received and the music was at once ordered. A very helpful and instructive article of "Standards in the Home," by Mrs. McMichael, was read by Mrs. McMichael. The chapter expressed their appreciation by extending a rising vote of thanks.

Mrs. Foster, state regent, made our chapter a visit in January and a reception at the Feminine club rooms was tendered her. The occasion was greatly enjoyed by all, and Mrs. Foster was profuse in her expressions of gratitude for the courtesies extended her.

Our chapter is pleased to be able to keep Artie Sizemore, a deserving and grateful boy, in Miss Berry's school and hope to give him continued assistance until he is graduated.

For the purpose of swelling our treasury, a play coached by Mrs. Rus-

MEETING OF GOVERNOR PETER EARLY CHAPTER

The Governor Peter Early chapter of Blakely D. A. R. was most graciously entertained by its regent, Mrs. Walter Thomas, at her hospitable home on Thursday afternoon.

On entering the guests were served delicious punch and cookies. The program was very informal. Misses Ella Powell and Evelyn DuBose opened it with a lovely duet. They also gave several instrumental solos during the afternoon.

The meeting was called to order by its regent, who presided over the usual ease and grace. After the official reports, to the pleasure of her entire chapter, the regent gave an able and most beautifully written report of her trip to Washington, to the twenty-second national congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The election of officers was then gone into. Though appointed regent by the state regent for two years, Mrs. Thomas insisted on her name remain before the voting body. With one voice the entire chapter unanimously re-elected her. The other officers were re-elected. Miss Mattie Kelley's vacancy being the only change.

After the business session, Mrs. Dargan held a delightful hour with the romantic figure of naval fame—John Paul Jones. Mesdames Walter Park, S. G. Howell, J. H. Hand and Joe Hamil cut for the prize, Mrs. Howell being a lovely souvenir of the regent's Washington trip. Many souvenirs, programs and badges of the various chapters congress were presented to the daughters.

Iced Snow, was given, which proved quite a success. To express appreciation of Mrs. Snow's faithful and efficient service, a gold bracelet was presented her.

At the April meeting, the chapter's fifth birthday was celebrated at the home of the regent. This affair, from being much enjoyed by all present, each feeling deeply indebted to the gracious hostess for her kind treatment.

The delegates to the state convention held at Augusta, were the regent, Mrs. J. R. Davis, and Mrs. Z. W. Oglesby.

On request a page of the Woman's edition of The Atlanta Constitution was gotten up on short notice.

In January the following officers were elected: Regent, Mrs. J. R. Davis; vice regent, Mrs. W. H. Newman; second vice, Mrs. Agnes Long; recording secretary, Mrs. Albert Tidwell; corresponding secretary, Miss Blanch Chapman; treasurer, Mrs. Grace Davidson; registrar, Mrs. J. M. Cutright; historian, Mrs. Julia Hardee.

Board of Management—Mesdames Townsend, Joyd, Williams, Davis, Thompson, Rountree and Gaulden.

The work undertaken by the historical research committee is as follows: Biographies of pioneer settlers, sketches of dead towns, inscriptions on tombstones, general curiosities of Brooks county, etc.

The Civic league was active during the year. Prizes were awarded for the most beautiful premises, one for both white and colored. Decided improvement was noticed, especially among the colored.

A tree-planting campaign was begun in the early fall in which the city authorities heartily co-operated, and a large number of live oaks were planted throughout the town.

In March the annual spring cleaning took place, and a creditable street-cleaning force of the city was placed at the disposal of the league until the work was accomplished.

With the assistance of Mr. Curtright, a park near the depot was beautified with flowers, which otherwise would have remained in objectionable spot.

Additional prizes of $5 each for white and colored have again been offered for the most picturesque yard. Several contestants have already entered.

The financial statement is as follows:

Amount on hand at beginning of year.....$100.00
Expended during year.....$51.82
On hand at present.....$48.18

AUGUSTA VETERANS HEAR OF NEW GETTYSBURG FIELD

The confederate veterans of Augusta are receiving printed information concerning the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg on July 1 to 4 inclusive. No official action has so far been taken by camp 435. It is expected that at least a few of the old veterans of this city will attend the celebration but whether or not there will be any old soldiers to attend in a body has not been decided.

From the circular being sent out by Gen. C. Irvine Walker, of Charleston, chairman of the United Confederate Veteran committee with headquarters in that city, the following facts will be of interest and will give some idea of the magnitude of the undertaking.

The government has established one great general hospital outside of the camp. Within will be located eighty-seven field hospital and infirmary tents. With 150 army surgeons and nurses. A full ambulance corps will be on duty and every attention paid to those who may require aid.

Three artesian wells are now being driven to supply 1,000,000 gallons of pure water per day.

The veterans will be brought on their trains directly into the camp and detrain upon the platforms which will be erected.

Within the camp limits will be a temporary railroad station, an express office, telegraph and telephone station, newspaper and stationery store, post-office and a store where supplies of tobacco, pipes, etc., may be obtained. In fact, it will be a model city of conveniences for one week.

The camp, town and surroundings will be policed by the state of Pennsylvania constabulary.

There will not be admitted during the time of the celebration to the government reservation any automobiles or vehicles of any description except the army auto ambulances, quartermasters' trucks and a few passenger carriages to transport such veterans as are physically incapacitated from walking over the battleground. These carriages will be under the severest restrictions as regards their use.

10,000 cups, 50,000 spoons, 50,000 knives and 50,000 forks These kits alone cost the government $12,500; and the veterans will be permitted to retain them as a souvenir of the occasion. In all probability they will also be given the blankets which will be furnished to each one.

There will be 400 great army cooking ranges and outfits, one chief commissary, four assistant commissaries, ten commissary sergeants, four commissary clerks, 800 cooks, 800 assistant cooks and 130 bakers. There will be used nearly one and a half million pounds of food of various kinds, consisting of meats, cereals, vegetables and bread, coffee and tea. The estimated cost is 30 cents for each ration.

CHAPTER REPORTS.

Augusta.

Augusta, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—The United Daughters of the Confederacy had their regular meeting for the election of officers yesterday afternoon in the directors room in the courthouse.

The result of the election was the re-election of the old officers as follows:

President—Mrs. Stannard Owens.

First Vice President—Mrs. Hale Barrett.

Second Vice President—Mrs. M. W. Benton.

Secretary—Miss Ruth Weikle.

Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. A. G. Jackson.

Treasurer—Mrs. W. I. Wilson.

Registrar—Mrs. H. D. Worrell.

Honorary Presidents—Mrs. W. F. Eve and Mrs. C. A. Rowland.

A delightful feature of the Summerville academy commencement Wednesday evening was the presentation to Miss Eugenia Ellington of the gold medal offered by the U. D. C. to the pupil of the public school who should write the finest essay on the subject of General John B. Gordon. The presentation was made by Mrs. Stannard Owens, president of the Daughters of the Confederacy, in a very charming little speech. Hearty applause was given when Mrs. Owens announced the fact that during the ten years the daughters had been offering these medals to the pupils of the public schools it had been won eight times by a pupil of the Summerville academy. Miss Ellington was cordially congratulated for her splendid essay, which showed wonderful acquaintance with the subject, and that was most cleverly written.

Dawson.

Dawson, Ga., June 19.—(Special.)—A very pleasant meeting of the Mary Brantley chapter, U. D. C., was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. J. M. Griggs. Toasts were responded to by Mrs. F. M. McNulty, Mrs. J. G. Dean and Miss Mary Hornady. A two-course luncheon was served. The following officers were elected for the coming year: Mrs. Ben M. Davidson, president; Mrs. F. M. McNulty, first vice president; Mrs. T. B. Raines, second vice president; Mrs. H. A. Wilkinson, recording secretary; Mrs. G. W. Dozier, corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. M. Courle, treasurer; Mrs. Willie Melton, registrar; Mrs. Walter Dosier, historian.

Milledgeville.

Milledgeville, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Twiggs county chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy are making plans to mark with suitable marble pieces containing the name, company and regiment of all soldiers buried throughout Twiggs county. They ask any one who knows where graves are located in isolated places during this to communicate with any of the ladies to whom the various district have been assigned. The list is as follows:

Jeffersonville district, Mrs. Laura C. Powell.

Higgsville district, Mrs. J. I. White.

McDonald district, Mrs. J. Hunter Johnson.

Marlon district, Mrs. Rufe Carswell.

Bluffe district, Miss Marie Hendry.

Smith district, Mrs. E. E. Jones.

Person district, Mrs. Will Burkett.

Hammocks district, Mrs. H. M. Kitchens.

Ware district, Mrs. O. T. Chapman.

Shady Grove district, Mrs. J. S. Vaughn.

Turnersville district, Miss Carrie McCallum.

Tampa, Fla.

Tampa, Fla., June 19.—(Special.)—Three hundred persons, mostly women and children excursionists of the Daughters of the Confederacy on a trip to Passagrille, spent the night on a sandbar in Tampa bay aboard the steamer J. B. Plant.

There were no mishaps but some suffering because of lack of food and sleeping accommodations was evident.

GEORGIA ELECTORS—1789

I.

George Handley.

This patriotic gentleman was the son of Thomas Handley and was born near Sheffield, in Yorkshire, England, February 9, 1742. At the time of his arrival at Savannah, May, 1775, measures were being adopted to resist the oppression of the British government. George Handley probably enlisted about a month after his arrival. When the assembly of Georgia passed a resolution to raise a battalion of continental troops. He entered the army as captain and rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel.

During the whole struggle for liberty he was actively engaged in South Carolina and Georgia. In several engagements he distinguished himself. After the reduction of Augusta he was sent to Charleston as a prisoner of war.

At the close of the war he married Miss Sarah Howe, a niece of General Elbert, and removed to Augusta. Here he was highly esteemed. Besides being elected elector of the second congress he was repeatedly chosen a member of the legislature. In 1788 he was elected governor of Georgia.

In 1787 he held the office of inspector general of Georgia. He was also commissioner of the state of Franklin. In August, 1789, he was appointed collector of the port of Brunswick by President Washington. He died in Early last, then Richmond county.

STATE PRESIDENT RETURNS HOME

The state president is at home again after an enforced absence of several months spent in Johns Hopkins hospital.

It will give the Georgia division great pleasure to know that she has has been restored to health, and to know that she is with us again in person, as well as in heart, which has never been absent from our U. D. C. work.

We would extend the glad hand of helpful greeting, we would rally to her support, and keep the Georgia division in the front ranks of the organization. THE EDITOR.

CRACKERS ON ROAD FOR THIRTEEN GAMES

First Photograph of Crackers Since Line Up Has Been Settled

LOCALS WIN

Conzelman Baffles Hard Hitting Barons In Last of the Series

Welchonce's Homer Features. Barons' Field Erratically. Bailey Back in His Old Stride—Score 4 to 1.

By Dick Jemison.

The locals managed to capture the final game of the series from the Birmingham Barons, the count showing 4 to 1 when the game was called at the end of the first half of the eighth inning to permit both teams to catch a train.

The Crackers go to New Orleans and the Barons to Mobile and they both left here on the same train.

Joe Conzelman, the big right-hander of the Crackers, secured from the Pittsburg Pirates, scored his third straight win since joining the team. He had the Barons at his mercy until the eighth inning, when he sprung a little wild streak.

The Barons were only able to get to him for five hits in the eight sessions. In the first four innings they had a man to third base in each instance, but could not score a run, the old pinch away being lacking when it was needed the most.

Thompson Hurled Well.

Carl Thompson started for the Barons and the former University of Georgia boy did not hurl such a bad game despite the fact that the Crackers touched him up for nine hits. Two of the Crackers' four runs, however, were the result of clean hitting.

Eliam and Marcan had a grand day around the keystone, especially the latter. They handled every chance in approved fashion, some of their stops being brilliant and keeping the score down considerably.

Harry Welchonce poled a home run to deep center field that was one of the most peculiar home runs that has ever been hit on the local grounds. It was not a home run by any manner of means. It was a clean home run, but where it wound up made it peculiar.

The score board at Ponce de Leon park is on a line from the home plate, directly between first and second bases. Welchonce hit the ball on a line over Marcan's head and between Kniseley and Messenger.

It struck about forty feet in front of the score board and on the first bounce went between the score board and a big sign right along side of it, climbing up the center field bank. Kniseley was out of sight hunting the ball back of the score board, and although Welchonce touched the home plate before he came out with the ball, the umpire had already declared it a home run. This came in the third inning.

Bisland Stars.

The fielding of Bisland for Atlanta was the bright part of the Atlanta team's defensive work. He had several hard plays that took high hops, but he played them all well. His error was on an easy chance that came in the inning when the Barons counted their one run.

Wallop Smith saved a run for the Crackers in the first inning when Kniseley poled one to deep center field up against the score board for three bases. He could have made a home run easily, but Smith bluffed him into sliding into the bag by pretending he had the ball, when had he been running with his head up he would have made a home run easily.

Bailey opened the Crackers' second with a single and went to second on a wild pitch. He advanced to third on Smith's long fly to right and counted when Bisland cracked out a single.

The second run was Welchonce's homer.

Bailey Starts Things.

In the fourth Bailey started it with a single, went to second on a passed ball and to third when Mayer threw badly after recovering. He scored on Smith's single. Bisland sacrificed Smith to second and Agler counted him with a single to left.

The Barons' lone tally came in the eighth. Marcan and Messenger walked and the bases were full when Bisland fumbled a grounder and then could not throw it anywhere, sensibly holding it. McBride flew to left, but Bailey's great throw made Marcan return to third. McGilvray sent the run home with a sacrifice fly and Mayer popped to short.

As there was only eight minutes left for play, Umpire Rudderham called the game. If he had not it would have ended anyway as a terrific thunderstorm broke over the city.

Entries Begin Pouring in For Field Day on July 4: Monster Field Assured

The entry list for the big field day that will be held at Piedmont park the morning of July 4 promises to be a big one. To date, thirty-three individual entries have been secured, and Joe Bean, athletic director of the Atlanta Athletic club, in charge of the meet, expects this number to be doubled by the time the entry list closes July 1.

The Georgia Railway and Electric company have donated a handsome trophy which will be presented to the team that wins the largest number of points in the meet, the points to be based on five for first, three for second and one for third.

Prizes will also be awarded in the different events, their nature not having been definitely decided upon just yet.

Here is the complete entry list to date and the events in which the men will participate:

DECISIONS AGAIN IN GOTHAM BOUTS

By JAMES J. CORBETT.
(Former Heavy-Weight Champion of the World, Written Exclusively For The Constitution.)

New York, June 21.—(Special.)—After serving two years as a member of the commission in charge of boxing under the Frawley law, Chairman Frank O'Neil has gone on record as in favor of referee's decisions for all matches to be decided in New York state.

Mr. O'Neil has realized for a long time that the "decisionless" bout is a knock to the sport and hopes to revive interest in the grand old game by restoring to the arbiters the privilege of naming the winners in future events.

He has learned by experience that the so-called "popular" verdict is anything but what its names implies with the people who foot the bills—and in these days of commercialism in sport that is one big item the commissioners can hardly afford to overlook.

The arguments of the knockers that decisions promote gambling, and should be tabooed accordingly, would be given a fair test under the proposed system. If it develops that the gambling element is any more active than under the rules in vogue at present it will be time enough for those who have been active in their opposition to a return to "regular" Queensbury methods to open up on their verbal broadsides; it will be only fair, however, to await the popular reception of the new deal.

Patronage Slack.

For several months past the boxing game has suffered from a big falling off in patronage. Few, if any, promoters have made money the past year. This is surprising in New York, especially during the cold months, and those interested in a financial way have been trying to trace the cause of the slump.

Evidently they have decided that popular interest can be revived by a return to methods which have in the pasta contributed a great deal to the success of the game from a promoter's viewpoint. Which, I imagine, has something to do with Mr. O'Neil's proposal to permit decisions—if he can bring his two associates on the commission to his way of thinking.

There is no doubt that the "decisionless" bout has injured the sport locally and that a rule giving referees authority to render verdicts will help boxing a great deal. At the some time those who are most anxious to stimulate public interest—the promoters—need look for little increase in box office receipts while they continue to deal out the same quality of bouts that they have programed the past season.

The best way, and the quickest, they will find to revive interest will be to furnish a better class of entertainment. By bringing the best material to be obtained to New York and exercising judgment in the matchmaking, they will discover that New Yorkers have not only not lost interest in boxing, but that they will pay liberally for what appeals to their liking in that line.

New York is the best boxing city in the world, bar none, but the fans will not patronize inferior or unequal matches. The sooner the Gibsons, McMahons and other leading promoters learn this lesson the better for all

Syracuse Varsity Eight Prevents Ithacans From Making Sweep of Races

Eight-Oared Freshmen Is Terrific Struggle, Cornell Winning—Ithacans Easy Winners in Four-Oared. Syracuse Won by Quarter of Length in Final Event of the Day.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 21.—The national character and caliber of college rowing in the United States were demonstrated here late this afternoon in the 4-mile feature race of the annual Intercollegiate regatta. After winning the two preliminary events of the program, Cornell, usually conceded to be the leading university of the country in rowing, was forced to lower her colors to Syracuse and just escaped the added ignominy of being defeated by two western crews, the University of Wisconsin and Washington.

In a driving and spectacular finish such as has not been seen on the Hudson river course, the Orange varsity oarsmen rowed across the line a scant length ahead of Cornell, while pressing the exhausted Ithaca eight came Washington less than a length behind and Wisconsin's bow lapping the stern of the Seattle entrants for national varsity rowing honors. Columbia, the pacemakers for the first 2 miles, were fifth, while far in the rear Pennsylvania trailed in the wash of the five preceding crews.

Finn Went Frantic.

It was a race and finish tha tdrove the 60,000 spectators on observation trains, yachts and river banks almost frantic with enthusiasm and the usual organized cheering and singing lost all unison and became a mere series of shrieks and yells under the strain of the pressure of college loyalty.

The victory of the Syracuse crew was a big surprise, but the wonderful showing of the middle and far western eights was the feature and topic of conversation among the veteran oarsmen after the regatta.

The official times of the varsity eight-oared race is perhaps the best indication of the closeness of the struggle down the 4-mile course and the courage and stamina with which five of the six eights fought until the very finish.

Syracuse finished in 19 minutes 28 3-5 seconds; Cornell 19 minutes 31 seconds; Washington 2 seconds later and Wisconsin 3 seconds behind Washington. Columbia crossed the line in 19 minutes 35 1-5 seconds and Pennsylvania trailed in last, 20 minutes 11 1-5 seconds.

The time of the winning crew was the fastest since 1909 and but 35 1-5 seconds behind the record made by Cornell in 1901.

Ideal Weather.

Ideal weather conditions prevailed the entire afternoon and the Hudson was minus even a ripple. The predicted closeness of the race and the presence of the championship crew of the Pacific coast all helped to attract a gathering of rowing enthusiasts that probably broke all records for attendance. The long observance train was crowded until late comers hung like flies on the ends and sides.

The victory of the Orange oarsmen was a big surprise to the rowing sharps, for they had not been considered as particularly dangerous. What little wavering there was favored Cornell at 4 to 5 against the field. Syracuse was quoted as a $ to 1 chance, while Washington went at even money to finish among the first three. Columbia backers found plenty of takers at even money that her crew would not finish, one, two, three, and the forecasts proved correct.

Although shorn of the greater honors of the regatta, Cornell cleaned up in both the four-oared varsity and freshman eight-oared races. In the opening event of the afternoon the four-oared varsity Cornell, rowing a splendid race, easily took first place from Pennsylvania by two and a half lengths, with Columbia third, Wisconsin fourth and Washington fifth. Syracuse rowed out of the course and finished last, with their time not being taken.

The official time: Cornell 10:47 2-5, Pennsylvania 10:52 1-5, Columbia 10:54 4-5, Wisconsin 10:58 4-5, Washington 12:08 3-5; Syracuse not taken.

Freshman Race.

The freshman race, marked by a false start due to a jumping of the slide in the Pennsylvania eight, was a far harder task for the Cornellians, for the Wisconsin freshmen proved that Coach Vail has some splendid material for his 1914 varsity by giving the Ithacans a terrific fight.

Syracuse, too, was an early factor in the race and stood the fast pace after both Pennsylvania and Columbia had dropped back. The Quakers were first away, but at the half-mile Cornell had gained the fore with Syracuse second and Wisconsin third. At the mile the order was the same, Syracuse rowing thirty-six to th ethirty-two of the other two contenders.

At the mile and a half all three hit up the strokes to thirty-six and, rowing like veterans, fought hard for final honors.

The Wisconsin youngsters outgamed the Orange eight, but could not quite overtake Cornell. As they passed finish line Cornell had a three-quarters length lead over Wisconsin, who in turn was about one and a half lengths ahead of Syracuse. Pennsylvania was fourth, three lengths behind, and Columbia trailed in last the distance of a shell separating them from the Quakers.

Cornell, 10:04 4-5.
Wisconsin, 10:07 4-5.
Syracuse, 10:14 3-5.
Pennsylvania, 10:25 2-5.
Columbia, 10:29.

GREEK RIFLEMEN CANNOT COMPETE

Washington, June 21.—Word was received here today from the president of the Pan-Hellenic Shooting society, of Athens, Greece, that the society would be unable to send a team to the international rifle shooting match at Camp Perry, Ohio, in September. This is because all Greek riflemen have been called to the colors. Similar declaration has been received from the crown prince of Servia.

Johnson Loses.

London, June 21.—Wallace F. Johnson, of Philadelphia, was defeated in the final round of the London lawn tennis championship tourney this afternoon by F. G. Lowe, in one of the finest struggles ever seen at Queens club. The British crack won 7-5, 6-4, 4-6, 4-6, 6-4.

THIRTEEN GAMES

Crackers Traverse Southern Division; Back Again July 4

Open Series in New Orleans Today With a Double-Header—Dent Will Twirl the Opener.

Billy Smith and his pennant-chasing Crackers left yesterday afternoon on their second swing of the southern division of the Southern league. They will not return again until July 4.

Thirteen games in all will be played on this trip. New Orleans, Memphis, Montgomery and Mobile will be visited in that order, four games, one a tie play off being scheduled for the first named city, and three games being scheduled in each of the other three.

At the speed that the Crackers are now traveling, they ought to make a hundred per cent better showing against the southern teams this trip than they did on the last invasion.

On the last trip the Crackers won one, lost one and tied one in New Orleans. At Memphis they won one and dropped three. At Montgomery they won two and lost two, while at Mobile they dropped all four played.

Crackers Stronger.

This trip they will find the teams that they tied with last time much more formidable, while the teams that beat them up so badly will be admittedly weaker, and with the Crackers going at a better clip the result of the trip should be encouraging.

When the Crackers made their first hike it was the first time that some of the players had ever been in the cities mentioned. They could not get acclimated or used to the grounds in those cities. But they learned a lot, and their trip this time ought to show it.

The pitchers were not going as good, either, as they are now, though the rest of the team was probably playing as good a brand of ball as they are now. With improved pitching there will be a different story to tell.

Pelicans Today.

The Crackers open up with the New Orleans Pelicans today, and it is possible that the double-header of the series will be played this afternoon. In fact, it seems certain. This double-header is made necessary by the 1 to 1 tie of the last trip. The Pels and the Crackers have engaged in six games this season, the Crackers winning three, the Pels two and one resulting in a tie.

Memphis will be visited next, the series there opening on Wednesday. The Crackers are out for revenge on this trip. The last visit to Red Elm was disastrous, the local pitchers kicking away the games after the Crackers had piled up four, five and seven-run leads. The count between the Turtles and the Crackers for the season stands, Memphis 4, Atlanta 3.

Starting Saturday, Montgomery will be played on that date and Sunday and Monday. On their last visit to Billikentown the locals broke even in the four games played. The Billies and the Crackers have engaged in eight games this season, the Billies winning four, the Crackers three and one resulting in a tie.

Gulls Last.

The trip will be wound up at Mobile with games Monday and Tuesday, with a double-header on one of the two days, so as to permit the Crackers traveling back home Wednesday to get here in time for the morning and afternoon games July 4.

The last visit to Gulltown was disastrous, the league leaders taking all

ATLANTA'S STRIDES, DAY BY DAY

ALL THE NEWS OF REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING

It was announced yesterday by County Commissioner Shelby Smith that the work of repairing Peachtree from Fifteenth street to Buckhead would be started within the next thirty or sixty days.

When this work is completed it will make a smooth stretch of paving from the entrance of Ansley park north to Buckhead, which many consider one of the most attractive stretches of boulevard in the south.

One of the largest leases made in the last few days was announced Saturday. Shelley Ivey, manager of the College Co-op company with present quarters at 97 Peachtree, has leased from Asa G. Candler for a term of eight years and four months for the consideration of $35,000. Nos. 119 and 121 Peachtree, which is in the southern end of the Candler building.

The stock of the College Co-op company will be moved into 119 Peachtree on July 1st. Peachtree at the present time being occupied by the offices of the Southern Pacific railroad, which will soon be moved into the Fourth National Bank building.

In case the railroad company can

SOCIETY IN COLUMBUS

Columbus, Ga., June 21.—(Special Correspondence.)—A beautiful event of the week was the marriage of Miss Bessie Allen and Mr. Eugene McCormack Smith, of Birmingham, Ala., solemnized on Tuesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Captain and Mrs. Charles H. Allen, on Fourth avenue. Just before the entrance of the bridal party Mr. James Rainey sang "Beauty's Eyes," and as the wedding party entered the bridal chorus was sung by a quartet composed of Miss Nouna Illges, Miss Claire Booth, Mr. Wyatt Chapman and Mr. James Rainey, the piano accompaniment being rendered by Mr. Louis T. Chase. Two little cousins of the bride, Natalie Merry, of Augusta, and Rebecca Ellington, of Gold Hill, Ala., were the ribbon-bearers. Dorothy Merry, of Augusta, was the little flower girl and James Horace Jenkins carried the ring. Miss Mary Neal Allen was maid of honor, Mrs. George Baskerville, of Birmingham, was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Annie Latimer Watson, of Macon, and Miss Mary Willis. The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. T. M. Christian, pastor of St. Paul Methodist church. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are now on a visit to northern and eastern cities, after which they will be at home to their friends on South Highlands, Birmingham. The young people are well known and popular in social circles and their wedding was of sincere interest to many friends. In attendance upon the wedding were quite a number of visitors from various Georgia and Alabama cities.

REAGAN-REDWINE.

McDonough, Ga., June 21.—(Special.) The home of Judge and Mrs. E. J. Reagan, on Sprig hill, was the scene of one of the most beautiful weddings that ever took place in McDonough, when, on Wednesday evening, ...eir daughter, Lucy, was married to Mr. Hill Parks Redwine, of Fayetteville.

Palms and ferns lent a tropical appearance to the spacious lawn, agleam with tiny electric lights. Beneath arches erected in bower effect under the giant oaks and twined with southern smilax, asparagus ferns and pink roses, whose centers were tiny lights, the ceremony was performed by the Rev. John L. Armstrong, of Atlanta.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was lovely in an exquisite gown of white charmeuse, with trimmings of lace and seed pearls and girdle and court train of brocade. Her veil was caught with a wreath of lilies of the valley. Little Miss Marguerite Turner, niece of the bride, acted as train bearer, and was daintily dressed in white with pink ribbons.

Miss Bess Fouche, of McDonough, maid of honor to the bride, wore white embroidered crepe and carried pink rosebuds. The bridesmaids, Misses Ruby Walker and Agnes Dunn, of McDonough, Miss Jane Stanfield, of Jackson, and Miss Susie Gunn, of Cuthbert, were dressed in pink embroidered crepe dresses and carried baskets of pink and white sweet peas.

The groomsmen were: Dr. L. P. Lovejoy, of Milledgeville, best man; Dr. W. C. Hodnet and Mr. Roby Redwine, of Atlanta, Mr. Thomas Tolleson and Mr. Walter Burch, of Fayetteville.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride's cake was brought out and the cutting of it by the bridal party furnished much amusement for the guests.

An informal reception was held after the wedding. Punch was served by Misses Ellene Neal, Nina Wall, Ruth Turner and Ethel Sowell. Misses Alla B. Carmichael, Hattie Sue Lowe and Helen Dunn had the bride's book in charge.

The bride and groom left at 9:30 o'clock for an extended trip to points of interest in the north and east, to be at home at Fayetteville after July 3.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. F. D. McMillan, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Coates, Rev. and Mrs. John L. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. James George, Mr. Q. R. Nolan and Mr. Hatch Cook, of Atlanta; Mrs. A. J. Smith and Miss Minnie Smith, of Conyers; Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Longino and Miss Cecil Longino, of Fairburn; Mr. and Mrs. C. C. McKnight; Mrs. Bessie Williams and Mr. J. T. Williams, of Senoia; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Redwine, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Redwine and children, Mrs. H. E. Redwine, Colonel and Mrs. J. W. Wise, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Ingram and Mr. J. L. Fite, of Fayetteville; Miss Ione Bruce, of Flippen; Miss Irene Boag, of Griffin; Mrs. Sam Cohen, of Monticello; Miss Annie Myrtle Seago, of New Orleans.

Mrs. I. F. Duncan has returned to Riverry branch after spending some time at the bedside of her daughter, Mrs. A. E. Ewing.

Mr. and Mrs. John Elliott, of Cedartown, were recent guests of Mrs. Mary Spence.

Miss Annie Bagwell has returned from Gainesville.

Mrs. Elsie Wright, after a pleasant visit here with Mrs. W. H. Powell, has returned to McDonough.

Misses Louise and Mamie Brand and Mr. L. M. Brand visited Athens this week.

Miss Ella Dunlap, of Atlanta, has been the guest of Mrs. G. W. Clower for several days.

Mrs. Stovall and children, of Madison, are visiting Rev. and Mrs. J. T. Eakes.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Blake, of Calhoun Falls, S. C., were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Byrd.

Misses Pearl and Minnie Williams have returned from Athens.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Haygood were week-end guests of relatives in Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Sibley entertained Sunday last at a beautiful tea party with Mrs. Cornette Van Leigh Wheat, as the guest of honor.

Misses Lucile Flemister and Jackssonia Watt are the guests of Miss Louise Walker in Monroe.

MONROE, GA.

The marriage of Miss Lida Day and Mr. Love D. Wall came in the nature of a surprise to all except a few relatives and friends, knowing that such a happy event was to transpire. The ceremony took place at the home of Rev. S. R. England in Athens on Saturday afternoon last. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Day and one of our city's most charming and cultured young women and a musician of exceptional ability. Mr. Wall is a young man of strong character and holds a position of trust with the Georgia Midland railroad. The many friends of this couple are delighted that they will continue to make Monroe their home.

The revival meeting carried on at the courthouse by Rev. Luther B. Bridges and Rev. Charles Tillman are attracting large crowds from this city as well as neighboring cities.

Mrs. Marion Williams and Mrs. E. W. Tribble gave a delightful reception last week in honor of their visitor, Miss Vida Dixon, of Alabama. The home was decorated with quantities of sweet peas and daisies. Punch and a salad course were served during the afternoon. About fifty ladies called.

Miss Ludvika Levin, of New Jersey, is the guest of Mrs. Mary Lou Arnold.

Misses Sara Mendel and Esther Kaufman, of Atlanta, have been the guests of Miss Celia Mendel for the past week.

Miss Louise Kelly, of Opelika, Ala., and Miss Evelyn Radford, of Winder, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Kelly.

Mrs. C. A. Jamison, of Villa Rica, and Mrs. Lelia Hill Wright, of Rome, are visiting Mrs. R. L. Nowell.

Miss Mattie Michael is the guest of Mrs. Paul Vose, of Atlanta.

Mrs. W. B. Hollingsworth, of Fayetteville, and baby are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Felker.

Talented Georgia Girl

MISS ADDIE HARPER,

Of Hartwell, Ga. Miss Harper won a prize for oratory at the commencement exercises of Hartwell institute. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Harper.

State Normal School Obtaining Wonderful Results From Small Investment

By D. G. Bickers.

Athens, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—"The largest return for the smallest investment any state ever made," is one way a friend of the State Normal school at Athens expresses his opinion of the institution.

With more students enrolled than are enrolled in any other institution of the state, with one exception, the State Normal has had less invested in permanent plant by the state than any other institution.

There are seven buildings—principal structures—on the campus. Only one of them was built by the state. Gilmer Hall was a gift from the University of Georgia; Winnie Davis Memorial hall was given by the Daughters of the Confederacy of the state; the Smith building was given by Colonel James M. Smith, of Oglethorpe, and when it was burned down was replaced by him; the Muscogee Practice school was a gift from Mr. Peabody; the library building was given by Andrew Carnegie; the "country school" building was put up by Clarke county.

The plant is by experts variously estimated worth from $300,000 to $500,000. Just $47,500 is all that has ever been appropriated by the state to put in permanent additions to the place. The dining hall and the dairy are about all that have been made possible by state aid. The state has, of course, appropriated annually to the maintenance of the institution, but has done next to nothing to investing in the plant or meeting the needs of the school in equipment.

And the State Normal school at Athens is the only school in the state which is exclusively training teachers for the common schools and high schools!

Nearly 1,000 Students.

There are eight hundred enrolled at the State Normal this year. There are 140 in the practice school; there are 40 in the "country school."

There have been in the nineteen years of the school's history just 10,555 teacher-students enrolled. Ninety-eight per cent of the students who follow a course, go out to teach in the common schools and public schools, and about seventy-five per cent teach in the rural schools.

The first of this year there were 128 calls for teachers on file in President Pound's office; this month there are 272 requests from communities, boards and agencies for teachers. In one or two instances there are requests for a principal and an entire corps of teachers. The state loses each year 2,500 teachers. The state's only exclusive, especial teacher-training institution with its present equipment cannot turn out more than 250 graduated teachers a year.

Unique Features of Work.

There are a number of unique features of the work of the State Normal school. It is the pioneer in the United States in systematic work along lines of rural economics. Conditions in, general have been much studied; the Georgia club at the State Normal School of Georgia, however, is the first organization to go into the particular section, the special county of the state, which is to be supplied with teachers and study the needs and conditions in that county.

Practically every state in the union has begun or will soon begin work along the lines initiated by Dr. Branson in the Georgia clubs, and pursued in the newly established chair of rural economics now occupied by Dr. Branson—and Georgia has led them all, through her State Normal school.

This is the only school for teacher training which has in connection with it a practice school which is a model of the graded system and also a country school. The Muscogee practice school is a seven-grade school in which the demonstraton of the teacher-training is made. Every student of this school has his garden plot, and sectual work is done through the year in the open; the shops and drawing class rooms and gymnasium are as regularly employed as the recitations.

The country school is unique: It is the distinct school for Clarke county, located on the State Normal school grounds; the county employs the teachers; there is absolutely nothing furnished that any country school could not have—and with this condition it is made a model.

Thus like the pupils of old Squeers in Dickens' story only in the ideal sense the teacher-students of the State Normal learns their methods of teaching, learn the methods of manual training, of agriculture, and their theoretical psychology and go immediately into the practice school and the model country school and apply the principles.

Course in Family Nursing.

The State Normal is the first institution to put on a course in nursing—the trained nurse making daily examinations and caring for the young women who need her care and training them in actual family nursing.

The "round table" is one of the features of the school—instituted by Professor D. L. Earnest. Each Saturday evening a student reads a complete classic and three or four hundred members of the society discuss it informally.

The library has only 6,000 volumes. Where in other school libraries in the state there are five times as many volumes. There were last month twenty-one volumes a day taken out; there were in April 2,221 books taken out by students of the State Normal school. The entire library—the number of volumes being considered—is read over more than four times each year.

High Standard Maintained.

Academic work, finishing and perfecting in the branches teachers are expected to teach, is kept at a high standard, and the manual training, agricultural work, domestic science, and kindred lines are being brought out to meet the needs of the present-day school system. More than two hundred teachers each year go into every county of Georgia from the State Normal school and begin the agricultural training of the boys and girls—reaching thousands of these young people where considerably fewer than a hundred young men can take advantage of the agricultural college courses.

The girls of the State Normal school are taught the things to teach. They are taught the methods of teaching; they are trained in the principles of the profession. They are no less competently and thoroughly trained in handcrafts, in carpentry and drawing, pottery and basketry, sewing and cooking, dairy work and housekeeping, in actual and comprehensive agriculture and gardening.

It is believed by the leaders in the school that these vocational lines are not to be neglected in the schools of the state into which the graduates

The Well Dressed Woman

How We Made the Bargain Counter Help

By the Amateur Dressmaker

BARGAIN counters have the same fascination for me that they have for most women. But bitter experiences in times past have taught me not to let that fascination become a fatal one. Nowadays I never buy a yard of any fabric, no matter how small may be its price in comparison with its worth, unless I know definitely what can be done with it. Nor do I allow the girls to do so. Consequently when the Summer sales were advertised, we first of all made lists of the things we needed, and then expressed hopes that the materials for them would be within our means.

Mildred took the greater portion of our dress money because she is to be maid of honor and Ruth is to be flower girl at a Midsummer wedding following a week-end house party given for the bride's attendants, and I must say that she did wonders with less than forty dollars. At the first shop visited, she found a seven-yard length of pale gray crepe de chine she made into a single-piece skirt and two bodices. One of them, a blouse, opens over a white satin vest and is trimmed about its V neck and its elbow sleeves with white net ruching, centered with narrow black velvet ribbon. The other blouse, a long-sleeved affair, is gracefully draped over a tight-fitting boned body and its low-cut square neck is outlined by two narrow frills of white chiffon and the square filled in with a white chiffon guimpe. It's very Frenchy and a few years ago I should have considered it not proper for a luncheon and afternoon house gown, but it's undeniably smart, and, of course, I realize that a *mother should not be too much in*fluenced by the prejudices of her own girlhood. "Other times, other manners"—in dress. With both bodices Mildred wears a sash made of five yards of white and black picot-edged rose ribbon. It goes closer about her waist once, but the second time round it is drawn over to the right hip, crossed there and the ends arranged to fall unevenly at that side. So that she may wear this gray frock on the street, Mildred bought a three-yard remnant of Japanese rose-flowered black silk and to it we made a coatee with a collarless neck, a postillion back and hip length fronts. Its sleeves are set into low-dropped shoulders, there are seams at center of back and under the arms and at the normal waistline it blouses slightly over a narrow belt of rose patent kid.

I WAS really discouraged when Mildred announced that her maid of honor gown had to be in dull blue and pale yellow, but by buying five yards of yellow charmeuse at one counter, three yards of all-over white lace at another and two yards of blue chiffon at a third, she was able to plan a costume that would be a credit to a French dressmaker. We made the charmeuse into a trained skirt which opens in front over a simulated petticoat of the lace dyed to match the satin and crossing in front to glimpse yellow slippers and hosiery. At the waist line, the edges of the upper skirt are slightly crossed and run under the huge flat bow joining the blue velvet girdle belting the blue chiffon decollete jacket-bodice. Mildred's chiffon remnant was so short that she hadn't enough for sleeves of any sort, and so she worked an edge on two strips of the lace and draped them about the arm-eyes. And because it's to be an evening wedding, she made a coiffure fillet of the blue velvet, edged it with pearl beads and fastened it with a yellow rose.

RUTH'S flower girl frock has a straight little skirt literally pinched out of a three-quarter yard strip of white lace flounding, and a hip-length tunic made of a remnant of accordion plaited white chiffon, but its rounded neck and elbow sleeves had to be finished with tiny pink silk rosebuds because we couldn't find any narrow lace to match the wide remnant. We made her a second frock from two yards of twenty-inch wide cotton voile embroidered flouncing. Half the length forms sleeves and a very deep yoke of all-over needlework, and to this is attached an empire skirt which shows considerable of the plain material. For the bridesmaids' luncheon on the Saturday before the wedding, Ruth has a one-piece frock of forget-me-not patterned white cotton crepe. Across the shoulders, it is group-tucked into a square yoke of white muslin embroidery beading through which is run blue ribbon, and about the elongated waist line, the skirt's fullness is drawn in by the same method. The sleeves, ending just below the elbow, are finished with ribbon-run beading.

LOUISE spied a six-yard remnant of white crepe and I helped her to make it into a straight, ungored skirt trimmed on its left of center lapping from the knees down, with a row of five black velvet ball buttons, and into a forty-inch blouse on a line with the skirt, with velvet buttons, and edged from the left shoulder to the black velvet belt with a plaited net frill. Three-cornered self material cuffs with a single black velvet button holding down the longest point, turn back the three-quarter straight sleeves, and an embroidered white net shoulder collar finishes the round neck. For the evening of the wedding—we couldn't miss seeing our Ruth precede the bride to the alter—Louise has made a one-piece frock from five yards of white silk voile. Two-inch wide bands of Irish lace, crossing the shoulders, run down the back and front to the top of a six-inch band of lace encircling the skirt between the knees and the hem. Two quarter yard squares of the same lace, coming half above and half below the waistline at centre of both back and front, are divided by a girdle of pale green soft silk and a piping of the same silk edges the lace cuffs on the elbow puff sleeves. With the one dollar remaining from her share of the dress money, Louise bought—she hasn't an idea of ever bringing home a penny of her allowance—two and a half yards of striped Japanese wash silk and this she made into a short-sleeved blouse, having a cunning little flap-pocket on the left breast, and one of those new *Byron collars that fasten under a self-*material tie. Louise was so short of silk that she hadn't enough for a tie that could be knotted, so she runs the ends through a mother-of-pearl ring that she took off of a worn out bridge bag.

ALL my life I've wanted a white satin gown and when I saw a ten-yard remnant of that many dollars I picked it up and pretended to examine it critically in order to get time to reason with myself. First I said mentally, "You silly old thing to think of wearing white! What you want is a lavender or a stone gray; something subdued and suitable for the mother of a marriageable daughter." And all the time I knew that I didn't want anything but just that piece of satin, but I was putting it down on the counter when I noticed another woman looking rather eagerly at it (as if she meant to buy it if I didn't) and then some one seemed to whisper in my ear, "You're not growing younger. If you're ever to wear white satin—without looking and feeling ridiculous—it will have to be soon." So I took it home and the girls were delighted.

IT was so narrow that there was only enough for a perfectly plain circular skirt, a little bit draped at the back, and a rounded half-yard train. The waist is scarcely more than an extremely high-cut draped and boned bodice-girdle fastening under the left arm and built up beyond the bust with folds of chiffon outlined with pearl beads. The shoulder straps, under-arm forms, short, close-fitting sleeves and the standing collar finishing the almost invisible flesh-colored mallines yoke are of pearl-embroidered chiffon. After all, there's nothing more elegant than a white satin gown. And there's comfort in thinking that at any time this one can be dyed black, lavender or whatever color our neighbors considered proper for the mother of a family of girls.

Attractive Summer Millinery

New Modes for Midsummer

By Marion Morris

IT has frequently been acknowledged that Midsummer modes are much better than those of Spring, because they are really the early styles more fully developed. And these later modes might be called the "chosen number," for there are many introduced in the Spring that do not survive the criticism of modish women. For instance, the long-waisted Russian coat that was introduced in cloth suits about four months ago soon became commonplace, and then was discarded in suits to make way for the cutaway style that has been made more chic and charming for Summer. As the Russian blouse was more delightful in dresses, it is now much in evidence. In other words, all the early modes that were not successful were "weeded out" and those that were favored have been made more beautiful for Summer.

MILLINERY—

Large and medium-size hats are always revived at this season, because women simply must wear them as protectors from the sun. Besides the dainty Summer frocks would look absurd if worn with the small stiff hats of Spring.

The hats with brims turning high at the side that were made famous by Gainsborough have again been reproduced. However, they are not burdened with huge plumes, but instead are simply trimmed with garlands and touquets of lovely flowers and wheat. These hats should be worn very low over the right ear, and at a decided angle at the other side.

Although Paris was enthusiastic about the bright colors of Spring, she now says that black hats are most ultra. As all black is a bit heavy for Summer, the modistes very ingeniously combined black tulle with milan or tagal in some hats, while for others they used only Chantilly lace, or lace and tulle. All of these hats with their flutings and butterfly bows are quite airy and Summery. If you get one you should make sure that the tulle is shower-proof.

As Panama hats are more modishly blocked this season, they are very pretty when trimmed with lovely flowers and touches of lace. Of course, some Panama hats are most attractive when draped with rich silk scarfs—these hats for outing and utility.

DRESSES—

The stereotyped lingerie dresses of lawn and much lace have at last been ruled out of the fashion world. Fine cotton crepe and voile frocks that are effectively embroidered and combined with pretty printed cottons are the favorite modes for afternoon. What joys these frocks will be after those that were over-trimmed instead of artistically designed to make them dressy.

Russian blouse dresses of cotton ratine, linen and crepe are among the smartest for morning wear. The most effective have white skirts and colored blouses. Those of crepe with cluster-pleated peplums are quite chic for they give sunburst effects over straight-cut skirts.

The silk dress situation is rather peculiar. Silk crepes have become so popular that they are really commonplace. Nevertheless, they make the most charming of afternoon and evening gowns. But there is a joyous surprise—foulard dresses are highly endorsed by the dressmakers who make distinctive modes. These dresses in polka dotted patterns are the most modish.

Suits.

Generally speaking, linen suits head Fashion's list. However, the severely tailored modes of cotton matelasse are considered the most ultra, and the heavy cotton crepe suits that are quite elaborately embroidered make as charming afternoon costumes as you can desire.

Cotton eponge suits will be worn by smart women in the mornings. When these suits have plain white skirts and either plain color or striped coats they are wonderfully attractive.

Coats.

Unless you have an extensive wardrobe, it is advisable to limit the number of coats in Summer to two or three. If you are going to the seashore or mountains, a white polo cloth coat should be your one choice, because it is just as appropriate in the evening (informally) as in the morning. Such a coat in the new five-eighths length, bound with white silk braid, and fashioned with belted back is most satisfactory.

Short coats of light-weight chinchilla are also correct for seashore and athletic wear, in white, green, rose and blue.

Black and white checked woolen coats are very good looking, but can only be in the sporting category.

Draped wraps of chiffon, headgemmed net, crepe de chine, moire and brocaded charmeuse are the most effective in the short lengths that simply swathe the body.

Blouses.

The fichu blouse is undoubtedly the most unique mode and the daintiest creation of the season. Before getting one be sure that you can wear a fichu, and know how it should be draped, for if you do not you are apt to look far from modish. The fichu of fine Brussels net, edged with pleatings of the net or fine lace may be mounted on a simple blouse of Dolly Varden voile, crepe de chine or fine shadow lace.

The blouses with the various interpretations of the Mme. Lebrun ruche are dainty, too. These all have rather low pointed necks, with single or double pleatings of net or lace, just where the coat fastens.

The new trotteur blouses of tub silk or crepe de chine are the Parisienne's idea of what a tailored waist should be. You will be very apt to agree with many other women that these blouses are the smartest women have yet been privileged to wear. One of the most attractive models has a pointed neck, with medium-size flat collar and tiny revers, finished with corded edges.

As there are so many blouses with pretty collars, the regulation lingerie types are considered a trifle passe.

Good Clothes

WITH all this talk of the present day woman's extravagance in dress it takes some courage to come out very strong as an advocate of the good clothes doctrine, yet I do believe that good clothes—not necessarily extravagant ones—mean a whole lot more than we are accustomed to think.

Even though he may groan when he pays the bills, there is no man alive who prefers a dowdy wife to a stylish one. No young matron should allow her wardrobe to lapse so that it does not contain at least one good tailored suit, one up-to-date evening gown and several pretty trim morning dresses. Her good clothes and her good appearance will have a mighty influence in her husband's thoughts of her.

"And if this is true for the young matron it is likewise for the older woman who has a family of children who are at the observant and critical age. The college girl is apt to feel a thrill of pride if she welcomes a smartly dressed, correctly veiled and hatted mother before her mates, than if mother appears in a last year's suit and a home-trimmed bonnet. Don't spend all the money on Daughter—you are some one in the world, too. Your sons will like to take you out if you dress your hair in the modern styles and have a becoming evening gown. They'll like it if one of the fellows say "Gee, your mother looks young enough to be your sister."

Good clothes play a great part in most transactions of life. Don't go to apply for a business position without knowing that your shoes and gloves are trig and clean, that you are dressed as well and as neatly as you can possibly afford. Jewelry and "fancy fixings" you may forego, but not a well cut skirt and coat, a good style blouse and a becoming plain hat. First impressions are often very strong and the girl who applies for a position and who is neatly, becomingly and appropriately dressed stands a better show than Miss Dowdy.

And don't good clothes give you a lot of courage? I once knew a woman who never went out to "reason with" any offending tradesman unless she wore her best suit, a white veil and white gloves. She said she could have reprimanded a major-general when thus attired. And I don't doubt it—though she wouldn't have had the courage even to reason with the iceman if she wasn't dressed up.

It's more than just clothes, dear reader. The fact that you know you look your best gives you confidence in yourself and rises your standards of behavior. You may not realize it, but it's true. It's just a sort of continuation of the days when you "played lady" in mother's or Auntie's shawl and left the sweep of it behind you was a regular Lady Gullmeyre De Vere train. Didn't your manners take on a statelyness and dignity that were never present when you were in your own short gingham skirts. Absurd? No—very human.

Personally I believe in wearing the best clothes you can afford in keeping them looking their very best, and in wearing them all the time. It will make you hold your head higher, both literally and figuratively. "Costly thy habit as thy purse can buy" said old Polonius to his son—and though it's a far cry from Shakespeare's day to ours, the advice is still sound.

THE SUMMER FAN

Butterfly fans are the newest thing in their line. Apparently the designer of them has been to South America and brought back specimens of the exquisitely marked butterflies of that region, for some of the fans shows butterflies in shades of green, cerise, brown and mauve, painted on a silk spread edged with gold braid and mounted upon sticks representing highly polished ivory. Some of the spreads are of gauze so fine that the butterflies, at a distance, seem to be floating in the air and momentarily one expects them to vanish. The beauty of these fans is that they will harmonize with a frock of any color.

Another charming type of the hand-painted fan is of gauze mounted upon white ivory, every other stick of which is painted in water colors with a floral pattern while the alternate one is in a gold scrolling pattern. And as the upper edge of the spread is finished with white ostrich flues, the effect of the gold, the water colors and the fluff is very fetching.

Particularly fascinating is a fan of white marabou backed with white ostrich feathers whose tips, running above the body of the spread, make a fringe of fluff at the top. Trailing over the marabou are tiny pink satin flowers and small green leaves which run down upon a mounting of silver-inlaid pearl sticks.

SMART HANDKERCHIEFS

If you would have the credit of possessing small chic belongings, have your given name embroidered on one corner of your handkerchief. If the bordering is colored, the name must be in a matching tone, and if the handkerchief is in all-white, the lettering must match it. If you don't want all the world to know what is your given name, have merely your initials, done in the daintiest possible manner in the popular long style, in the corner of a handkerchief that is either finished with scalloping or hemstitching. But if you would furnish no trace of your identity, have only one corner of the linen embroidered in coronet design.

WHITE TAILORED SUITS

It may be of ratine this season.

Or if she prefers, there is Bedford cord for a change.

Diagonal cloths of rather rough weave have much character and distinction.

Whipcords in white and cream tints are also in evidence.

But many women will stick to serge—close fine twills, heavy twills and Herringbone serges—and they are all fashionable.

A NIGHT ROBE NEGLIGEE.

Alluring robes in delicately colored crepe de chine and white lace are listed as nightgowns, but may quite as properly be worn as negligees, and most women buy them for that purpose. The back and front, each cut from a single breadth of double-width crepe de chine, are so gradually sloped from the lower edge—finished with an a-jour-headed hem—to the bust, that nowhere is there an atom too much fullness. At the top the crepe de chine widths at back and front are opened at the right side and drawn in a point to that shoulder, while the other side is caught under the left arm. The entire lower section is swung from a deep yoke of white lace whose neck is drawn taut by a ribbon run beading after the robe is on, for there is no other opening and no fastening to bother with. The elbow sleeves are simply wide puffs of lace ending in narrow ruffles gathered with ribbon and beading.

WHAT IS HESSONITE

Hessonite might be a new disease or a new fad, but it's simply a new shade and it's named for the Grand Duke of Hesse. The shade, which is neither distinctly rose nor amethyst, but a blending of the two, is found chiefly in the semi-precious stones of translucent composition and brilliant lustre such as are used for necklaces, chains and lorgnette holders, as well as for hatpin tops and toilet pins of a minor character. Hessonite, considered as a color, somewhat partakes of the futurists' idea of shade blending, for the rose and the amethyst tones so melt into each other that it is impossible to say which one has the stronger characteristic.

TRAVELER'S HAT BOX

Make your own hatbox of pasteboard and cover it with wall paper or cretonne. Hinge the sides to the bottom of the box with baby ribbon run through eyelets. Make the top to hinge to one of the sides. This can be folded and carried in a trunk, and is more convenient than a regular hatbox.

MIDSUMMER MILLINERY

The medium-sized hat of hemp, leghorn or milan is the most popular head covering at the present time. The lingerie hats are lovely, and the poke shapes are particularly stylish and chic. The most popular colors for these hats are citron and fraise (strawberry), in the way of novelty colors, while shades bordering on sand, gold and champagne are also seen. The little hats covered with English crepe are particularly charming, especially when trimmed with wheat, roses and ribbon trimmings. The dressy leghorn models, trimmed with shadow lace or chiffon, are beautiful. The foremost trimming seems to be the rose, the huge pink ones seeming to be most prominent.

A flat cluster of roses, posed on the front of the crown at the top and a single tall rose were noted on two of the most recent importations from famous Paris makers.

The Smart Shapeless Coat

IF the pretty maids at the shore this Summer, or on the steamer if you are going abroad, wear loose straight coats with "no shape or make" to them, do not look surprised—even if you are. For they will simply be wearing the newest thing in wraps—the very last word in topcoats.

They are particularly adapted for younger girls and women, these new coats, and very jaunty they are, with a certain boyish style that is most fetching. Made of the thick, closely curled chinchilla cloth they are suitable for much hard wear and on many occasions when the "wind blows cold."

As to cut, they are quite straight with masculine-like shoulders and sleeves. They come just below the hips in that length that is best liked this season, and at the waist line there is an outside belt of the material, about two inches wide, which is slipped through loops of the material.

Another peculiarity is the fastening, for they button through, with buttons and button holes on the edge of the coat, and extending from the throat to the edge of the coat. The buttons are quite close together, and shining pearl affairs about the size of a quarter.

White coats of course, are very fashionable—very summery and very becoming, but the new blue shades (those lighter, dull tones) and the soft pretty rose tones are also very smart. And maidens whose complexions will stand the test will like the bright yellow coats, for this hue is also included in the list.

MOTOR HEADGEAR

WRAPS for motoring are usually made on plain, mannish lines, but when it comes to the choice of motor headgear, a woman may give her vanity a little rein and choose some of the little hoods and bonnets that are bewitchingly feminine.

There's the little straw poke of fine milan that comes in all the new and vivid colors. It fits in closely at the back and is very simply trimmed with a band of two-toned ribbon. Then there's a new auto bonnet having a brim of straw and a reversible crown of soft silk. When milady wishes to appear quiet and sedate she wears her hood with the dark side out; when she is in festive mood she may show the pretty lining of rose or blue.

There's a little flexible turban of tagal that is sure to be popular since it can readily be folded up and carried in a handbag if desired. A very fetching little bonnet is the one of soft yellow neapolitan with a tiny visor. The visor is outlined with narrow pipings of brown velvet and a tailored bow of the same material is placed right across the front of the crown.

There are some charming creations of chiffon which serve both as scarf and hood. They are made of a double thickness of chiffon and the middle third of the scarf is shirred across at either end to form the large full hood. These scarfs are edged with a tiny ruffle of soft lace and a double row of delicately tinted satin buds trim the front of the cap.

OUTING HATS

Among the smartest outing hats are sailors and slouch hats of eponge. The latter have stitched brims and crowns in sections. Panamas, white, felts, rough straws and cretonnes with straw facings, either rolling or mushroom in effect, are also quite popular.

Great variety obtains in the locations of the smart flat bows, and the newest note is sounded in the front placing.

PRACTICAL PETTICOAT

A new fancy is to have white wash petticoats of pique or poplin, closely fitted to the figure and finished around the bottom edge with embroidered scallops. Such a skirt is daintier, less expensive, and more durable than those made of silk, and are worn with tailored suits and closely fitting light-weight wool dresses.

four of the games played and then coming to Atlanta and taking two out of the three played. But there is a different story to be told this time, or we miss our guess.

The probable batting order of the two teams in the opening fray will e:

Montgomery, Ala., June 21.—Montgomery made a clean sweep of the Memphis series and six out of seven games played here this week by winning today's game. The score was 2 to 1. Walker drove the pill to the centerfield fence in the third inning for the circuit. Abstein tried to stretch his hit to the same place into a home run and was thrown out several yards at the plate. Shanley hit the bull in the fifth inning. Both Bagby and Harrell pitched good ball and were given sensational support. This is Bagby's fifth straight win.

Mobile, Ala., June 21.—Mobile played rowdiest ball this afternoon and made eight errors, which mixed with twelve hits by New Orleans, gave the visitors the last game of the series by a score of 11 to 1. Errors helped New Orleans to four runs in the fourth, after which the entire Mobile team "blew up." Wilson pitched brilliant ball for New Orleans and would have scored a shut-out but for an error by Kyle, who allowed a single to get through him with a man on base.

Senators Win Two.

Washington, June 21.—By bunching hits Washington took both games of today's double-header from New York—4 to 1 and 6 to 0. It took but the first inning of each game for the locals to win. Both Mullin and Johnson pitched great ball, two doubles off the former scoring the visitors only run in the first game, while in the last game but two New Yorkers reached second.

Score (first game): R. H. E.
New York. . . .000 001 000—1 6 1
Washington. . . .310 000 00x—4 7 3

Batteries: Fisher and Sweeney; Mullin and Henry. Time, 1:45. Umpires, McGreavey and Connolly.

Score (second game): R. H. E.
Washington. . . .400 100 01x—6 8 1

Batteries: Keating, Clark and Sweeney; Johnson and Ainsmith. Time, 1:42. Umpires, McGreavey and Connolly.

Naps 7 Tigers 6.

Cleveland, June 21.—Overcoming the six-run lead which Detroit secured in the first inning, Cleveland won today's game 7 to 6. Both Falkenberg and Dauss were driven from the box in the first inning. Mitchell went in to pitch in the second and held Detroit to one hit.

Score by innings: R. H. E.
Cleveland. . . .400 002 00x—7 10 1
Detroit. . . .600 000 000—6 3 0

McNamara and McDermott America's Representatives In British Open Golf Play

Hoy Lake, England, June 21.—Play in the elimination rounds of the tournament open golf championship of Great Britain was continued here today. The Massachusetts champion, Tom J. McNamara, of Wellaston, finished the first round in 77, and John Jones, of Awasco, N. Y., in 80. W. Heinrich Schmidt, the young amateur, of Worcester, Mass., took 86 strokes to make the first round.

In the second round, McNamara made a score of 79, which gives him a total of 156. This is the best score yet made by an American.

Schmidt completed the second round in 85.

McNamara was the only American to qualify today for the next round. He and John J. McDermott, again champion of the United States, therefore will be sole representatives of America in the championship rounds. The best aggregate today was by J. W. Guadine, who made 148.

Overall Sick.

Chicago, June 21.—Word was received in Chicago today that Pitcher Orval Overall, of the Chicago Nationals, is confined to his hotel in St. Louis suffering with acute sciatica. Dr. T. A. Davis, the club physician, said he communicated with Manager Evers by telephone tonight and announced that he would go to St. Louis tomorrow if Overall showed no improvement.

Cubs-Cards—Rain.

St. Louis, June 21.—After St. Louis and Chicago had played three innings to a nothing to nothing tie, the game was called because of darkness. St. Louis hit Pierce for two hits, singles, in the first and third innings, and the Chicago team secured three off Griner; Schulte got two of these, both doubles.

Third Baseman "Heine" Zimmerman, having patched up his troubles with Manager Evers, was back in the game this afternoon without being fined or in danger of a suspension.

Shortly before today's game was called Heine Zimmerman's punishment was rescinded. Accordingly Ziemerman played today.

Phillies Win Two.

Boston, June 21.—Philadelphia defeated Boston, 5 to 4 and 5 to 2, in a double-header this afternoon. The visitors captured the first game by batting relly in the ninth, when they scored all their runs.

In the second game, two errors by Captain Sweeney let two runs across in the first inning, while effective and timely hitting resulted in the additional runs. Ground rules prevailed on account of the big crowd.

DOCTORS TESTIFY ON M'CARTY'S DEATH

Calgary, Alberta, June 21.—With only a few witnesses examined this afternoon and several more to be examined, Chief Justice Harvey, of the Alberta supreme court, late today adjourned until Monday the trial of Arthur Pelke, who is charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Luther McCarty in the ring near here May 24 last.

Dr. Spankie, of Calgary, one of the principal witnesses for the defense, and who was at the ringside on May 24, declared he had been present at twenty-five pugilistic encounters, had delivered one knockout blow himself.

McCarty, he said, fell heavily, and it was possible that the hemorrhage was caused by the fall. The witness declared that McCarty's head hit the floor first, and that witnesses who said the fighter's hip struck the floor first were in error.

Dr. Dunlop declared he thought no blow had been received by McCarty of sufficient force to cause serious injury, but admitted simple accidents sometimes had serious results and that there might have been conditions of which physicians knew nothing about which caused McCarty's death.

The Hon. Mr. Clements, member of the dominion parliament, who knew Pelkey as Arthur Peltier, in Kent county, Ontario, was a character witness for the defense.

CANADIAN TENNIS TEAM SUCCESSFUL

London, June 21.—Canada today won the deciding match from South Africa in the elimination round for the selection of a challenger for the Dwight F. Davis lawn tennis trophy, when B. F. Schwengers, of British Columbia, beat R. F. LeSueur, of South Africa, in the singles in three straight sets.

Canada had won the singles and the doubles matches, while South Africa had won one single. The Canadians will meet the Belgians in the semi-finals, and the winners of that series will meet the Americans or the Germans, who are drawn together in the other semi-final.

BROOKLYN HANDICAP WON BY WHISK BROOM

New York, June 21.—Without being let down at any stage of the race save for a mild shakeup by Jockey Joe Notter in the home stretch H. P. Whitney's six-year-old chestnut horse Whisk Broom II., by Broomstick-Audience, won the revival of the Brooklyn handicap, over one mile and a quarter of the Belmont Park race track today, in impressive style. The winner carried 130 pounds. The time for today's race 2:03 2-5, is a new track record for this distance and a new time record for the event as heretofore the race was run over a circular track at Gravesend, while the horses today had to make only two turns. The value of today's race to the winner was $5,025. In previous years the money frequently exceeded $15,000. R. F. Carman's G. M. Hiller, ran second a length and a half behind, and Sam Jackson, owned by B. V. McGinnis, was third.

The "also rans" in order, were:

Guy Fisher, Lahore, Colonel Holloway and John Furlong.

Boy Wins Tennis.

Delmonte, Cal., June 21.—William Johnston, of San Francisco, an 18-year-old boy, won the Pacific coast lawn tennis championship in singles today, defeating John Strachan in the final match, 5-1, 6-2, 3-6, 4-6,6-4. Maurice E. McLoughlin, holder of the title, was not present to defend.

Johnston, who has made a clear sweep of all the important tennis tournaments on this coast in the last year, including the British Columbia championship, will represent the Pacific Coast Lawn Tennis association in the eastern events. The new coast titleholder and Strachan, the runner-up, are clubmates and understudies of National Champion McLoughlin. Strachan is but 17 years of age.

SEEDS, POULTRY AND POULTRY SUPPLIES NORTH AND SOUTH SIDE DELIVERIES 9 A. M. INMAN PARK AND WEST END 2 P. M. BOTH PHONES 2068.

ONE of the greatest drawbacks to poultry raising in the south is lice; they kill more little chicks than all other troubles combined and as the south is full of lice you can not expect her to lay many eggs. However, if you start right now you can get rid of these pests without very much trouble. Cleanliness is the main thing to consider, keep the house cleaned out and spray it with Conkey's spray thoroughly all the roosts, dropping boards and nests with Pratt's or Conkey's Lice Killer, and the lice are no more. Prices and directions and are guaranteed to kill. It is also a good plan to use lice powder. A few pounds of Conkey's lice powder will dust about 75 hens and if used in connection with lice liquid you can soon have your flock free from these pests. Lice will not live where the liquid prevents from the increased egg production.

ARE your baby chicks lousy? Better examine them and if they are, get a package of Conkey's or Pratt's Head Lice Powder immediately and dust your baby chicks, rub a little back of the head and under each wing; it will positively kill every louse and not injure the chick, and 25c a package.

IT IS not a good plan to feed much corn during the hot weather as a great many brands of scratch feed that are offered have about three-fourths corn, or the bulk of it is corn, and all that. If you want something that will keep your hens in good condition, just think the phone and make a date as they will be glad to come and see you. Try our Third National Bank Blds. Phone Ivy 2068.

CEDARTOWN, GA.

A beautiful wedding of Wednesday evening was that of Miss Marie England, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. G. England, to Mr. Wallace Shelby Gudgell. The home of Dr. and Mrs. England, on East avenue, was the scene of the ceremony, which was witnessed by a number of friends. The house was elaborately decorated for the occasion. The ceremony was performed in the living room by Rev. C. C. Heard, where ferns and palms formed a beautiful background. Throughout the house palms and ferns were effectively placed, and vases of carnations and daisies adorned the mantels. Mrs. Lewie Walker played the wedding march, and the little ring bearer, James Graves Hester, entered and stood under a bank of ferns. He was followed by the bride and groom. The bride was attractive in her bridal gown of modena crepe with brocaded court train and with trimmings of real lace and pearls. The tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms, and the bridal bouquet was of bride's roses and valley lilies. After the ceremony a reception was held, after which Mr. and Mrs. Gudgell left for their home in Alabama.

Misses Shirley and Margaret Simms, of Spartanburg, S. C., will arrive Monday to be the guests for several weeks of Miss Lucy Houseal. Many delightful social affairs are being planned in their honor.

Miss Katherine Turner has returned from Milledgeville, where she was a member of the faculty of the State industrial college.

Mrs. S. W. Gooh, who has been spending some time at Borden-Wheeler springs, has returned home.

Miss Helen Parks has as her guest Miss Persia Briggs, of West Point, Ga.

Mrs. A. A. Hester and children, of Atlanta, came last week on a visit to her father, Dr. W. G. England, and to attend the England-Gudgell wedding.

Mrs. H. S. Hall and daughter, Miss Florine Hardwick, have returned from Athens, where they attended the university commencement.

Mrs. Edgar L. Henderson will leave Monday for West Point, Ga., for a visit of two weeks to her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Horsley.

Misses Mary and Lena Render, of Greenville, Ga., are expected soon to be the charming guests of Mrs. J. Wray Pickett.

Little Miss Sara Bitham entertained at a delightful party in honor of her seventh birthday on Monday afternoon at the home of her mother, Mrs. Martha Bitham. There were seventy little guests present, and the young hostess was assisted in entertaining them by Misses Sara Parks, Sara Frazier and Frances Wood.

THOMASTON WEDDINGS.

Among the social events of the week crowded with interest is the people of Thomaston and throughout Georgia was the marriage of Miss Bertha Jarkson and Dr. M. J. Ware, which took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Jackson, on Tuesday evening, at 6 o'clock, Rev. Frank L. Ward officiating.

The wedding was characterized by unusually beautiful and artistic decorations. In the parlor, where the ceremony was performed, was an improvised altar, before which the couple stood, of palms and ferns with pink and white hydrangeas. On each side pink and white unshaded tapers burned from large silver candelabras.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Elizabeth Davis sang "Because," followed by Mendelssohn's wedding march, rendered by Miss Louise Baker, from Zebulon.

The bride's little nieces and nephews, Misses Grace Jackson and Ethel Zarn and Messrs. Winkate Jackson and Jackson Zarn, formed an aisle of pink and white tulle.

The guests were received by Misses Odessa Garner and Mary Lee Harrison, from Atlanta. Punch was served by Misses Beeler Colquitt, Mary Greene and Annie Sullivan.

Dr. and Mrs. Ware left for a two-weeks' stay at Wrightsville Beach, N. C., after which they will be at home with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Jackson. A number of out-of-town guests were present.

***

A wedding of much interest and surprise was that of Miss Inez Dickson and Mr. Wilburn Leslie White, of Calhoune, which occurred Tuesday morning at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. A. Whatley, at 7 o'clock, in the presence of the immediate home circle. Rev. Frank L. Ward performed the ceremony.

Mrs. White, as Miss Dickson, has spent most of her time here for the past several years, and by her personal charm and admirable disposition won a host of friends who truly regret her marriage will take her away from Thomaston. Mr. White is one of Calhoune's substantial citizens, having established an enviable reputation in the mercantile business.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. White left for an extended trip to the mountains of Tennessee and Cohutta Springs, Ga. On their return they will be at home at Calhoune.

***

Miss Gertrude Dickinson and Mr. George Torbert were married Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Dickens, at Crest. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. Baird and was attended by a large circle of relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Torbert are members of prominent families, and have the best wishes of Thomaston and community.

To Keep Skin White, Velvety, Wrinkle-Free

(Aunt Sally in Woman's Realm.)

C. M. W. says: "My neck is so discolored from wearing high collars I cannot dress decollete. What do you advise?" The treatment recommended to "Anise" will doubtless overcome this condition.

A. F. G. asks: "What should I do for crow's-feet and for wrinkles at the mouth corners?" Try a wash lotion made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in 1-2 pint witch hazel. This is immediately effective in any wrinkled condition. Use daily for a while and results will astonish you.

Anise: A simple way to keep your skin smooth, soft and white is to apply ordinary mercolized wax before retiring, washing it off in the morning. This keeps the face free from the particles of lifeless cuticle which constantly appear. The wax absorbs these wornout particles, so the younger, fresher, healthier skin is always in view. An ounce of mercolized wax may be had at small cost at any drug store. Use like cold cream.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR MAKES A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN

LOOK in your mirror, and look without seeing those white hairs. Instead, your hair is soft and full of color and beautiful lustre, and your eyes sparkle and your cheeks dimple with laughing pleasure. What a difference the hair can make! The most beautiful features would be ruined with coarse, straggly, gray hair, and great masses of soft, beautiful hair will make any face beautiful.

If you have dandruff, you try to cure it. Then if your hair is fading and losing its vitality, why not stop it? Robinsnire Hair Dye is a pure restorative tonic preparation made in our own laboratory, and we guarantee that it cannot injure either scalp or hair. It is for faded or gray hair, not to bleach or change the original color, but to restore the hair to its own natural color and make it soft, lustrous and beautiful once more. Thousands are using it, women and men, with best results, and as it does not stain the scalp no one can detect it. Don't pull out the white hairs; instead use Robinsnire's Hair Dye, this splendid and marvelously successful restorative. For light, medium and dark brown and black hair. Attractions at Local Theaters This Week

SCENE From "QUO VADIS" at the GRAND.

Keith Vaudeville.
(At the Forsyth.)

Gertrude Vanderbilt and George Moore will head the bill of Keith Vaudeville that will be the all-week attraction at the Forsyth starting with matinee on Monday. This announcement alone has been sufficient to start an advance sale that gives every indication that the charming musical comedy star and her dancing partner will have the honor of making a new attendance record for the busy theater. In addition to Miss Vanderbilt and Mr. Moore, the Keith people have assembled six other features that will make up a program of exceptional value, a variety of novelty music and comedy that should suit the fancy of the most exacting theatergoer and the most positive critic.

About the bill that start on Monday, of course, the real interest is around Gertrude Vanderbilt and George Moore. These popular entertainers have already passed muster here. Miss Vanderbilt has made herself one of the most popular features of Keith vaudeville. She has that charming magnetism that is not possessed by many on the stage. George Moore is a favorite because he is an entertainer. The act is going to be one of th real events of the season.

Ideal is on the bill! The swimmer and diver will offer a new act, full of sensation, realism and novelty. She is a pretty woman, a real type of the physical culturalist, and will surely add to the drawing power of the show. A great tank will be sunk in the Forsyth stage. A scene that will have a cooling suggestion will be set, and the diver will show some new ideas in water stunts.

Minnie Allen, the chic and pleasing little comedienne, who has been successful with lyric and musical comedy, will be seen for the first time here in vaudeville. Miss Allen is one of the popular favorites of modern vaudeville and will add to the merit of the show. She is all that is required of modern vaudeville comedienne, and when the hits are counted, it will be found that she has registered right along with the best stars of the bill.

Comedy sketches have been played with success in vaudeville, and now comes the one big feature of the season—"Midnight Marriage"—as presented by Dorothy Richmond and her company. This act is a Broadway feature and crowded with unusual ideas in the act of laugh-producing. The Four Hayama Jays will offer a novelty in Japanese gymnastics and Oriental sensation. Doc O'Neil, the comedian, will make himself popular with a new line of song and story.

An extra feature on the bill will be the six Cuttys in a novelty musical act. The young ladies and gentlemen in this act are brothers and sisters. They are all gifted musicians, both in instrumental and vocal ability. They have been features with some of the biggest attractions and were chosen as one of the special attractions along with the Harry Lauder show while in the east.

The bill, as a whole, is up to the Forsyth standard, the sale of seats is on with a rush and another great week is ready at the busy theater.

"Quo Vadis."
(At the Grand.)

"Quo Vadis" will remain another week at the Grand. The tremendous success of the pictures after Wednesday of last week indicated to the management that Atlanta really wanted the sensation and after it had been viewed by a few thousands of people the interest grew so rapidly that upon advice of Jake Wells from his New York offices the route of the picture in the Wells circuit was so changed that "Quo Vadis" could continue for another full week in the Grand.

There has never been recorded here such a wonderful sensation in any theater. The price has nothing to do with the fact that the Grand has been crowded since the true value of the pictures became manifest. It is a fact that a multitude of people could not believe such a thing possible from a mere reel or so of motion pictures. These people have been convinced and they are the ones that are now clamoring not only for seats for one performance, but for the series. That has been the history of the "Quo Vadis" in New York, where more than one hundred and fifty exhibitions have been given at the Astor theater to the limit of capacity in that theater.

Return engagements have been booked in Richmond and Norfolk after "Quo Vadis" has been exhibited in the southern cities of the Wells circuit and at the Klaw & Erlanger theater in New Orleans.

There is no question of a doubt this is the most marvellous achievement up to date in photo drama and visualizes a story with the broadest appeal imaginable. Lovers of history will revel in the reproduction of the gorgeous pictures of ancient Rome with its magnificent palaces, its catacombs, the arena and host of other interesting scenes and will enjoy the lifelike characterizations of the famous historical characters, Nero, Tigellinus and the others. Those who lean toward romance can absorb the beautiful story of the great love of Vinitius for the sweet Lygia which turned him from a selfish pagan into a faithful Christian and the heroic sacrifice of the beauteous slave Eunice for her brilliant master Petronius. Those who take their pleasure in excitement will find ample satisfaction in the chariot races in the arena, the combats of the gladiators, the stirring scene where the Christian martyrs are thrown into the arena with the lions, and also in the marvellous picture showing the burning of the most of the most gorgeous spectacles ever thrown upon the screen.

"Quo Vadis" was produced at an enormous expense. Thousands of players were used in the big scenes and the principal roles were played by the leading dramatic talent of Italy.

"The Merry Whirl."
(At the Bijou.)

"The Merry Whirl" is the attraction at the Bijou for this week. This is another of the successful musical comedy tabloids that have been creating attendance records over the southern end of the Wells circuit, the seasonal visit to some other point in Dixie. The success of this policy at the Bijou has been so well established that patrons of the popular street theater have found that it is best to go to the Bijou early if they do not want to stand through a performance. Some of these people predicted a few weeks ago that the tabloid idea would not be acceptable at the Bijou. The wise ones argued that there was too much like the tabloid scheme in the cheap stock shows. The management simply listened, presented the shows and the wise ones have had to stand aside and see the multitudes crowd the theater at the three daily performances.

There is a vast difference between the actual tabloid presentation and the tabloids that are produced in the cheap places. In the Bijou the theater goer sees some one of the big musical comedy successes cut down to a playing time of an hour and a half. Real scenery is used, the chorus is a wonder in wardrobe and there is music and song numbers that cannot be handled by the little companies. Some of the cleverest people in musical comedy are in the tabloid shows.

"The Merry Whirl" will have twenty people, with a chorus of pretty girls and everything that goes to make this style of entertainment so popular. There will be the usual daily matinee and evening performances and the prices remain just the same.

WIMBISH CALLS MEETING OF W. & A. COMMITTEE

W. A. Wimbish has asked the committee from the Atlanta chamber of commerce on the Western and Atlantic railroad to act as a committee of arrangements for the state convention, to be called in Atlanta soon, to consider what shall be done with the Western and Atlantic railroad at the expiration of the present lease.

This is pursuant to the resolution adopted at the meeting of members of the chamber of commerce last Thursday evening in the Auditorium.

This committee will meet Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the chamber of commerce and will probably fix the date for the convention and arrange to issue the call.

The committee is composed of W. A. Wimbish, chairman; Bolling H. Jones, R. S. Wessels, Tull C. Waters, J. K. Orr, B. M. Grant, E. C. Peters.

President Moore will meet with them and co-operate in making the arrangements for the convention.

DOG WHIP IS USED ON ANTI-SALOON MAN

Baltimore, June 21.—William H. Anderson, superintendent of the Maryland Anti-Saloon league, was lashed with a dog whip at his office here today by Robert L. Ulman, son of a retired wholesale liquor dealer of this city.

Ulman had taken exceptions to a newspaper letter written by Anderson, which Ulman construed as an attack on the women relatives of liquor dealers.

Anderson received eight or ten blows, one of which cut him under the eye. Ulman was arrested and released on bail.

HUNDREDS KILLED BY EARTHQUAKE

Sofia, Bulgaria, June 21.—Belated reports of the effects of the recent earthquake in Bulgaria show that hundreds were killed in the towns of Tirnova and Gornia-Orohovitza. In the latter place, many buildings were destroyed. The shocks continue.

COUNTY CAMPAIGNS LAUNCHED THIS WEEK

Candler County Movement Secretary Talks of Boom of Metter.

The sign painters and the map-makers of Atlanta are busy just now getting things in shape for the new county campaigns which strike the legislature full tilt just about as soon as it meets. Every new county movement will have its banner fluttering in the Kimball lobby and maps of each slit cation will be in evidence around head quarters the first of the coming week.

F. H. Sills, of Metter, secretary of the Candler county movement, came up early to get headquarters in shape for the other members of his committee who will be here Monday. They are Dr. S. B. Jones, chairman; A. J. Baird, treasurer, and J. R. Dixon, assistant treasurer.

After investigating the new counties which have been created the last few years, Mr. Sills said he had no question that if Metter were given the same chance as Millen it would show even greater progress in the same length of time.

"Stopping over in Millen on the way up for the purpose of investigating the development since the creation of Jenkins county," Mr. Sills said, "I found that Millen and Metter were on practically the same basis in 1905, the year Jenkins county was created. Following the creation of Jenkins county, Millen has advanced rapidly, while Metter has remained practically where it was.

"Before the creation of Jenkins county, with Millen as the county seat, this territory didn't have a piece of first-class road in it; it didn't have a decent school house; its lands were undeveloped; it had one of the poorest hotels and one of the worst depots in South Georgia; it had a population around 1,500. Today Millen has a population of 3,000; it has some of the finest roads and best school houses in the state and its hotel and depot are among the best in South Georgia.

DR. TOEPEL TO JUDGE CONTESTS AT DENVER

Dr. Theo Toepel has been appointed special judge, representing the south, in the gymnastic and athletic contests at Denver, Colo., which takes place June 24 to 28. These contests take place every four years. The best athletes of the country, about 2,000, meet for these contests. Dr. Toepel will have an opportunity for seeing some of the best work ever done in the country. Teams from New Orleans, Memphis and Little Rock will attend the contests.

of the institution are pledged to go for service.

Here is, in short, an institution leading the others of the union in many vital respects, which studies each definite county in the state it serves, takes the young women and men from the counties, and fits them in mind, hand, heart to go back to city or county school and meet the conditions and demands of this day in these schools.

New Buildings Needed.

An academic building with an auditorium and additional dormitories are the pressing needs of the State Normal school now—have been pressing needs for the past five years. A hundred and twenty-five names of applicants for places in the institution last September could not be enrolled for lack of accommodations.

For five years the dormitory room has been taken in advance of the opening of the terms and places had to be found outside for many teachers-students. Now in May, three of the four dormitories are spoken for by those who will be here next fall. If there were dormitories enough a thousand students could be enrolled and would be enrolled within the next two years.

The auditorium is a crude one which is the object of surprise to the scores of distinguished educators, lecturers, students who visit the school yearly. But the need of an auditorium, while great, is even more than *matched in the need for more recita*tion rooms—for there are two and in some cases three teachers using the same class room this spring.

FOR TRAINED MOTHERHOOD GEORGIA GIRL MAKES PLEA

Athens, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Alumni and visitors to commencement week at the University of Georgia were singularly impressed by an essay, "Trained Motherhood," read by Miss Ida Lou Barron, of Clinton, Ga., a student of the Georgia Normal and Industrial college at Milledgeville. It is customary during commencement week to have the authors of the best essays at each of the university branches read their essays here. Miss Barron's attracted more attention than any similar essay in years.

It is as follows:

The Need.

In this year of our Lord—today—and at the present moment, there is no more fundamentally vital and significant call which comes to us from the hills and fields and busy marts of our Empire state of Georgia is the call for an educated, trained motherhood.

When we shall have answered the instinctive call which comes from the heart of our beloved country, when we shall have given to future generations of Georgia, that type of motherhood which shall most magnificently fulfill the God-given mission of woman—then we shall have answered the religious problem which await solution. There shall be educational, social, economic and political issues be settled wisely and conclusively, because men—men whose lives are living examples of the triune development of man, shall be given to us as a living testimonial of true motherhood.

Why is the need for efficient motherhood the most significant necessity of the day? It is because motherhood is an intellectual and spiritual influence as well as a physical relation. It is a universal truth that every individual mother's life radiates a power which shall mean good or evil to her progeny. The poet who sublimely said, "Give us men," was only voicing the great desire of all people everywhere—"Give us an educated, trained motherhood!"

What evidence have we in our state today that her heart is crying for real mothers? First: A casual contemplation of the average Georgia youth of today will reveal the most unquestionable evidence. Let us turn our eyes not into the far, blue blue, but into the streets of any town in Georgia if we would realize the inefficiency of motherhood today. Second: The startling, marital unrest which permeates our social life and attacks the very stability of the cornerstone of our beloved land, reveals the truth that America—yes, Georgia—has not received that training which enabled woman to fulfill her heart's desire through the glorious sacrifice of motherhood. Third: The feminine unrest which is in evidence everywhere that woman's conception of life has been misleading because of an unwise training.

Study the nations of the world—search the pages of history—and we shall find that those races who have preserved the purity and dignity of the home and the consecration of the nation have been those who have cherished the highest conception of motherhood.

Nor do we disparage but rather encourage the highest cultural and vocational training for our girls. We believe, however, that motherhood is that calling which demands the acme of a cheerful, calling and that the happy, successful homes may be resultant pedagogical that a knowledge of the fundamentals of womanhood from the elements of undeveloped intelligent, cultural, that our land may be made safe for "Men, God give us men. Time demands Strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and ready hands."

Men whom the lust of office does not kill!
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy!
Men who have opinions and a will!
Men who have honor, men who will not lie!"

And we shall rear a heroic type of womanhood, the circumference of whose heart are exactly 8,000 miles in diameter and 25,000 around.

A woman—not educated in a university, perhaps, but better than that, educated into the heart of the universe, of which it is our highest ideal to be a perfect epitome! Then shall the American girl not be one of the perils of the American home, but one of the safest and efficient help-mate, whose future generations will rise up and call her blessed!

And, when the ranks of the great shall have gathered in our midst, the fair summerland of Fields Elysian when many shall receive the blessing of, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant," it shall be said to them, little Georgia, mother, gave to the world all of today. Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all!"

GEORGIA CRUSHERS OFF FOR CHICAGO MEETING

The Georgia delegation to the annual convention of the Inter-State Seed Crushers' association left yesterday afternoon in a special train over the Louisville and Nashville railroad for Chicago, where the members of that organization will meet for a three days' session beginning Monday, June 23.

The party which left Atlanta was headed by P. D. McCarley, vice president of the Georgia Crushers' association, of Georgia. E. P. McBurney, former president of the association and T. J. Lee, official chemist left early in the week to attend a meeting of the rules committee, which is in session in Chicago today.

While the season just closed has not been the most prosperous from a financial standpoint in the history of the cotton seed industry, the members who left today contend that the more interest is being manifested in the use of cotton seed products now than ever before in the history of this business.

Many of the delegates will make a tour of the great lakes before returning to Georgia.

Among those who left with the party are A. P. Cain, W. D. Nash, W. H. Schroeder, W. M. Hutchinson, R. W. Malone, Mr. Watkins, Mr. Taylor, J. H. Hunter and W. W. Martin, of Atlanta; R. G. Riley, of Albany; H. C. Brown, of Augusta, B. J. Johnson, of Thomson; A. J. Thompson, of McDuffie, E. F. Thompson, W. J. *Murphey, of Newnan, and More*lan Zellars, of Grantville.

RHEUMATISM COMES FROM CONDITIONS WHICH CAN BE REMEDIED

But Local Applications on the Skin Cannot Get at the Cause of Your Suffering.

Just a bilious attack and a slight deposit of uric acid. Now calomel and similar mercurial purgatives do not dissolve and expel the uric acid sediment that forms from undigested, fermenting foods, and when the poisonous acid is not expelled it accumulates quickly, thickens the blood and settles in joints and muscles. The joints and muscles then become stiff.

An attempt to cure this rheumatism must be directed toward removing uric acid from the blood, thereby breaking up the crystalline urates already formed and preventing new deposits.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT is remarkably successful in the treatment of rheumatism. It dissolves uric acid out of the tissues, holds it in solution and expels it in the urine. It thoroughly cleanses the system of fermentation and purifies the blood. It will give prompt relief in all cases of rheumatism resulting from uric acid poisoning.

If you are suffering with rheumatism, try JACOBS' LIVER SALT immediately. It will relieve you more promptly and surely than anything else. Don't take an inferior substitute; some closely imitate the name, but none produces the same result. Insist on the genuine JACOBS' LIVER SALT. 50c. If your druggist cannot supply you full size jar mailed upon receipt of price. Formula free. Money back guarantee. Harry Coveleskie Leads Southern League Hurlers; Gil Price in Second Place

By DICK JEMISON.

Harry Coveleskie, the big Pole of the Chattanooga Lookouts, leads the Southern league pitchers with fourteen victories and but three defeats—a percentage of .824. Price, the Atlanta southpaw, is second with .818, and Sommers, the other Chattanooga southpaw, is third with .769.

Rube Evans, the New Orleans southpaw, has yielded the most number of hits this season, being touched safely 138 times, and being scored on more than any other pitcher, 78 runs being garnered from his delivery.

Coveleskie has fanned the most number of batters—101. Brenton, of New Orleans, is next, with 84 strike-outs.

Musser, of Atlanta, has walked the most number of batters, issuing free tickets to 81. Beck, of Nashville, is next with 62.

Foxen, of Birmingham, has hit the most number of batters—thirteen in all. Parsons, of Memphis, and Fleharty, of Nashville, are next in line with eleven each.

Musser, of Atlanta, and Brenton, of New Orleans, are leading in wild pitches, with eight wierd heaves each.

The following figures include the games played Tuesday, June 17, and do not include the pitching records which have been released since the season opened:

DECISIONS AGAIN IN GOTHAM BOUTS

concerned—public, boxers and promoters.

Decisions Help.

I have long been a booster for a return to decisions in boxing matches in New York as my readers well know, and for that reason I have always been at a loss to figure the objection to them. A referee's decision is no more likely to encourage gambling than an umpire's rulings at a ball game.

To the average fight enthusiast the question of winner and loser is quite as important as it is to a baseball fan. The secret of the popular success of sports of any sort lies in the competition for superiority and in any game where that important detail is left to the imagination the interest is naturally bound to slump.

So far as betting is concerned, a majority of sports lovers believe "money talks," whether it refers to a question of superiority in boxing, baseball or any other game. Men who like contests of skill will linger when they feel so disposed, law or no law, and under the "popular" or "newspaper" decision plan there is always a chance for arguments and disputes over boxing matches which would be quite impossible under the referee system.

It has taken a long time for those in control to arrive at the sensible conclusion that referees are needed in the manner of conducting the sport in this state. A big mistake was made in the first place in excluding referees in placing men of no experience in professional boxing on the commission.

The law has many provisions which require the knowledge of men who have been allied with professional sports to determine and enforce. However, Mr. O'Neil's tardy announcement that reforms are necessary should cause us to rejoice that he acknowledges that at least one member of the commission has at last begun to sit up and take notice of the needs of the sport. A rule authorizing decisions will help largely to renew popular interest. It is up to the matchmakers to do the rest.

Gibbons Can Hit.

Mike Gibbons can hit. Several local critics will insist that the St. Paul man does not carry the wallop, but from the manner in which he disposed of Young Ahearn last week at Madison Square Garden there is no question about his punch. It all depends with the clever Gibbons whether the fellow he is opposed to can hit hard or not.

If he can, Mike don't take many chances and as a result doesn't put as much force into his wallops as when set for a slam. In the bout the other night Mike discovered early there was little sting to Ahearn's blows, and what he did to the local man after that was plenty—and then some.

It was Gibbons' refusal to mix it up with Eddie McGoorty that cost him the popular verdict last fall. In that battle McGoorty was not himself, at all (and I rather fancy he has never fully recovered from the severe strain of training to make weight on that occasion to judge from his mediocre performances of late). But to get back to my story, Gibbons ought to have won that fight hands down. He had the speed, the cleverness and, I think, the strength. But Mike's bump of caution is not lacking in development, and that's the answer.

I doubt if there is a middleweight in the game at present who could win a decision over Gibbons in a ten-round battle. Frank Klaus might "cop" in a long bout, but he would not put many gloves on the St. Paul boxer in a short contest. Gibbons has been wasting his time lately boxing welters and second-class middleweights. He is good enough to take on Klaus, Dillon and the best of them.

A match between Mike and Pittsburg Frank would draw big, but I'm afraid there is little chance of its taking place before next winter at the earliest, if at all. Gibbons says he intends to lay off during the hot weather, and I understand Klaus contemplates a trip after the heavyweight championship of Europe. Georges Carpentier, by virtue of an easy win from Bombardier Wells, is now the holder of that title. Klaus has every reason to believe he can repeat his recent victory over Georges, and there would be big money in it for him., If he gets the match with Carpentier he will lose no time sailing for the other side.

Dillon Looks Good.

With Klaus absent abroad and Gibbons "resting," the best middleweight appears to be Jack Dillon, of Indianapolis. Eddie McGoorty was my choice, but he has not been boxing at anything like championship form for months past, and has evidently hit the old toboggan good and hard. His work recently indicates he is "through."

Dillon is to meet Jimmy Clabby on the Fourth of July. Clabby outboxed McGoorty at Butte last week, coming from behind and running away with the fight after having all the worst of it in the first round or two. The battle with Dillon should determine his standing as a championship candidate. Jack seems to lack the class to get to the top, but has been a stumbling block to many aspirants. In the only bout he was seen in in New York Dillon gave a miserable exhibition. Since that, however, he has met a Frank Klaus, and at times has given number of the best men, among them a splendid account of himself. The recent ten-round match with Klaus at Indianapolis resulted in a "popular" verdict for Dillon, although Frank and his manager have protested the decision.

The most promising material of all in the middleweight division just now is young Tom Gibbons, Mike's brother. While he fought green in his engagements around here, he gave plenty promise of future greatness. A season more of experience and coaching under his clever brother and Tom should develop into a worthy opponent for the best in the 158-pound division, and possibly a successor to the late Stanley Ketchel as undisputed champion of that class.

Jack Johnson Punched Bag Into Audience, Struck Girl; She Is Awarded Damages

Chicago, June 21.—Because Miss Ruth Mohl was hit in the face with a punching bag, Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, must pay her $2,500, a jury decided in the circuit court today. The young woman was struck by the bag which Johnson knocked from its fastenings, in an exhibition at a theater last year. She sued for $25,000.

Goodrich Tires

Best in the long run

When we tell you that Goodrich Tires are best in the long run we mean that for day-in-and-day-out service they are so made and molded as to give you long, consistent, uniform, satisfactory wear and continued, comfortable pleasant riding.

We mean that Goodrich Tires are an advantage to whatever car they are used upon.

We mean that, as the makers of practically half the 1913 output of 1913 cars signify by buying Goodrich Tires for equipment, they buy up and benefit your automobile, thereby increasing its service value to you.

Whatever car you own or buy you can have it equipped with Goodrich Tires if you specify them.

Frequently our attention is called to instances where Goodrich Tires have given unusual mileage and shown unusually long life under the most severe strains and in the most trying conditions.

We do not feature these unsolicited testimonials in our advertising—although they are so remarkably numerous as to be most gratifying to us.

We ask you to buy and use Goodrich Tires upon our straightforward, conservative promise of their quality and durability.

Forty-three years of active, successful rubber manufacturing is, we believe you will agree, valuable experience. And it goes into every Goodrich Tire

This knowledge of how to compound the purest rubber so that it not only retains every bit of its life and resiliency but is imbued with surprising resistance and toughness—wearing quality—is one reason for Goodrich Tires being best in the long run.

We believe Goodrich Tires on the average give longer wear than any other you can find. They must do this because our principle—unit molding—unchanged in all the time we have been making tires—gives the constructional perfection which insures against the greatest variety of road and weather conditions.

When the car driver is careful in giving proper attention to his tires keeps them properly inflated, sensibly avoids unnecessary shocks and strains, he gets astonishingly long mileage—but these records do not justify our making claims that would establish a wrong impression, and that is why they are not used in our advertising.

"There is nothing in Goodrich advertising that is not in Goodrich Tires."

Goodrich Unit Molding makes one integral piece of both thick, tough tread and strong, resilient body. The tread, being of the tire and not put on it, naturally does not strip or peel. The extra reinforcement of the sides with strips of pure rubber does away with the chance for rim troubles. Look at a cross section of any Goodrich Tire and at a glance you will see what unit molding means—there are no layers or separation lines.

Write for our free folders telling you how to get the best service from your tires and how to avoid the common tire injuries.

EMPIRE STATE LEAGUE

Americus 4, Cordele 1.

Cordele, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Fuelch held the Cordele batters at his mercy at all stages of the game today, and Americus easily won. Wilder opened up on the mound for Cordele, but was a little unsteady and was supplanted by Fillengem in the second. Americus managed to get hits at timely junctures. Reagan featured for Cordele with his fielding and batting and Humphreys for the visitors with his fielding.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Americus . . . . . 120 010 000—4	5	3
Cordele . . . . . 100 000 000—1	6	4

Brunswick 5, Waycross 1.

Brunswick, Ga., June 21.—(Special.) Brunswick made a clean sweep of the series by taking this afternoon's game from Waycross by a score of 5 to 1. Hartner pitched great ball for Brunswick. With men on bases he was invincible, twice striking out the side. He kept his nine hits scattered throughout the game. Clark pitched excellent ball until the eighth, when the locals secured a home run, a double and two singles counting for three runs. Both teams played fast, snappy ball on the field and one of the largest crowds of the season was present.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Waycross . . . . . 010 000 000—1	9	3
Brunswick . . . . . 100 010 03*—5	10	2

Thomasville 6, Valdosta 5.

Valdosta, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—In a slugging, listless game here today Thomasville won, 6 to 5. Chenny pitched a fine game, holding Valdosta easily. Gentry started the game for Valdosta, but was relieved by Winges in the fifth. The home team rallied in the last half of the ninth, but could get but two runs across.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Thomasville . . . .101020 101—6	9	3
Valdosta . . . . . 201 000 002—5	10	4

GEORGIA-ALABAMA

Newnan 4, Gadsden 3.

Newnan, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Newnan made it three straight by taking today's game from Gadsden by the score of 4 to 3. The game was a pitcher's battle between Lovett and Frentz and though yielding the most hits the former kept them well scattered, tightening up in the pinches and fanning 9 men. Two timely doubles in succession, followed by a single yielded the locals two runs in the fourth and the game was put on ice in the sixth when two more were scored on a base on balls, two errors and a sacrifice fly. Randall, of Gadsden carried off the hitting honors by securing two doubles and a single.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Newnan . . . . . 000 202 00x—4	4	1
Gadsden . . . . . 100 002 000—3	7	2

Batteries—Lovett and Rice; Frentz and Jorda.

LaGrange 8, Opelika 0.

LaGrange, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—The game between Opelika and LaGrange today developed into a wrangling match, and was forfeited to LaGrange in the sixth inning by a score of 9 to 0, after Manager Randall, of the Opelika team, had called his men off and refused to play ball. The squabble arose over a wild throw from catcher to first base, which allowed a runner to come from second to home, thus tieing the score. Two players were umpiring. Manager Randall claimed that the base-runner was entitled to only one base on the wild throw, and insisted that the man go back to third. Both umpires ruled against him, and Manager Randall ordered his men off the diamond. The game was then forfeited to LaGrange.

ANNISTON 8, TALLADEGA 4; TALLADEGA 3, ANNISTON 1

Anniston, Ala., June 21.—(Special.) Aniston broke even with Talladega in a double-header here this afternoon, both games being pretty exhibitions, featured by several sensational plays, a threatened fight among the players and spectators during intermission and the final ejection from the park of Catcher Easterling during the second game considerably marred the sport.

First Game.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Talladega . . . . . 000 040 0—4	4	5
Anniston . . . . . 320 003 x—8	12	5

Batteries: Cantley and Easterling; Stevenson and Shepperd.

Second Game.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Talladega . . . . . 000 200 1—3	3	0
Anniston . . . . . 000 100 0—1	4	1

Batteries: Cantley and Easterling and Ramage; Bell and Sheppard and Askew.

ANOTHER PITCHER HIT BY LINE DRIVE

Columbus, Ohio, June 21.—George McQuillan, leading pitcher of the Columbus American association team, for whose services several major league clubs have made bids, was injured in the second inning of this afternoon's game with Minneapolis by a liner from Rosaman's bat. The ball hit McQuillan's head about an inch above the right ear. The victim retained consciousness, but was hurried to a hospital, where it was said tonight he was not hurt as badly as had been feared.

McQuillan in years past has pitched for the Philadelphia and Cincinnati National teams. He joined Columbus in July, 1911. This season he has won ten of fourteen games charged to his account.

SOCIETY

EATONTN, GA.

One of the most enjoyable occasions of the week past was the party on Tuesday afternoon by Miss Eunice Bronson. The guests were entertained on the lovely lawn at the Colonnades, the home of Miss Bronson. As the guests arrived they were served punch by Misses Eunice Bronson and Dorothy Collins. Heart-dice and snap was the motif of entertainment. A departed at a late hour declaring Miss Bronson an ideal hostess. The honor guests were Misses Inez Parker, of Madison, Willie Williams, of Atlanta, Katherine and Louise Holtsclaw, of Perry.

Mr. and Mrs. John Turner complimented their niece, Miss Georgia House, of Knoxville, Tenn., with a prom party on Monday evening. The broad porches and verandas enhanced by the ideal moonlighted walks made the evening especially enjoyable for the young folks. Delightful refreshments were served during the evening.

The guests of Miss Margery Thomas' house party have returned to their respective homes after ten days full to overflowing of pleasure.

Miss Martha Gardner was the guest at a lovely party on Wednesday morning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Gardner. Progressive forty-two was played by the guests on the porches and in the reception hall. Miss Gardner is always a charming young hostess and was untiring in her efforts on this occasion to make the affair full of fun and merriment for each of her guests. The guests of honor were Misses Olive Bell, of Milledgeville; Willie Williams, of Atlanta; Inez Parker, of Madison; Katherine and Louise Holtclaw, of Peary.

Miss Bessie Harwell has returned from a visit to friends at Covington.

Mrs. Ona Athon Jarmon is spending the week with Mrs. T. C. Spivey.

Mrs. Colquitt Greer entertained for Mrs. Hugh Chaffin on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Percy Estelle. The affair was one of the prettiest and most enjoyable of the present season. Refreshments were served by Misses Mary Agnes Dismukes, Julia Horne and Douscha Sandford. Mrs. Greer was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Estelle and Mrs. Chaffin.

Miss Sara Lawrence spent the week-end in Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spivey were recent guests of relatives in Athens.

Mrs. Ketchersid and children are spending several weeks in Greensboro and Buckhead.

Miss Mildred Greene entertained the Delta Phis at dinner on Friday evening at her colonial home, Hill Crest. The guests were Misses Leila Turner, Eunice Bronson, Evie Griffith and Julia Dennis.

Miss Margery Thomas entertained her house guests on Thursday afternoon and again on Friday evening. The guests of honor were Misses Katherine and Louise Holtzclaw, Inez Parker and Willie Williams. These young ladies were honored again on Thursday evening at a theatorium party given at the Eaton by the young men, a congenial party of town girls adding to the pleasure of the party.

Miss Margery Thomas' house guests were charmingly entertained on Friday morning by Miss Leila Turner, at Sleepy Hollow, the home of Mrs. J. S. Turner. A most interesting motif of entertainment made this one of the most delightful affairs of the week past. Refreshments were served by Misses Martha and Lucy Turner.

Mrs. T. G. Greene spent a few days this week in Macon.

Misses Hattie and Sara Calloway were guests of friends here this week.

Master Gilmore Greene is with relatives in Sparta.

On Saturday afternoon the Thomas house party were honorees of a very pretty party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howell Hearne. Miss Rebecca Hearne, the charming young daughter was hostess on this occasion and made the afternoon one long to be remembered by her young friends. Ices were served by Misses Martha Gardner and Lina Hearne.

Charming visitor from Savannah, who is being delightfully entertained as the guest of Miss Ferol Humphries.

LAVONIA, GA.

A pretty home wedding which occurred in Lavonia on Tuesday afternoon was that of Miss Lura Allison and Mr. Clifford Bruce, both of Lavonia.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Bessie Alderman, a cousin of the bride, the bridal party entered. Miss Lila Hall with Mr. Marshall Allison, Miss Fannie Lou Chandler with Mr. Tom Carson. Then came the bride and groom, taking their places before an improvised altar of ferns under a cluster of wedding bells. Rev. J. W. King performed the ceremony in a very impressive manner, during which Miss Alderman softly played.

Punch was served during the afternoon by Misses Dixie Allison and Clarice Ray.

The bride wore a handsome traveling suit of blue cloth, which was very becoming to her youthful beauty.

Quite a number of beautiful as well as useful presents were received. Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left for a few days' stay at Indian Springs. They will be at home to their friends after June 22 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Gary.

MORROW, GA.

Miss Agnes Duffey has returned from St. Louis where she presided over the convention of Sigma Iota Chi sorority, being re-elected to the office of grand president. Miss Duffey returned by way of Nashville and Chattanooga for brief visits.

Mrs. Marlin Defoor and little daughter have returned from a visit to relatives in Hazelhurst.

Miss Corinne Barton is spending the month of June with her grandmother, Mrs. J. H. Maddox, in Conyers.

Misses Emma Murphy and Nell Nolon were present at the marriage of Miss Willie Shields and Mr. Ben Hill Chapman, in Atlanta, on Tuesday.

Miss Mae Frank Duffey was the guest of Mrs. T. H. Houseman in Atlanta Wednesday.

Messrs. N. V. Hawthorne, of Plant City, Fla., and E. M. Chapman, of Atlanta, visited Morrow recently.

Everybody club met with Miss Emma Murphy on Wednesday evening.

After a business session social features prevailed.

Mrs. Ethel Patterson and children, of Atlanta, are with Mrs. J. M. Defoor this week.

Miss Ruby Sanders is with her sister, Mrs. Ernest Dennard, of Atlanta.

ROME, GA.

Miss Marion Dean entertained charmingly at the Colligni Monday afternoon for three attractive young matrons visiting here, Mrs. J. D. Arrington, of Greenville, S. C.; Mrs. Calvin Otis Coles, El Paso, Texas, and Mrs. Tim Willis, of Columbus.

Miss Lilla Pickling's masque party for Misses Helen and Dorothy Dean, of Gainesville, Monday evening was a most interesting affair to the favored companions bidden to meet the four visitors.

Tuesday evening Miss Helen McLin tendered Misses Dean, of Gainesville, and Miss Milda Harbin, of Calhoun, a reception at the Country club.

Mrs. Claud Porter to honor Miss Gladie Mabry, of Beaumont, Texas, entertained a congenial sewing club Tuesday morning.

Miss Louise Stanfield was hostess on Tuesday evening at a pre-nuptial lanheon to her sister, Miss Frances Stanfield, a bride-elect of this week.

Miss Emily Arrington complimented Miss Martha Sproull, of Anniston, with an auction bridge party Friday.

Miss Estelle Mitchell, the most gifted negro dialect reader, gave a benefit recital for the Parish Guild of St. Peter's Thursday evening. Miss Mitchell is unequaled in the representation of the negro character and was heard at her best on this occasion. Mr. Walter Coker rendered three beautiful baritone selections beautifully.

Miss Mary Lake Shelton, of Cave Spring, was the guest of Mrs. Henry Bradford, on Third avenue.

An au revoir reception was tendered Mrs. Charles E. Woodruff and daughter, Miss Sarah, by the Woman's Mission society and Young Woma's auxiliary of which the popular honorees are valued members, at the home of Mrs. C. S. Sparks, Wednesday afternoon. Religious and social circles of Rome universally regret the moving away of Mr. and Mrs. Woodruff, but express the hope always that fortune will favor their return to the old home.

A Bonita party was the pleasant way Miss Ethel Stiles entertained her friends Wednesday afternoon in celebration of her tenth birthday.

Miss Julia Pope Smith was hostess to her sewing club Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. M. R. Emmons, of Atlanta, is the guest of Mrs. D. W. Simmons.

Miss Stacy Hannun, of Maryville, Tenn., is the welcomed guest of her sister, Mrs. J. E. Dean.

MISS DOROTHY DAVIS.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin Davis, a pretty young woman and a talented musician. She is a piano pupil of Mr. Barth, and will graduate next year from Miss Hapes's school.

Business Women Urge the Need Of a Building for the Y. W. C. A.

While the members of the board of management in Atlanta of the Young Women's Christian association are planning to renew the association work in broader scope in the fall, and the membership is awaiting with interest the program for the work, it is interesting to note the demand of the business women of Atlanta for the various departments of this institution.

It would seem that the business women saw in the Young Women's Christian association plant not only the home atmosphere which many a business woman cannot command, but the conveniences and pleasures which the business man finds in his athletic and social clubs, and his membership in the chamber of commerce.

"The Young Women's Christian association is a positive necessity to the business woman of Atlanta," said Miss Hattie Post, one of Atlanta's leading business women.

"If I were without a home or family in a strange city, the boarding home of the Y. W. C. A. would be the first place I would seek," she continued.

"Nothing could do more to supply what business women need, recreation, home surroundings, than an active membership in what the Y. W. C. A. work is."

Another ViewPoint.

Miss Carrie Elizabeth Thomas, in discussing the helpfulness of the Y. W. C. A. to the busines woman, said yesterday:

"The Y. W. C. A. stands for the spiritual, physical, intellectual and social welfare of all womankind; for our sisters coping with the problem of the business world; for our girls in schools and colleges, and for the strangers within our gates. The work of the association is peculiarly beneficial to the business girl and it is she who accepts its many phases of the work that gives and also receives the greatest good from the association.

"The business women of Atlanta who have long been members of the association and who are interested in its activities heartily indorse the step which the association made when it gave up its inadequate quarters in the Steiner-Emery building and moved its our temporary office and rest room in the Wesley Memorial building.

"Our clubs are conducted in the following manner: We meet Monday evenings at 6 o'clock, 'blue Monday,' if you please, and get the busy week started off bright. Open up with a fifteen-minute vesper service, after which supper is served. We sit at a long table, where a simple, wholesome repast is served at a nominal cost; laughter and good cheer fill a large place on the menu. After supper we retire to the reading rooms and take up for forty-five minutes something in the nature of a study; often it is current events, reading and discussion of some book, the study of the short story and various other things of interest. Sometimes we invite an outsider to come and give a talk. In this way it helps us keep in touch with other busy people of our day.

"Last, and by no means least, the department of the Y. W. C. A. which appeals to all girls is the hour spent in the gymnasium. Here is where you get rid of that tired feeling, feel relaxing and forgetting all your aches in having a genuine good time. At different intervals we give parties and frolics in the gymnasium hall. These teem with good, wholesome amusements — Halloween, Washington's birthday, Thanksgiving parties, etc., but best of all are our children's parties. At these we dress up as little girls, put away grown-up airs and resort to childish things, enjoying games of tag, stick candy and red lemonade.

"Fifty years ago there were but few, if any, business women in our city; today more than half of the employed are women. There is a great need for a large and strong association to cope with the problems that confront us, as many of the girls employed in our city come from our surrounding towns and villages to start in a small way a business career. They often have no home life within the city. The association can give just the social life they need, in a refined and spiritual atmosphere, and put them in touch with business girls of experience who can often help them to something better.

"Atlanta does not seem to recognize all the changes which have come about in the last half century. Some day she will wake up to the fact that no better investment can be made than that of erecting a building well equipped to fit all the demands of the Young Women's Christian association. Women in our city today are filling places of trust; they are fast becoming indispensable in the business world and others are in training to fill their places as they leave it."

WHEELER-PREYER.

Lyerly, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—A wedding of more than ordinary interest took place here Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock, Mrs. Annie Wheeler, of this place, and Mr. Edwin Preyer, of Zybach, Texas, being happily married at the home of the bride, the Rev. N. A. Parsons, pastor of the Methodist church, performing the marriage ceremony. The wedding came as quite a surprise to the many friends of the bride, who is well known all over the county and northwest Georgia. There were only a few friends and relatives present at the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Preyer will leave shortly for Zybach, where they will make their home.

Beautiful View at Brenau College

Brenau College, Gainesville, Ga., is noted for its beautiful environment as well as for the perfection of its educational equipment. The college estate comprises 100 acres or land, part of which is the big campus with its many wide-branched oaks.

The view shown above was taken from the archway of Yonah Hall, the main building in a group of thirty-two. It shows the charming architectural simplicity characteristic of the college buildings, and gives a pretty vista through the campus trees.

There are hundreds of such lovely spots to be found about the college. The sunken gardens, with its Italian fountain and steps of marble; the pretty lake in the natural park, unexpected archways and old world corners, all delight the eye of the visitor to the college.

The summer session will open June 30, and the regular session opens September 11.

The Keynote of Modern Business Is "Service"

ANNUAL EXCURSION OF THE CITY SALESMEN ASSOCIATION

Popular Event Will Be Pulled Off Next Friday—Large Crowds Going to Isle of Palms and Big Time Is Sure—Wholesalers Make Their Arrangements.

The big event of the year amongst the men who do their travelling in the city of Atlanta will be pulled off next Friday. This is the annual excursion of the City Salesmen's association. For the past twenty years the association has conducted an excursion of this nature and the results have been such that now it is an outing that is looked forward to by large numbers of the best people in the city as an opportunity for one of the very best of holidays with a bunch of the very best of fellows along to see that everybody has a good time and the best of attention.

This year the association has selected the Isle of Palms, at Charleston, S. C., as the point to which they will turn their faces and seek the refreshing ozone and invigorating sea waves for a week or so. To anybody that knows Charleston the wisdom of their choice is at once apparent and to those who don't, the best advice is to go with the association and see. It will be the best opportunity for a real vacation under ideal circumstances that the season will offer.

But if every city salesman is to go it is necessary to make arrangements for the conduct of business in the city while they are away. So the wholesale houses who employ them agree not to go after business for that one week. Of course it is necessary to supply a few staples which will be done in response to phone calls, but not except in cases where it is absolutely necessary.

The following is the agreement which the wholesale and manufacturing houses signed, together with the names of those who signed:

"The week of June 27 to July 4 being the time selected for operating the annual excursion of the City Salesmen's association, we, the undersigned jobbers and manufacturers, agree that our city salesmen shall have this week for their vacation and that none will be allowed to solicit the city trade during the time mentioned.

"E. L. Adams company, Walker Brothers company, Piedmont Disinfectant company, Southern Paint and Varnish works, Parian Paint company, A. F. Campbell & Co., H. L. Singer company, Shewmake & Murphey, Kelley Brothers company, Southern Coffee and Spice mills, A. P. Morgan Grain company, Franklin Grocery company, A. McD. Wilson, Chomsky Grocery company, Marett Grocery company, Browder-Mangel company, Fain & Stamps, W. S. Duncan company, Union Produce company, M. Abelman, L. & I. Rosenbaum, Brewer Candy company, Conley & Ennis, Harry L. Schlesinger, Oglesby Grocery company, the J. D. Frasier company, Branan Brothers, Emmet Torbey & Co., G. A. & F. Grocery company, W. L. & W. M. Fain, T. H. Brooks & Co., Baiser Goldberg company, McCord-Stewart company, Frank E. Block company, Wight-Davis company, Gailmard & Kendrick, the A. Fuhrman company, Inc., Fidelity Fruit and Produce company, J. J. Barnes-Fain company, Lowry Fruit and Produce company, C. J. Baisden & Co., Porter Brothers, Bell Brothers, McCullough Brothers, Williams-Thompson company, Ballard & Ballard company, Roberts-Jameson & Holloway, Blanton & Co., E. Liebtenstein, Dixie Pickle and Preserving company, Jones Brothers & Co., National Biscuit company and the Loose Wiles Biscuit company."

"In addition to this list of names of jobbers and manufacturers the following letter has been sent out by the Retail Grocers and Butchers' association. It is addressed to all retail grocers and butchers in Atlanta and vicinity, and reads as follows:

"The city salesmen will be off on their annual excursion soon. They desire your co-operation to make this a success. We know you will lend to them the same help and co-operation they, the salesmen, have at all times shown the retailer.

"Trusting you will do all in your power to demonstrate the appreciation we know you feel for the City Salesmen's association, we beg to remain very truly yours,

"O. T. CAMP, President.
"J. E. MAUK, Secretary."

Here's a good time for the boys of the C. S. A. We know they deserve it and wish that they may get it in good measure!

News of the U.C.T. Atlanta Council 18

There is to be a joint meeting of Atlanta 18 and Fulton 805, on Saturday afternoon, June 28, at 3 o'clock. Every member is urged to be present and bring a candidate. Council will act under special dispensation. All candidates now having applications in are requested to be on hand at this meeting.

Secretary E. M. Lunceford is now representing Young-Smyth-Field company, of Philadelphia, in this territory. He will be found at the same location, 507 Gould building, with a complete line of samples on display.

We were very sorry to receive notice of accident from Brother John L. Forster. We hope that it will not prove serious, and that he will be out again in a few days.

M. V. Roberts, of College Park, was initiated into the mysteries of the order Saturday night. Brother Roberts is with the Peoples Stock Food company, of Greenville, Tenn.

Atlanta 18 was glad to receive application and to initiate H. C. Gober at their last meeting. Brother Gober represents the George B. Sickles Marble company, of Tate, Ga.

The ins this week with the Dougherty-Little Redwine company are A. N. Wilkins, W. F. Sear, J. M. McKibin and J. O. Castlebury.

E. E. Shver, with the Consolidated Paper company, is at present on a trip in Alabama. He is doing good business and will not be in the city again for a couple of weeks.

NOTES OF THE CITY SALESMEN

The C. S. A. has a membership of 100 active and 59 honorary members. This membership represents nearly all lines of wholesale and manufacturing business in Atlanta.

B. C. Fowler of the Capital City Tobacco company, was out yesterday morning. Bryan says his increased family has put him to work in earnest, and between nursing the baby and selling cigars he is a very busy man.

Paul S. Paine is one of the most faithful members connected with the C. S. A. Paul is a handsome bachelor, a fine fellow, and we wonder why he has not been caught in some fair maiden's net long before this.

Prospects for the excursion grow brighter every day. The weather man is favorable we will carry a large crowd of jolly merry-makers. The people who go on this trip are composed of our best citizens, who go for a week's pleasure, and everybody is anxious to see everybody else have a good time. Railroad people take particular care of us, and we have been so fortunate as to never have had an accident on one of these trips, for which we are duly thankful.

The Gramling-Spalding company report an unusually nice batch of orders received this week from O. E. Reddy. Mr. Reddy is on the southeast Georgia territory and makes his home in Griffin. He is sending in the kind of business that is most appreciated of all—all the oil business and plenty of new accounts.

Some Workers FOR THE Southern Merchants' Covention

ATLANTA---TWO WEEKS---AUGUST 4-16

No. 2. Col. Willis E. Ragan

One of the secrets of the success of the Southern Merchants' convention, which will be held here the first two weeks in August, will undoubtedly be found in the men who have been selected to bear the brunt of the work on the committees and in the different places to which they have been assigned.

Colonel Willis E. Ragan, of the firm of Ragan-Malone company, wholesale dry goods and notions, is a vice chairman of the convention and also chairman of the finance and entertainment committees.

Colonel Ragan is one of the men whose solid business ideals have helped to make the backbone on which Atlanta has depended for her mainstay in the time of her earlier struggles as well as in her prosperity. He is of that type of business man who recognizes the value of rapid growth, while at the same time he keeps a careful finger on the ebullient pulse of the country and realizes at all times that the man with a level head acts according to conditions as he finds them.

Speaking of the convention, Colonel Ragan said recently:

"Of course there are many features which will be incorporated in the convention, which will prove exceedingly attractive to the visiting merchants. But one of the most attractive features to my mind is the date which we have chosen to hold it on. First of all, it was a good idea to hold it for two weeks instead of one, as we did last year. I know of many merchants who have already intimated to me that they are going to take advantage of the second week and come, whereas they would not have been able to leave their business the first week in the month. This fact alone ought to bring a considerable number here who could not possibly come otherwise. Then the time of the year at which we will hold the convention is particularly suitable. You see it is just before the busy fall season for the merchants commences. They will have a nice time to come here, enjoy the convention and get back to their business in time for the sales and collections of the fall season.

"You know, of course, that we are going to have a large number of merchants here to speak. It is our intention to get the best, and probably the best of all, will go home with the benefits strong in his mind at exactly the right time of the year for him to put them into execution."

GIDEONS MEET TODAY.

Regular Meet at Piedmont Hotel With an Interesting Subject.

The regular meeting of the Atlanta camp of Gideons will be held this afternoon in the convention hall of the Piedmont hotel. The subject announced is "What Is Takes to Make a Gideon." Everybody will be allowed to speak on the subject and the public is cordially invited to be present.

Amongst the visitors with the Lamar & Rankin Drug company this week were: Dr. G. T. Lyon, of the Lyon Drug company, Roswell, Ga.; J. H. Beasley, of the Rockmart Drug company, Rockmart, Ga.; W. W. Fincher, of the Canton Drug company, Canton, Ga., and Dr. Wikle, of the Wikle-Butler Drug company, Marietta, Ga.

CONSOLIDATION OF NECKWEAR HOUSES

Two Big Atlanta Manufacturing Houses Are Now Consolidated Unded "All Star" Brand.

Atlanta has been known for some years as the home of some of the best and most progressive neckwear and suspender factories in the country. The name "Atlanta" on neckwear, suspenders, garters and belts has been carried over many states by the firms of the Warren Manufacturing company and the Robinson Neckwear company.

These two houses have both won splendid reputations for the goods they make and have done splendid work to advertise Atlanta as a manufacturing city. But in the future there will be one house instead of two and it will be known as the "All Star" Manufacturing company. This consolidation was finally consummated last week and the new order goes into effect at once. The officers of the new company will be W. O. Steele, president and manager, and M. L. Minor, vice president and secretary-treasurer.

The offices and plant will be those formerly occupied by the Robinson company, they being the more commodious of the two.

Both officers of the company are men who are perfectly adapted to their respective positions. They have formerly occupied the same offices with the Warren Manufacturing company and it is undoubted that the new company will continue to grow and add much new trade and new territory to their lists.

This consolidation marks an important step in the growth of Atlanta as a manufacturing center and under the new arrangements the "All Star Manufacturing company" will do much to add still further fame to the name "Atlanta" on high-class manufactured goods.

WARD IS PROSPEROUS.

As Checks Roll In Dry Goods Man Tells of Collections.

When the Firing Line man called on President W. A. Ward, of the Ward-Truitt company, last week, he found the genial dry goods man busy opening a batch of mail. As it happened the question asked had to do with collections, and Mr. Ward didn't answer until he had opened five letters. Then he smiled and said:

"Out of these five letters I got four checks. That doesn't look like bad collections, does it?"

It didn't.

Later Mr. Ward said:

"Collections are certainly improving a lot. We have had some pretty slow collecting at one time this year, but their dry goods account. I guess it is funny thing, but I think the merchants pay every other bill before their dry goods account. I guess it is a matter of habit, as we have been accustomed to getting long-time credit. But it will have to stop, as business is done on such a narrow margin nowadays that we simply cannot allow extension after extension. Nowadays, when a man comes to open an account with us, I let him understand at once that when his bill comes due we will expect and demand a settlement of some sort, and if he hasn't the cash right at hand, he must at least make note arrangements or something of the kind. It is only right, too, and the wise merchant sees our point that we can give him better service and better goods at lower prices by doing this than we could otherwise."

In Memoriam.

The many friends of O. W. Stamps, of Fain & Stamps, are offering him their heartfelt sympathies on the death of his mother, Mrs. J. R. Stamps.

Mrs. Stamps passed away at her home in Griffin, Ga., Monday, the last Friday morning. She was a fine woman of the type which has made Georgia the magnificently respected state that it is.

The funeral took place on Saturday at 10:30 a. m., and besides Mr. Stamps, the following members of the force at Fain & Samps were present: J. C. Owens, Cliff Edwards, W. S. Gaston, W. A. Quarles, W. Y. Bailey and W. T. Culpepper.

BLUE SHY—STUNG AGAIN—A TRUE STORY.

Marietta, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Ye who listen with credulity to the whispers of fancy, lend a sympathetic ear to the tale of woe that comes from a nearby town in Georgia. This tale is but one, each town and each village has one or more who can tell the same thle. Not long ago a nicely dressed stranger came into the town, and went to the largest banker there and told him that he was desirous of interesting him in some life insurance stock, that it was a great investment and would yield large returns. The banker said he did not want to buy at all. The man then said: "Will you kindly give me a few names of some prominent men in your town that are looking for good investments?" The banker said, yes, and wrote out a list of six names. These names happened to be men who carried good balances in his bank, so he might as well have shown him the personal ledger as far as the stranger to pick them. The man selling the stock then said: "In case I get up a select list of stockholders here would you accept a place on the directorate of the company and take some stock as we want to have the stock widely distributed and want some very select and prominent bankers on the board?"

The banker said he would not buy. The stranger then said: "Well, in order to get this going here and to allow these citizens to get some of the good things of life, will you accept five shares as a gift and head the list for me?" The banker said, "yes."

Then the stranger began to call on the other men. He sold them stock in varying amounts, at the price of $40 per share, stating that on the first of the next month the stock would be advanced $5 per share. They bit, they got stung, for at that date this same stock was selling in the home town of the company by brokers at $4.50 per share.

Now this is really a crime, for by false statements, this man took from that community over one thousand dollars and the men who bought got nothing.

Whenever a certain criminal system is perfected then the lawmakers of a state in session can be found covering that class of crime. In other words, crime must necessarily come first, and law is simply the written and expressed decision of the masses of people stating that such a thing shall not be done. It is a commandment, and those that have been guilty of practicing such specified evil, or wrongful acts must stop, or pay the penalty. The law is thus to protect those who, by their weakness, show their inability to protect themselves and have become victims of certain wrongful and predatory acts of those who are evil-disposed, thieves, and the like.

One hundred years ago there was no need whatever for a blue sky law, for the class of crime that this law aims directly at was almost unknown, and was not practiced. Today this crime is practiced to such a gigantic extent that the United States government, by that great power, "fraudulent use of the mails," saves the public millions each year, and still the postoffice department state that $120,000,000 was lost to the people of the United States by fraudulent schemes last year. The federal governors our point that we can give him rights, and in its limited capacity is unable to get track of many of these kind of crooks.

The crime of selling fake stocks, bonds and securities under the assumed name of investments, that are really nothing in the world but skin games, has become a menace to all legitimate business and there is now a demand for a law to stop it.

One of the most carefully drawn laws to punish this class of criminals and stop this crime will be presented in the form of a bill at this coming session of the legislature. Aimed directly at this crime, the blue sky law will in no manner affect any kind of honest legitimate business. No honest legitimate business fears the law for he who is conducting such a business is of the great mass of the people that stand for right and honesty and make laws. This law will prevent grafters and crooks who go into every county and town in the state and swap worthless stocks for real money, taking from the banks the money of depositors that should stay there, diverting from the natural channels of commerce the wealth created in a community, where it belongs, and where it should be kept in saving or open account in the banks of that community for the carrying on of local enterprises, financing crops, and for use in barter and trade.

Any man that is not one-half fool and one-half idiot, can see that if the combined wealth of a community is constantly taken away and no value received in exchange is left there, that it is but a question of time before a most deplorable condition exists. This blue sky bill is aimed directly at this condition and when it is passed it will hit exactly the class of criminals who have been operating these kind of games on the innocent and ignorant man seeking investments and not seeking speculation. There are laws against crap shooting, poker, shell games, faro, roulette, stealing and all forms of gambling, but this high crime that no present law covers, robs innocent people of more money in a year, than craps or faro would take in five years.

Write your representative at once to vote for this law and tell him to work for the blue sky law, for it will help you and your neighbor.

S. CAROLINA FIRM GOES TO NEW STORE

The Hill Banking and Mercantile company, of Sharon, S. C., will move into their new store on September 1. When this building is completed it will be one of the handsomest and best equipped stores in the south. It is three stories and a basement in size, with a floor space of 68x124.

This modern department store will be a great thing for Mr. Hill's many customers and friends. Everything from a needle to an automobile can be found on display there, with the right kind of prices. Mr. Hill is yet a young man, being only 37 years of age, and his success as a merchant has been phenomenal. Starting his business in 1898, his first year's sales totaled $28,000. Today he is doing over $200,000.

Mr. Hill has a glad hand and a happy smile for all the traveling men. This story of his expansion comes to The Constitution Firing Line through Percy W. Harris, who sells the famous "Aragon" shirts for the A. M. Robinson company. Mr. Harris has also promised to send in a photo of the new building when it is complete.

They're coming. No doubt about that. They're a-writing letters about it. They're saying they'll be here and they're looking for a glorious good time.

We're on the job to fix things so they'll have it, too.

Speaking, you understand, of the SOUTHERN MERCHANTS CONVENTION, first two weeks of August.

The merchant who misses this stunt is going to be sorry all year. How come? Because it's the opportunity of his life to get next to a great big bunch of New Ideas. If you don't hustle out and find out how the other fellows are doing things you'll get rusty and sore and out-of-date. And that's the ONE thing you can't afford.

Come on, it's going to be a Great Big Thing for every Southern merchant.

THIS PAIGE CAR HAS HAD ROUGH TREATMENT

Texas Auto Owner Writes Humorous Letter to Manager of Standard Auto Co., Atlanta.

The following is an exact copy of a letter sent by Walter F. Seay, of Texarkana, to his friend, Mr. C. L. DuPuy, who also is a Texan, southern distributor for the Paige-Detroit motor cars, and manager of the Standard Auto company here in Atlanta.

Mr. C. L. DuPuy, Standard Auto Co., Atlanta, Ga.: Dear Friend—Through the Half company, Dallas, Tex., I recently became the owner of a Paige car, and for that reason I take the liberty of addressing you upon a very vital question, in so far as this part of the country is concerned.

"In the days before us Texans became contaminated with vaudeville show, female stenographers and high-powered automobiles, if one fellow stole another one's horse he was shortly jerked hence via the rope route. This was about all a man was ever hung for in Texas—for other indiscretions they usually shot him. In the present day, instead of being a horse thief, when you steal a man's car you are just simply a "joy rider." It will hardly be necessary for me to tell you just how a man feels when he comes out of a summer theater as full of sentiment as a dog is full of fleas, expecting to enjoy a pleasant ride home with a kind of mild-mannered blonde, to find his car gone and all street cars crowded to an extent calculated to make a conservative citizen cuss, and other instances of similar nature not necessary to here mention. Hence, it is my present desire to ascertain if there is some way in which these cars can be easily and successfully locked. Mechanics here seem to think that it is more or less impractical, but I take the liberty of asking you to furnish any suggestions that you can make along this line.

"Friends of mine who have more interest in my general health than they have in whether I get back home at all or not might have suggested that I should run the car myself, and this I am doing somewhat to the terror of the neighbors, especially those who have small children. To date I have learned that it will not run without gasoline. This about covers my knowledge of the car. I have a burning desire to learn something about the car. If you would be kind enough to send me your various catalogues concerning the operation and mechanism of the car, or any other literature that you publish that would be of benefit to an ameteur I would appreciate it very much.

"It might be of interest to you to know that although three white boys and one negro have learned to operate this car, who had never operated a car prior thereto, the car is still intact, and I have never had the slightest trouble of any kind. Yours,

"WALTER F. SEAY."

THREE POINT SUPPORT UNIT POWER PLANT

Nearly a Quarter-Century of Leadership

Active Power

In the new Model C-Six, there is abundant power, and more than that. It is active power—wheel-power, not merely engine-power. Loss through friction is reduced to the minimum by the Three-Point Support, and the maximum of active power is delivered to the rear wheels.

This means many more miles in a day, and with greater ease, than has ever before been possible in any other car of any power.

COLE SALESMEN ARE AUTOMOBILE ENGINEERS

They Are Not Only Good Sellers, But Help in Designing of New Models.

Automobile engineers are generally found in automobile factories designing automobiles, but there are four of them who are not doing this but are and have been successfully selling motor cars for some little time. The Cole Motor Car company, of Indianapolis, have four automobile engineers in their selling organization who are members of the big international Society of Automobile Engineers. They are William L. Colt, of the Colt Stratton company, New York; E. W. Arbogast, of the Cole Motor company, Chicago; John B. Wallace, Wallace Motor Car company, Newark, N. J., and Fred J. Decker, of the Shafer Decker company, Rochester, N. Y. They all sell Cole automobiles exclusively.

"That is some tribute to the standardized Cole," Chief Engineer Charles Crawford, of the Cole Motor Car company, says when his brother engineers talk of his advisory staff on the selling end.

Not only have the men made good on the selling end of the Cole, but Engineer Crawford claims that they have been of untold assistance to him in the designing of the Cole.

"These men," Mr. Crawford says, "as members of the Society of Automobile Engineers get the benefit of the numerous bulletins put out by the society. They are in touch with the pulse of automobile building. Then they get that all-important angle—the wishes of the automobile purchasing public. When an engineer knows what the public wants the rest is easy. I confess I get a great deal of assistance from these men. Every experiment that we make here at the Cole factory I give these four engineers a report on before anything definite is done. In this way we get maximum efficiency."

It is said at the Cole plant that the success these men have made in handling one line of automobiles exclusively is a good illustration of the success that an automobile dealer can have.

William L. Colt says that a man cannot properly handle his customers and give them the justice due if he handles more than one line of cars. In this his opinion is concurred in by Mr. Wallace, Mr. Decker and Mr. Arbogast.

AUTOMOBILE BEST CREATOR OF JOY, DECLARES MAHONEY

The motor car is a creator of happiness and optomism. It has done more to make the American people a happy, cheerful crowd of contented workers than any other invention in the history of the world. Such is a statement made recently by W. N. Mahoney, general manager of the Cartercar company's factory branch, Atlanta, Ga.

"The motor car affords a kind of pleasure and recreation combined that is entirely new to the world," said Mr. Mahoney. "The man who drives a motor car has a means of travel that is equal to both the railway and the horse-drawn vehicle. He can cover the great distances, yet is able to choose his own roadways and can go at his own free will.

"It is a new sensation, different from anything ever known to the world before, and that's why it has become so very popular in such a comparatively short time. Find a man who drives a motor car and you will invariably see a cheerful, happy fellow who enjoys living to the utmost.

"But perhaps the greatest thing that the motor car has accomplished is to make the life of the country people pleasant and worth while. With an automobile the farmer has pleasures at his command which are second to none that the city man enjoys. Time and again we get letters from owners of Cartercars in the country who say that they never before knew what real pleasure was. They are able to get around over their state and can keep in touch with agricultural development around them. And the motor car will do more than any other one thing to keep the boys and girls on the farms."

LONG TOURS FOR HENDERSON CARS

One Machine Will Be Two Years on Road, Reaching 'Frisco in 1915.

Three Henderson cars will start for San Francisco on July 1 in two exactly opposite directions. Two of these will complete their drive to the Pacific coast in twenty-six days, while the third will be two years on the road, arriving in San Francisco July 1, 1915, during the Panama-Pacific exposition.

The two Hendersons will be touring models entered in the Indiana-to-Pacific tour of the Indiana Automobile Manufacturers' association b ythe Henderson Motor Car company and driven by R. P. Henderson, vice president of the Henderson company, and Ray Harroun, the famous cup-winner. These two cars will be equipped with the Harroun kerosene carburettor and will use this fuel during the entire tour.

The third car will be driven around the world by Edwin F. Kohl. This will be a roadster model and Mr. Kohl, who has just graduated from the University of Wisconsin, has spent several years in newspaper work and established a year ago the Wisconsin Daily News, the evening paper of the students of the university at Madison. In the capacity of general manager he has built up one of the strongest college sheets in the country in the past twelve months.

During this "trek" around the world he will contribute to a number of newspapers, national and monthly magazines, and also to several automobile trade papers. He will be accompanied on his long journey by a Harvard graduate, who is a nexpert photographer and has had several years' experience in driving automobiles.

Several cars have made the trip around the globe, but as a rule they have followed the beaten paths. Kohl and his companion are going to keep away from the usual routes and take the Henderson into tereitory where a motor car is seldom seen. They expect to penetrate the steeps of central Russia and the wilds of southeastern China, north of the Himalaya mountains, cross the Syrian desert, follow the east coast of South America to the Panama canal and along the west coast of Central America and Mexico to San Francisco, Cal., for the 1915 Panama-Pacific exposition.

"The discriminating car owner equips with Firestone Non-Skid Tires because he knows they perfectly round out the pleasures of motoring. He chooses the tires which will back up and even increase the efficiency of his car.

These are the advantages he demands, and he willingly pays for the Firestone quality which makes them possible. He would pay more, if necessary, to get them."

Extra thick, buoyant Firestone tread affords comfort and car protection. Road-grip of tread design prevents skid, increases traction, reduces upkeep expense. Toughness of Firestone rubber insures—

THE SUCCESSFUL MAN OR WOMAN

—is one that uses every legitimate means at his command to further his own interests. And nothing is too small, or seems too small, to be pressed into service.

He sees opportunities to save time in the classified pages of his daily paper—in employment of men, disposal of furniture, purchase of this and that.

He realizes that the quickest way to make his wants known to thousands is through these classified columns, which form a common meeting ground for those who read the paper.

He appreciates that at the cost of a few cents he is put in contact with this vast army of people, among whom will surely be someone, or maybe many, who has what he needs or needs what he has.

And, if he lives in Atlanta, or its vicinity, he uses The Constitution, because it reaches the people in the morning, when their mental faculties are alert after a night of rest.

Shall It Be Flannels or Cutaways Or Formal Dress Suits These Days?

BY ISMA DOOLY.

Mr. Blank came wearing his cutaway coat—his best suit it was, he said. His friend wore white flannels and white shoes, and another friend wore an evening suit. They had been invited to the same dinner at the Driving club, the dinner to be served al fresco, and the ladies of the party wore the prettiest of summer evening gowns with picturesque hats. The man in the evening suit apologized, but stated he always wore his evening suit to an evening dinner, unless asked not to. The man in the cutaway suit said he never wore his evening suit to a dinner al fresco at the Driving club; that he did not want to wear his business suit; that he had no white flannels or any of the "ice cream effects." The only man who looked conscious of being all right was the one who wore the flannels, for, reasoned he to the lady on his left: "It is hot summer weather; I take it an al fresco dinner never is of a formal nature, and I think in our climate we must have a regulation evening costume for evening entertainments."

RETICENT ON THE SUBJECT.

Nobody cared to assert himself very directly on the subject. All knew the gentleman in the evening suit was very warm when he danced. They also knew he had paid his hostess a compliment when he came in his evening suit, which was perfectly proper for the dinner party any time where ladies are. The man in the cutaway coat suit was more at fault than any of the trio, and from the standpoint of common sense and comfort the man in the white flannels had worn what was most appropriate.

Now, it is easy enough to determine what one is to wear at the dinner in the home, for the hostess, if asked, will generally designate what she wishes the gentlemen to wear, but at the suburban club, at the al fresco entertainment in summer weather, there is often the question about what it is right to wear.

When the effort was made, however, yesterday, to get a number of Atlanta's best-known men to speak out on the subject, they were unwilling to be quoted unwilling to say for publication what for realization could be did not care about society or what they wore or anything frivolous like that.

The ladies who attend the evening club functions, however, unhesitatingly spoke out their minds, and with one accord they declared the men should be considered, and that the comfortable white flannels or light material of any kind of suit, of which the regulation summer suit is made, should be acceptable.

Men look so comfortable when they are dressed like they want to be. We make ourselves comfortable, and they should have the same privilege," said one generous-minded woman.

The Regulation Attire.

"I think the regulation costume for the evening entertainment at the Driving club is summer shoes, the flannel suit and the accessories which men prefer with these suits. The white flannels are extremely pretty, and I notice at every social affair that is nearly always the regulation summer costume.

What holds at the Driving club, however, does not always hold elsewhere, and the nature of the occasion, the guests entertained, etc., should then govern the costume. I believe that a formal occasion should be dealt with as such, and no matter how hot it is, if the conventionalities think men should suffer themselves to wear their dress suits."

Another well-known woman believed that in the summer men in the south should be privileged to make themselves comfortable, but she thought they should have some regulation evening attire, which they should decide for themselves—then all follow it.

How about the dinner coat as a compromise for the Summer dinner? was here asked.

"Where men are only entertained that would be all right" was the reply, "but it has always been conceded that the dinner coat was a cafe liberty which men took dining with each other, but never when dining with ladies. The truth is, however, different places have different customs, and the point I think to be stressed is that the men themselves decide what they want to do, about these matters, and then do it."

"I don't care much about the clothes they wear," here spoke a debutante, "but I do wish men would be more careful about their shoes that they wear to dances. They should have shoes to dance in which will not ruin our white slippers, and they should learn that they are not to lift their feet off the floor in the way some of them do.

"Why, the other night I wore a perfectly clean pair of white slippers to the club; the first man I danced with had evidently come in the shoes he had worn on the street, for they simply ruined my slippers, and he stepped on my toes dreadfully, too."

About whether or not the women are to wear their hats to an al fresco entertainment—that is to be decided by them. The picture hat, and the light colored, becoming one is always a pretty finish to the summer toilet, and frame women's faces effectively—still about this, as about other things—chacun a son gout.

GEORGIANS IN THE METROPOLIS

By B. S. CARRAWAY,
The Constitution's New York Bureau.

New York, June 21.—(Special.)—Costume recitals being eagerly relished by American music lovers as something out of the ordinary, a place in New York's musical life has been won by Miss Betty Lee, a young Georgia girl, who is to be heard in folk-song programs next season with Paul Dufault, the French-Canadian tenor. Early in the fall Mr. Dufault is to give a costume recital in New York with Miss Lee, the program to be similar to that which the two singers presented recently in Syracuse, N. Y., in private life Miss Lee is Mrs. Proctor C. Welch, and she has been living in Syracuse for the past two years.

Part of her time during last season was spent in New York, where she sang her quaint songs in drawing rooms and before various clubs, particularly the southern organizations, which welcomed her presentation of the traditional negro melodies sung by her with first-hand knowledge of the music. Another delightful specialty of the young artist is her repertoire of French "Bergerettes," in which she has been coached by Mr. Dufault. Miss Lee studied voice with Adelaide Lander, and she possesses a fresh and limpid soprano, which is exactly suited to the intimate type of song chosen as her own particular field.

Commencement festivities at Smith college concluded last week with the graduation exercises on Tuesday. Among the graduates was Miss Inez Tiedeman, of Savannah, who received the degree of A.B. Miss Tiedeman is a member of the Phi Kappa fraternity, and has been captain of the 1913 basketball team for four years, and a member of the all-Smith basketball team. She has also been prominent in social and dramatic affairs at Smith.

Friends of the Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur, formerly of Atlanta, but now president of the Baptist World Alliance, have started a movement to raise funds to send him to Burma in celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of Adoniram Judson, the first Baptist missionary to that country. Dr. MacArthur's tour will be conducted by the Rev. James W. Lallmer, a Baptist missionary in China, and he will be accompanied by the Rev. Dr. Edward Judson, a son of the famous missionary, and pastor of the Judson Memorial church, in this city.

Mrs. Paul Seydel has gone to Atlanta to visit her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Vasar Woolley. Mrs Seydel was recently elected treasurer of the Dixie Club of New York, the second largest organization of women in the city.

A party of young women from Augusta sailed Thursday on board the liner Berlin for Bremen and other German ports. They will spend several months traveling over the continent and visiting the places of interest. In the party were Misses Catherine Andrews, Luella Brand, Ruth Brand, Jean Doughty, Elizabeth Green, Alline Perry, Elizabeth Shippen, Ruth Shippen and Ruth Wells.

A party of Georgians, including George Adair, George Adair, Jr., Frank Adair, Stewart Maiden and C. M. Sciple, of Atlanta, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cochrane, of Augusta, were passengers on board the Cunard liner Mauretania when she sailed Wednesday for Liverpool.

Atlanta buyers in New York this week for their respective firms included the following: L. Mack, for M. Rich & Bros. Co.; H. J. Wise, for Wise & Co., and R. E. O'Donnelly, J. Daly and Miss M. Sullivan for Keely company.

Quite a number of prominent Atlantans were registered at the various stopping places in the metropolis this week. Those here were:

Herald Square—Mrs. E. P. Bryan.
Breslin—C. E. Harman.
Bronzell—R. E. O'Donnelley.
Holland House—Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Dix.
Woodward—Mrs. W. J. Edwards.
Netherland—J. V. Gordon.

Gregorian—Lee D. Lewman.
Hoffman House—C. D. Montgomery and S. Morris.
Murray Hill—E. B. Walker and H. S. Wiggs.
Hermitage—F. E. Winburn.
Plaza—Harold Herrick.

Visitors in the city from other cities and towns in Georgia were even more numerous, and nearly every hotel some representative citizen of the Cracker state was stopping. Among the Georgians were:

Marseilleses—D. Sullivan, Savannah.
Herald Square—H. G. Kepper, Gainesville, and J. H. Lanham, Rome.
McAlpin—Mrs. Robertson, Augusta.
Woodstock—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. West, Valdosta.

Georgia Will Send 500 Veterans in Gray To Join the Tented Hosts at Gettysburg

Many Leave Next Saturday to Be Present at First Gathering — Program Lasts From 1st to 4th of July.

One week from today will see the gathering of the hosts of Civil war veterans on the battlefield of Gettysburg. To that giant demonstration of peace and reconciliation between the blue and the gray, Georgia is preparing to send 500 veterans of the Confederate ranks. As early as next Saturday they will begin to leave for Pennsylvania, the first gathering being on Sunday night, when the first meal is served to the veterans by Uncle Sam. From then on through the entire week, Gettysburg will be the scene of a reunion and celebration that will be unique in the annals of all history.

Fifty thousand veterans, from every state in the union, are expected to join the giant camp that will be upon the battlefield—on the very spot where the conflicting forces fought desperately fifty years ago, with the fate of a nation hanging in the balance. Ten thousand tents have been pitched upon this field, covering an area of 400 acres, and this is believed to be adequate to hold nearly the 50,000 expected. For the entertainment of the veterans, Pennsylvania has appropriated $50,000, while the United States government has added $150,000 with an extra $25,000 now pending.

Begin Leaving Saturday.

General A. J. West, commissioner from Georgia, who has been actively associated with the committee working on the plans for the giant celebration, will leave with a number of other delegates next Saturday. Others will leave on Sunday and Monday, in time to be present for the formal opening of the program on the morning of Tuesday, July 1.

Among the well known Atlantans who are planning to go are Judge Marion Hillyer, of the state railroad commission; ex-Governor Henry D. McDaniel, Captain J. W. English, president of the Fourth National Bank; John W. Lindsey, pension commissioner of Georgia; Green B. Adair, Robert S. Osborne, C. C. Huff, Judge F. J. Martin, R. F. Rogers, Dr. Lewis Graves, Colonel W. A. Johnson, J. D. Bingham and John W. Woodruff.

Colonel J. McBride, who commanded the Tenth Georgia regiment at the battle of Gettysburg, is one of the most enthusiastic of those going, and declares that he will take his two sons and his grandson along with him and lead them to the top of Round Top Hill and there give them orders to defend it forever under "the stars and stripes."

Longstreet's Son Has Party.

From many different parts of the state letters have been coming into the office of General A. J. West telling of parties that are being gotten together to make the Gettysburg trip. J. Gaul Longstreet, son of General Longstreet, has written that he has a party of about twenty who will go from Gainesville. T. A. Little, commander of Camp 1380, is getting up a band of about a dozen from Commerce, Ga.

From Decatur a number of well known men are going, including W. J. Williams, R. M. Thompson and Colonel L. C. Kerr. Other men from Atlanta who have already signed the delegates' book in General West's office are T. W. Ezzard, S. F. Culpepper, R. L. Hudgens, E. M. Allen, W. J. Maddox, George W. Howard and A. A. Nolan. A number will go from Camp Walker, however, who have not yet registered, the party being in charge of J. B. Smith.

Scores of others will be going, who have not communicated with General West, although it has been requested that every veteran who can go will register his name. Free entertainment, including tent space and meals, is promised to every veteran, and hence the only cost to them will be the railroad fare, which is about $18, all roads having special rates. Indications are that Georgia will be well represented and that the reunion will indeed be the most notable event of its kind in history.

Ten thousand of these tents have been pitched upon the battlefield of Gettysburg to accommodate the veterans during the reunion. A group of commissioners, who have been working on the plans for over a year, stand in front of the main tent. At the right of the doorway is Major James E. Normoyle, who was formerly stationed at Fort McPherson, and is well known in Atlanta. At his right is Colonel E. A. Skelton, of Boston, and at the extreme right is T. H. Humphreys, assistant chief of construction at Gettysburg.

Georgia's Commissioner

GEN. A. J. WEST.

Who is the representative of Georgia on the special commission which has made the Gettysburg reunion plans. He has only recently returned from a trip to Gettysburg, where the final plans were made, and leaves next Saturday to be present at the first gathering on Sunday night.

MISS TEMPLE IS CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEE ON CONGRESS

Miss Mary Temple, of Knoxville, has been made chairman of the committee on congresses of the National Conservation Exposition which holds in Knoxville in September and is planning for many interesting sessions. There will be days devoted to the many national organizations of women now composing a large factorship in the country's progress. Among these to be represented will be the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the National Council of Women, the National W. C. T. U., the National Equal Suffrage association, the Mothers' Congress, the many national patriotic associations, the National Association Young Woman's Christian, the woman's department National Educational association, the National Association of College Women and the woman's department National Civic Federation, one of the last of the national bodies of women to enter the field of work especially in the direction of industrial conservation.

Miss Temple is one of the best known and most prominent women in the south. She is a native of Tennessee, but spends her winters in Washington city, where her father held public office for many years, and her acquaintance is among the most distinguished men and women of the country.

MISS MARY TEMPLE,
Chairman Congress Committee National Conservation Exposition.

Atlanta Suffragists Thank Constitution for Department

At the last meeting of the Atlanta Equal Suffrage association resolutions of appreciation for the department in The Constitution to be devoted to the suffrage cause were passed as follows:

"The Atlanta Equal Suffrage association, which is a component part of the state organism, is fully cognisant of the tremendous force for the furtherance of the equal franchise propaganda which has been injected into the crusade in Georgia by the unqualified indorsement of The Atlanta Constitution.

"The stand taken by this great southern daily is at one and the same time a further exposition of the breadth and fine constructive policy of The Constitution and an honest and frank admission that the granting of the elective franchise for women will be an early legislative achievement.

"The Atlanta Constitution has ever been a most potent factor in the upbuilding of the state of Georgia and of the entire south. Its policy has been mapped out by men who are broad, intelligent, conservative, submerging their own personal beliefs and inclinations under the one great absorbing spirit of human and national uplift, and it means much when a publication acknowledges that it has seen the handwriting on the wall, deciphered the message and read therein a prophecy and a promise of a new civic life for the nation and the world.

"For a paper of The Constitution's caliber to enlist under the banner of equal civic and economic justice to all citizens is but in keeping with its former standards of right and truth and decency.

"Realizing the vital portent of such an indorsement, we, the members of the Atlanta Equal Suffrage association, wish to express our gratitude to the management of The Atlanta Constitution; therefore "Be it resolved, That this body unanimously extends our great appreciation of the broad advocacy of the cause of equal suffrage, and be it further

"Resolved, That we particularly thank Mr. Clark Howell and his associates for throwing open to us the columns of The Atlanta Constitution, and we pledge to them and their associates not only our heartfelt appreciation, but our co-operation and assistance in any good fight, not only for the franchise for women, but for all crusades whose motives shall be the general good of our country and our fellow man.

"MRS. MARGARET M'WHORTER.
"MRS. AMELIA WOODALL.
"MRS. ALBERT GROSSMAN.
"MRS. HARRY DEWER.
"MISS KATHERINE KOCH."

WORK OF FESTIVAL CHORUS IS PRAISED BY DR. STARNES

How Atlanta has accomplished in one year what it took Toronto, Detroit and other American musical centers a decade to bring about, is told by Dr. Percy J. Starnes in an interview relating the progress made by the Atlanta Music Festival chorus, which has just disbanded for the summer. Dr. Starnes, who is an Englishman and whose musical career carried him all over Europe before he became Atlanta's city organist, pays a wonderful tribute not only to Atlanta's ability to do things, but to the steadily developing musical appreciation of the southern people.

"I am more than delighted with the showing made by our chorus," says Dr. Starnes. "It has developed far beyond my expectations. I find the material of a much higher grade than I anticipated from a community where choral singing has been at a minimum and where even the churches, generally speaking, are satisfied with the efforts of the quartet or small choir. So far as I can judge this in past years has left the finest choral productions of the great masters a sealed book to the rank and file of Georgia people.

"I believe that the years will prove that the southern people, with their generous warm-hearted nature, are the counterpart of this country to the music loving sons and daughters of Italy. I believe the southern people, given the opportunity for cultivation, will shine as the greatest music loving portion of our great country.

"The enthusiasm displayed by that immense audience of last Sunday, who listened with evident enjoyment to a program that contained no less than eight numbers from the pen of Grieg was a revelation in itself.

"This was a mighty monument to the educational work accomplished by our Music Festival association, and Atlanta has cause to be proud of those noble pioneers in the cause of her art, and proud of the city that can show such genuine musical appreciation."

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PERFECTED IN GRIFFIN

Griffin, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Through the continued efforts of A. W. McKeand, secretary of the southern commercial secretaries' association, there has been perfected in Griffin a board of trade, which begins its career with a membership of one hundred and twenty-five, and with funds in hand amounting to over $4,000.

The officials selected for the management of the board's affairs are as follows: J. W. Gresham, president; J. P. Persons, treasurer; W. E. Royster, secretary. Under the supervision of the nominating committee appointed to make the nominations, Messrs. J. W. Gresham, R. O. Crouch, J. P. Persons, A. P. Patterson and C. A. Jones were elected commissioners.

There are several projects which the board of trade will take up with a view to promoting a more rapid growth of the resources and advantages around Griffin. Among these will be the judicious advertising of the business facilities of the town. It is proposed not only to continue newspaper publicity, but also to scatter in distant states attractive reading matter concerning this immediate section of Georgia.

W. B. Royster, the newly chosen secretary of the board, for some time has been connected with the board of trade of Palatka, Fla. He has given his attention to such matters for a long while, and the Griffin board considers they have secured the services of an expert in his line.

METHODISTS TO MEET IN GRIFFIN DISTRICT

Griffin, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—An important religious meeting to be held here this week is the district conference of the Griffin district of the North Georgia Methodist conference. Dr. Fetcher Walton is the presiding elder of this district, and he will preside over the deliberations of the body, unless Bishop Collins Denny, who has been invited to be present for that purpose, should come. The Griffin district during this year has made splendid progress in all lines of church endeavor, until now it ranks next to the Atlanta district, which is the strongest in the entire Southern Methodist church. Some 175 Methodists will be in attendance at this district meeting.

LARGE SHOE FACTORY TO START AT BUFORD

Buford, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Bona Allen & Sons, one of the largest harness manufacturing concerns in the United States, announce the purchase of machinery for the manufacture of shoes. This new enterprise will give employment to five or six hundred operatives. Specifications are now ready for the erection of a costly building for this purpose. The plant will be opened up temporarily in buildings located in South Buford formerly used as warehouses pending the erection and completion of special buildings for the shoe plant.

This firm will make their shoe leather in Buford and the output of shoes will be several hundred pairs daily.

Stricken in Swamp.

Cordele, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—After being stricken with paralysis while walking through a swamp nearly half a mile from his home late yesterday afternoon, B. C. Harrell, a merchant of Arabi, was found over an hour later in a speechless and almost dying condition by an old negro woman. There is serious doubt of his recovery.

SPANISH PRISONER FAKE TRIED ON DUBLIN MAN

Dublin, June 21.—(Special.)—The old Spanish prisoner fake has come out again, this time bobbing up in Dublin. D. S. Brandon, a well known wholesale grocer here, received a few days ago a letter from one Soloviet, who states that he is imprisoned in Madrid, Spain, and beseeches Mr. Brandon to aid in getting him out, as he has a large fortune which he can secure control of as soon as he is out and promises Mr. Brandon $360,000 for the assistance rendered. The letter is dated at Madrid, Spain, March 28.

HEBREW SUNDAY SCHOOL HOLDS A FINE PICNIC

The annual picnic of the Hebrew Sunday school took place last Thursday morning at Grant park. Six hundred children joined in a day of merry frolic, which included fishing, baseball and fotball games.

M. Lichtenstein, the superintendent of the Alliance Sunday school, and M. Sheinbaum, the superintendent of Ahayatzion Sunday school, and able corps of teachers had charge of the games.

Dr. J. T. Loeb, the principal of the Hebrew school, assisted by Dr. L. Holtz and Mr. Freidson, had charge of the festivities from the time the first merrymaker reached the park in the morning until all had departed at twilight. There was no pause in the fun and enjoyment.

Punch and ice cream and cake were served to the children by the ladies of the Hebrew Educational Auxiliary society.

Mrs. Sarah Buchman, Mrs. L. Zion, Mrs. Mollie Hirsowitz, Mrs. Josephs, Mrs. Shurman, Mrs. Kline and Mrs. Silverman aided in caring for the children.

W. & T. ROAD DIRECTORS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Dublin, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—The board of directors of the Wrightsville and Tennille railroad held their semi-annual meeting in Dublin yesterday which was attended by a good portion of the officers, including Vice President W. A. Winburne, of the Central of Georgia railroad.

The semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent was ordered paid, and the affairs of the road gone over carefully. The business of the company is in splendid shape, and the directors were much pleased with the condition of the company. After the meeting Mr. Winburne and officials of the road left for an inspection tour over the southwestern division of the road between Dublin and Eastman.

CORDELE BUSINESS MEN ARE SEEKING E. M. BAIRD

Cordele, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Several business men of Cordele would like to know the whereabouts of E. M. Baird, who came to Cordele several weeks ago from Pitts posing as an insurance agent. A number here are lamenting the loss of various amounts, for which they hold worthless checks. None of them, however, are over $10. Baird was arrested and put in jail here several days ago for like offenses at other places and was released on bond.

Large Mortgage Filed.

Dublin, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—One of the largest mortgages ever filed in the office of teh clerk of the superior court in Laurens county was filed here this week by the Hilton-Dodge Lumber company in the sum of $10,000,000. The mortgage is dated May 1, 1913, and is due on May 1, 1928, having fifteen years to run.

TRUITT TELLS OF S. GEORGIA CROPS

Alf Truitt, of the Ward-Truitt company, has just returned from an automobile trip through southwest Georgia and he is anxious to let everybody know what splendid crop prospects there are in that part of the state. He 'phoned into this office as soon as he got to the city, and said:

"Say, I want you to tell through your columns tomorrow that Alf Truitt is just back from a week's trip through southwest Georgia by automobile, and that the best thing I did on the trip was to look at the crops. I tell you, they are just grand, and I never saw anything like it. They are shipping cantaloupes, melons and peaches now, and then the grain! It is the prettiest you ever saw. Oats are magnificent, wheat looks like the golden west, and cotton—why, it will be the record crop of corn for the last twenty years. The country is going to raise the biggest crop ever, is my firm belief, and I want everybody to know it. The people there are enthusiastic and optimistic, and they said to me, Mr. Truitt, tell the Constitution Firing Line man what you see here, and let him tell everybody that we are expecting to make the biggest and best crop we ever did." So you see, I am telling you what I saw and what they said, and you can do what you like with it."

GEISER MACHINERY GAINS POPULARITY

Line of Good Machinery Grows More Popular Every Week, Says Malsby.

The Malsby Machinery company, in speaking of machinery known as the "Geiser machinery," remarked last week that this line was certainly one that grew more popular every week. This line includes gasoline engines, steam engines, saw mills, threshers, etc., and the malsby company have handled them ever since 1904. In all that time they have never had a complaint, they say, and this is certainly some record.

The Malsby company keeps a heavy stock of these machines on hand and state that they ship them out with a regularity that is astonishing and at the same time the trade shows a steady growth that is the right kind for good business.

A SILK HAT STORY.

C. D. Dickinson Tells a Story of an Early Experience.

C. D. Dickinson, the ever popular and versatile salesman with the Brown, Perryman & Greene company was in a reminiscent mood last Friday. He was found in the third floor of the big hat house on N. Pryor street workin over some gloves which he was getting ready for shipment while resting up from his last big trip.

"I remember," said he, "when I first started out on the road. Believe me, I was proud of myself. Some day I'll tell you what I did on my first trip of all. But I'm thinking now of an experience I had after I had been on the job about six months. The head of the concern I was working for then, was a mighty fine gentleman and he believed in having his salesmen look big just as classy as he knew how. Well, he went up to New York on a trip and came back with some new ideas. One was, that to get the proper appearance of dignity amongst us boys on the road, we should wear silk hats and frock coats. So he went ahead and fitted us all out in this regalia.

I started out bright and early one Monday morning in all the glory of this wonderful apparel. I stepped up to board my train and—wow—my hat! The entrances to the cars in those days were much lower than they are now, and we generally had to stoop. I forgot to. When I picked up my hat from under the wheels of the car and with all the accumulated soot and dust and muddy water of the track on it, the only thing I wanted was the hat box to put it in. After that I always wore an ordinary workaday hat and never got into more trouble."

Al N. Greene interrupted here and said:

"Never got into more trouble? Oh, of course not. Tell about that time you had on that new Waterbury watch—"

"That's about enough from you," broke in Mr. Dickinson. "One story is enough at a time, and, anyway, it wasn't a Waterbury. It was a solid gold, twenty-seven jewel chased cover."

But a customer came in just then and, of course, the story telling had to stop.

SOLD A BIG BILL.

Ragan-Malone Co. Break Their Record for the Year.

Walter C. Barnwell, of the Ragan-Malone company, was feeling exceptionally good this week on account of a bill of goods they had sold in the house during the week.

This order was from a firm which is located many hundreds of miles from Atlanta, and there are at least six wholesale markets much nearer. The fact that Atlanta is getting more and more business from the furthe territories is a big factor of encouragement for the future.

Another fact about this bill which made Mr. Barnwell smile was the fact that it is the largest single bill his firm has sold this year, totalling over $1,500. It was about evenly divided between the dry goods and notion departments, but, which is a little unusual, was a little in favor of the notion part of the house. Another point which tickled Mr. Barnwell is, he is buyer of notions for the house.

Sam Saltzman, with the Hirshberg company, is in for a few days from his North Carolina territory. He will go back Monday.

TURKEYS LESS THAN HENS

McMillan Tells Some Facts About Produce Situation.

W. V. McMillan, proprietor of the McMillan Produce company, told some interesting facts about the present situation in the country produce business the other day.

"There are some of the most peculiar conditions at present existing that I have ever seen in this business," said Mr. McMillan.

"For instance, turkeys are cheaper than hens. They are actually bringing considerably less per pound than hens, and this is one thing I have never before seen or heard of in the business.

"Then look at the potato situation. Why up in Milwaukee the other day five carloads of potatoes were simply dumped. They just had no value at all because there have been so many raised that they have been unable to do anything with them.

"I tell you the situation of the produce business in this country is mighty funny right now and the man who can tell what is going to happen next is a clever fellow."

A VISITING U. C. T. TELLS OF BUSINESS

S. G. King, who is at present in Atlanta representing his firm, the Wells & Richardson company, of Burlington, Vt., writes the following note to The Constitution Firing Line, telling of his business experiences of the past week while in Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., June 21, 1913.

Editor Constitution Firing Line:

Dear Sir—If any there be who are disposed to listen to the "calamity song" that we sometimes hear from the pessimist, I would be glad to furnish herewith a little food for reflection, for it seems to me to be a sufficient dose to cure the malady.

I have spent the past week working the retail drug trade in Atlanta, and my business has been a record-breaker—the largest in volume I have ever had with my house, and I am more than glad to be able to report this fact as showing that the business is here—in Atlanta, in Georgia and in the south. Let's smile and dig for business and it will come. Yours with the smile. S. G. KING.

SALESMAN ADDY GETS GOOD OPENING BILL

Salesman J. Geta Addy, with the M. C. Kiser Shoe company, had the pleasure of placing a dandy opening bill with the trade this week. It totaled $1,500 and it sailed both him and his house. "J. G." is a might good fellow and the steady increase of his trade is gratifying to all his friends. There is nobody more popular on the road than he and he deserves every bit of success he gets.

ATLANTA GETS NEW WHOLESALE FISH CO.

Terry Packing Co. Establishing Plant on Peters Street With Railroad Trackage.

The Terry Packing company, a corporation of South Carolina, doing a wholesale fish and oyster business, with branches at Charleston, Columbia, Augusta, Savannah and connections with fisheries on the coast of New Jersey, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, has opened a wholesale branch in Atlanta.

In order to get trackage and adequate railroad facilities for the prompt dispatch of their perishables, they have leased a two-story structure comprising 12,000 square feet, at 248-256 Peters street. Contractors are already at work fitting solid concrete floors and installing refrigerators capable of storing five carloads of fish and two carloads of oysters. This firm will get their fish in their own refrigerator cars from their fisheries on the coast, by the quickest possible means, hence retailers who heretofore got fish in barrel lots from coast-wise points, will be in position to get fresh supplies from solid refrigerator cars unloaded here. This firm will also distribute a large amount of their receipts by express all through Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and larger western cities, as far as Chicago.

It is stated that dealers in towns like Birmingham, Chattanooga, Montgomery and other cities heretofore paying $3 to $4 per barrel transportation charges for fish in single barrel lots will now be able to get them from Atlanta free, from refrigerator cars not only twenty to thirty hours sooner but at a saving of from $1 to $3 per barrel.

The manager of this enterprise invites all dealers and others interested to inspect their modern and sanitary plant as soon as it is completed. It is said that this will be the most up-to-date and sanitary plant of its kind in the southern states.

Captain Frank S. Terry, the president of the Terry Packing company, has his headquarters in Columbia, S. C., where he has always taken an active interest in civic affairs, being at one time president of the Columbia Chamber of Commerce. The Charleston branch, however, is the original house, and was established by Captain Terry's grand-uncle in 1822, and is the oldest enterprise of its kind in the south, and probably the oldest in this country, having remained exclusively under the management of the Terry family for nearly a century.

W. M. Lesley will be manager of the Georgia Fish company, the name of the Atlanta branch. Mr. Lesley has been for seven years manager of the Columbia branch, and he is also secretary of the mother company. Mr. Lesley is a man of unusual ability, and has had wide experience in the fish-packing industry.

Captain Terry made two visits to Atlanta recently, during which visits he was convinced that Atlanta was a good field for his business, not only locally, but afforded great advantages as a distributing point.

Mr. Lesley expects in a very few years to make this the largest of the Terry Packing company's branches. The moving of this enterprise to Atlanta is due directly to the efforts of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

O. L. JOHNSTON SAYS PROSPECTS ARE GOOD

O. L. Johnston, sales manager of the Carroll & Adams company, shoe manufacturers of Baltimore, has established a sample room at room 520, Candler building, and is working the city trade from there. He has just returned to the city after a trip through middle Georgia, on which, he met with much success.

He reports that prospects for fall business are excellent and that the crops are in very favorable condition. The merchants, says Mr. Johnston, are in a more buoyant condition of mind than they have been for the past sixty days.

GET IT WHILE IT'S HOT

C. S. Harley, the South Carolina salesman for the Consolidated Paper company, was in the house this week. He reports conditions good in the Palmetto State and that he will be back there Monday to continue his big business.

W. H. Haley, the Alabama man for Brown, Perryman & Greene company, was in for a day or two this week. He reports excellent prospects all through his territory and promises big business there this fall.

The M. C. Kiser company report that they are lining up in the expectation of some extra big business this fall and that the crop prospects are such as to justify them in making preparations for a huge trade.

Russell E. Richards, of the S. P. Richards company, has been on his vacation all this week. He is expected back the latter part of the week.

Ward-Truitt company had the pleasure of receiving a nice order from Texas the past week. Not only were they pleased to see that their goods were spreading so far, but the order also carried check with it, and so was particularly welcome.

E. L. Adams, of the E. L. Adams company, spent the week in Cincinnati, Ohio, attending the National Credit Men's association convention. He returns home today.

Percy W. Harris, traveling in South Carolina for the A. M. Robinson company, has had excellent business on his trip. He has been gone about five weeks and while the first one was good, each succeeding week has shown a substantial improvement.

Sales Manager L. B. Robinson, of the A. M. Robinson company, sold a nice bill of 100 dozen shirts in the house yesterday. The buyer was an Atlanta merchant.

The ins this week with the Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company are D. L. Lassiter and J. S. Cheek. The company report good conditions and prospects for fall business improving every week. They state that their business is quite good, but that is nothing unusual because they have both the right merchandise and the right prices.

Manager I. N. Binder, of the Binder Frame Manufacturing company, wants everybody to understand that he is still very much in business. He states that since their fire of a few months ago some people seem to think they have gone out of business. But this is far from the truth, and as a matter of fact they are now doing more business than ever before.

Macon, Ga., June 21.—For the first time this season Macon this afternoon drove McCormick from the box, Morrow relieving him in the fifth inning. The locals smothered Columbus by 12 to 6 and made nineteen hits. The game was featured with Reynolds' home run, triple and single, Martin's four hits, one for a double, Nixon's trio of bingles and Baumgardner's three-bagger. The game was tied three times and the visitors being in the lead twice. Martin supplanted Smith in the second with the game 5 to 2 and gave up only two hits. His work was superb. This places Macon snugly in second place.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 21.—Jacksonville and Albany split even in a double-header. Grover, who was in the points for the home team in the first game, was not in his usual form. In the second contest Walton Cruise, the fast leftfielder of the local club, put the ball over the fence in the first inning for a home run, driving Carroll home ahead of him. Cruise's hit was the longest that has ever been made on Barr's field.

A SUCCESSFUL KEROSENE GASOLINE CARBURETOR

The only Carburetor made and guaranteed to successfully operate, using equal parts kerosene and gasoline in the same tank.

This Air-Friction carburetor, made by the Air-Friction Carburetor Company, of Dayton, Ohio, is the perfect result of scientific experiments which were given the most severe tests possible before being placed on the market.

These carburetors are in daily use and are sold under a money back guarantee to give more mileage per gallon, more power at less cost of fuel than any gasoline carburetor made.

MANY AUTOS OWNED BY INDIAN CHIEFS

Leading Spirits in Thinned Ranks of Red Men Know the Pony No More.

Lo, the poor Indian. The irresistible march of civilization and progress has marked great changes in his life. It has taken from him the bow and arrow, the tomahawk and the rifle of his belligerent days and has replaced them with the hoe and the scythe, badges of the once-hated humdrum existence of the agriculturist. His joyous days of the hunt and the warpath are over.

His pony is gone; relegated to the limbo of things that never return by that engine of modern transportation, the automobile. Instead of sitting, dignified and important, in the councils of his tribe, poor Lo now lines up, meek and subdued, with his fellows at the door of the agency, the medium by which a beneficent government seeks to make reparation for slaying his forefathers and seizing his lands and his source of indolent, care-free livelihood.

That is, historians and fiction writers have thus painted the Indian's present condition. As a matter of fact, the picture is in far more severe colors than the truth warrants. Today there are hundreds of Indians in this country, educated, well-fed, happy and independent. One of the best examples of the adaption of modern facilities and customs by the American Indians is Chief Iron Tail, once the head of a powerful western tribe, whose prolle adorns the new 5-cent piece recently issued by the government.

Chief Iron Tail, with many of his followers, now lives on the big 101 ranch in Oklahoma. He is still a power, not only among his own people, but among the whites of that section. Sober, industrious and ambitious, the famous chief has risen to affluence and prestige and today is as well supplied with this world's goods as any of his paleface neighbors. Nor does he bemoan the passing of the good old days. His faithful pony and his war bonnet have been relinquished without a sigh.

Owns Overland Automobile.

Chief Iron Tail is a very successful farmer and the proud possessor of an Overland automobile, several of which cars are in use in carrying on the business of the great ranch on which he lives. His greatest delight between intervals of looking after his various business interests is to gather a crowd of his redskin neighbors and take them for long rides through the Oklahoma prairie country. He is an expert driver and is never so happy as when sitting at the wheel of his Overland, speeding here and there over the territory he formerly traversed at the head of a war or hunting party of his fellows.

Fighter Dies.

Dayton, O., June 21.—Patrick Grant, aged 20, of this city, who was carried out of the ring unconscious in the seventh round of his 10-round bout with "Kid" Batty last night, died late today without having regained consciousness. There is some dispute as to whether Grant died from the results of a knockout blow or from over exertion and the excessive heat. The fight was Grant's second pugilistic encounter.

WE ARE ANXIOUS

TO BUILD up Virginia avenue into one of the best streets in Atlanta. We want all houses built of brick, stone or stucco. We sold two bricks the past 10 days for $21,500, and we expect to start three more the coming week, one of which will be stone.

THREE VIRGINIA AVENUE LOTS

ACROSS THE street from where we start three houses the coming week, we have three lots that we will sell at a close price, and to people who will build along with us. We will give them free of charge all their rock for the foundation, also rock for the entire house. If brick is preferred, we will give them absolutely free all the brick that goes in the house, be it 5-room or 14-room.

VIRGINIA AVENUE LOTS

ONE OF the lots above referred to is 50x190 feet, and is perfect, about 4-feet elevation, opposite a brick that sold for $10,500. The price is as low as you can find in the whole section.

VIRGINIA AVENUE LOT

THE OTHER lot is 120x252 feet and narrows down in the rear. Just across the street from the Adair home. It's a perfect corner lot; go out and see it, corner of Highland avenue, Virginia avenue and the Todd Road. The stone and brick cost you nothing—not a penny, but you must build at once.

THE PROPOSITION IS GOOD

WE CAN best explain why we are willing to give the brick and stone free of charge when you call in to see us. You will readily understand why we can afford to do it and what it is done for. We, of course, will have to pass on your plans and you will have to start building with us. It means the building up of a most beautiful resident section, with houses that will be a credit to any part of the city.

THIS PROPOSITION GOOD

FOR THREE LOTS ONLY, as we already control most every other lot on this big 60-foot street. We have water, sewer, sidewalks and lights, and will have gas by the time your house is finished, also have the street in perfect order.

WE HAVE THREE LOTS

ON VIRGINIA AVENUE, each 100x200 feet. We will be glad to figure on building you a home on one of these beautiful elevated lots. See sale cards.

GIRL MYSTIFIES DOCTORS WITH HER SECOND SIGHT DURING PSYCHIC SPELLS

By D. G. Bickers.

Athens, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—The region of the state round about Farmington and Wraysswood, on the line of Oconee and Greene counties, is in a fever of excitement over mysterious physic manifestations which have been occurring for the past few weeks and scientific discoveries based on these strange phenomena—the interest centering with an intensity that is unusual about a young girl, Sue May Burgess, the 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Burgess, who have lived for seven years on the farm of Messrs. W. G and F. E. Griffeth, of this place, but who now live on the Wray plantation.

In catalepitic attacks the girl's physical condition is that of one in the advanced stages of hypnotism—unconscious so far as recollecting her actions after becoming normal, her body rigid and lacking in sensation; her eyes fixed and glassy; her limbs and organs useless except for the slight use of her tongue and lips in whispered speech.

Remarkable Mental Phenomena.

The mental phenomena which attend these attacks are more remarkable—second sight and mind reading being developed to an uncanny and startling degree.

The case is puzzling the professors of the state institutions here who have heard of the strange doings, and it has been the problem for the physicians of that section—especially Dr. H. M. Harrell, who lives within a mile of the Burgess home and has been attending the girl for several weeks. It is said that, becoming ill, a weed decoction was prescribed by some old woman, and the use of the remedy produced worse results than the affection from which the child—for she is scarcely more than a child—was suffering. Her father states, also, that her condition physically was made worse by a slight fall she had three or four weeks ago—while jumping across a narrow ditch she fell, and complained of feeling something inside her in the region of her heart tear loose, paining her acutely. Since that fall she has had attacks so frequently that doctors who have not seen her declare she cannot survive many more. An account has been kept by the family for a little more than three weeks, and she has had 121 attacks—sometimes several in a day.

Predicts Time of Spells.

After the first few attacks she began to be able to predict the time of future "spells." Tuesday last, the 17th, she had two attacks, and during the last one she told her mother that on Thursday following, between the hours of 2 and 3, she would have another attack, and that it would be of ten minutes' duration, and that she would be quite faint and sick after it. She prophesied, further, that she would have another slighter attack Thursday night. The two attacks came upon her just as she had foretold, and at the times specified definitely.

While in the hold of the spell she is rigid in body, and her family stated that they believed that her arm or finger would be broken before it would bend while in that state. More than once in the past ten days she has fallen on the floor of the home, and her father and brother have lifted her like a log, one with a hand under her head and the other with a hand under her feet.

She can whisper, however, while in this trance, and has been able to tell her family how the spell might be broken.

Once she asked her mother to mark a cross over her heart, and upon compliance she became as relaxed and limber as a person only asleep. Again she gave strange, ludicrous instructions. She had her brother to press one toe—and immediately was relieved except for a dizziness and nausea. Another time she sent her father 2 miles to the home of Mathew Bonds and woke up his 17-year-old son, Jerre, had him accompany the brother to the Burgess home, and it was only after the neighboring boy pressed his thumb to her right temple that she came out of the rigid condition of catalepsy.

She does not recall in the interims what she has said or what she had caused to be done when in a "spell." But she recollects in another attack things which occurred in former attacks. She wrote two or three pieces of writing Tuesday last in a perfectly legible and sensible manner, at the dictation of her brother, with her eyes fixed on space in an entirely different direction from the paper and pencil she was employing—and went back over the lines to dot every "i" and cross every "t" in exact position. When she was over the attack she had forgotten that she wrote a line at all.

Sends to Graveyard.

But the most wonderful thing yet was Saturday of last week, when in a trance she made her brother promise that he would follow her instructions in a stranger request—one more unreasonable than any she had ever made. She asked him to go to the grave on the Griffeth plantation, near the home of the superintendent, Mathew Bonds, and she told him that there he would find the rock wall inclosing the graveyard broken open in one place; that he should enter, and in the northeast corner he would find a stone; underneath the stone he would find a locust tree root which possessed the strange quality of shining like gold, day or night. He was to bring the root to the doctor, who would make a decoction from it to cure her ailments of mind and body.

Couldn't Be Deceived.

The brother obeyed partially. The grave is that of a former governor of the state of Georgia—Peter Early, whose father owned that great estate in Greene county and lived upon it like a lord of the old country. Governor Early's body—with one other person—is buried in sight of the old "Early Manor." The headstone is a simple one, the walls are left surrounding the little plot, except on one side. The lad found all as the sister had predicted—only not seeing any rock but the whole had fallen off the wall. He hastily pulled out of the top of the ground nearby a piece of the root of a young locust and started back to the house. In her next "spell" she upbraided her brother for not following instructions, and told him that the root he brought back was not the one with the mysterious "power to shine like gold." The physician, Dr. Harrell, noted the strange request and, though he had no superstitions and no faith in the uncanny goings-on, his curiosity was aroused, and he went himself—both to satisfy his own doubts and to do what might quiet and gratify his strange patient. He was embarrassed about the quest in the graveyard, and asked Mr. Bonds, the superintendent, to accompany him—but Bonds was busy, and the doctor went at the task with only a young lad with him. In the northeast corner of the 21-foot stone inclosure, under the trash of decades, he found a stone which was a part of the foundation of the wall—a stone which had not been touched or disturbed in about eighty-five years. Six inches under the stone he hit a great locust tree root as big as a man's arm, piercing down into the earth for probably ten or twelve feet, judging from the size of the root near the surface.

The physician put the piece of root he had dug out—2 feet long and as thick as his wrist—into the body of the buggy and made his rounds of patients Thursday. Thursday night Mathew Bonds—the superintendent on the plantation upon which the Peter Early grave is located—drove over to the doctor's to see, indeed, if the locust root dug up possessed any unusual qualities. The doctor went to the buggy-house and was startled to observe, when he lifted the hood of the buggy, that there was a soft light filling the dark body. Suspicious that his imagination or eyes were playing the trick, he took out the piece of wood, and as he advanced toward Bonds the latter exclaimed:

"What's that shining in your hand?"

The root is of light weight, white wood, the texture seemingly coarse. It is not like the ordinary "punk" or "fox-fire," which is common and which shines from a superficial amount of phosphorous upon it while the wood or punk is damp—like the glow of a wet match in the dark. This wood, when perfectly dry, retains the glowing quality. Friday night the writer saw a piece of the root—a chip 4 inches square and an inch or more thick—which, held in the dark, glowed with such light that one could read a large print by it if the paper were held in a few inches of the chip. The luminous chip seemed, also, transparent in the dark. Professors in the institutions here declare that they have seen phosphorus woods, but never quite the kind this chip exemplifies.

How Did She Know?

But, while the glow of the mysterious wood can be most rationally and plausibly be explained by this simple if very unusual manner, there is no explanation from the physician, the psychologist or the psychist to tell how the girl knew that underneath the stone not touched in nearly a century there was a particular variety of tree root; that the root possessed the strange illumination quality. The doctors and the scientific men are making a study of the case in many ways. The countryside is literally "on its ear" in the tense excitement which the supernatural revelations have produced. Business men from Athens yesterday made automobile trips to the place to see the girl and to obtain portions of the root of the tree; they brought back pieces of the wood last night. Professor D. E. Earnest will spend today on the scene of the happenings, and is armed with camera as well as notebook to take a record of all authentic data obtainable. Dr. Harrell has kept a faithful record of all the case. Whatever it holds in mystery and interest will be studied—if not solved.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS HOLDING SESSIONS AT MILLEDGEVILLE

Milledgeville, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—The Enworth league of the North Georgia conference is in session here now. The meeting began Thursday night and will last through Sunday. Important business sessions were held on Friday and Saturday under the direction of Rev. W. M. Barnett, president, and Professor Wilbur Colvin, vice president.

On Friday evening the league was addressed by Dr. John S. Parker, of Nashville, Tenn., who is general secretary of the Epworth league department of the Methodist church. Dr. Parker's subject was "Art as Related to Religion," which he treated in such an eloquent and forceful manner as to leave a lasting impression for good on his audience.

On Saturday morning the conference was addressed by Dr. John S. Jenkins, of Atlanta.

Dr. Charles O. Jones, of Atlanta, will preach the annual sermon tomorrow morning.

NEGRO IS ARRESTED AS THE ASSAILANT OF SYLVESTER GIRL

Waycross, Ga., June 21.—(Special.) Arthur Williams, colored, believed to be the negro wanted at Sylvester for an attempted assault on a prominent young woman Thursday night, was placed in jail here today and will be held pending the arrival of officers from Sylvester. He denies that he has been to Sylvester, claiming to have worked in Ware county.

He was caught at Hoboken, southeast of the city, by J. W. Larkin. He tallies closely to the description given of the negro wanted at Sylvester. It is reported that feeling is high against him and in the event he is taken to Sylvester officers anticipate trouble.

When a fellow asks for a girl's hand he seems to forget that she may develop cold feet.

It takes two to make a quarrel. Where there's a will there's a won't.

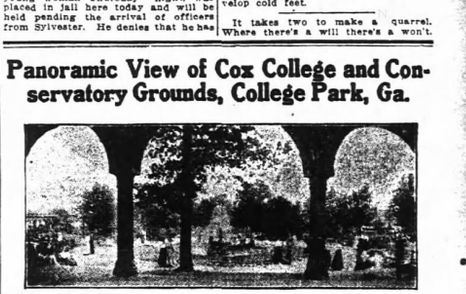
HIGH SCHOOL STUDIES AND 6th, 7th and 8th GRADE STUDIES

Geometric Drawing, Freehand Drawing, Typewriter (Touch System), Penmanship (Palmer Method), Arithmetic (Practical), Reading, Grammar, Spelling, Composition, Letter Writing.

This is not coaching for deficiencies. It is for greater mastery. It is to redeem otherwise idle hours. (Many boys were the summer drivers). The studies are all utilitarian. Tuition for six weeks, $10.00. Hours, 9 to 12, on school days. July 1 to August 9.

Panoramic View of Cox College and Conservatory Grounds, College Park, Ga.



For beauty and variety of interest, the campus of Cox College cannot be excelled. Rare imported shrubs and blossoms from every clime and of every season are represented in this miniature reproduction of the flora of the globe. Arctic pines and spruces are but a short distance from tropical vines and brilliant beds of color. Quaint and artistic effects are found in this wonderful bit of landscape gardening, where terraces, fountains, pavilion, and rose arbors vie with each other in charm and attraction.

Beautiful to the eye, Cox College campus is of even greater interest to the botanist, for in this small compass may be found specimens that must heretofore be gathered with difficulty from the four quarters of the earth. A complete herbarium may be provided from the campus alone.

Too much stress cannot be placed on the importance of beautiful environment in the formative years of a young woman's education. To the art student there is never failing inspiration; to every one who enters its bounds, there is an uplift, a refinement, and a powerful, though silent appeal for the best and beautiful things of life.

Cox College offers literary work on the highest plane. The Academy affords ample preparation for the college courses which require 15 units for entrance.

With its laboratories, mounted telescope, museum, library and other accessories, Cox College offers superior advantages in College as well as in Conservatory, where many pianos, pipe organs, orchestral instruments and a commodious and elegant concert hall greatly facilitate the work.

At Cox College Conservatory every branch of music is in charge of a specialist and for years the institution has stood forth as the leading school of music in the South.

VACATION

Riverside is located on the bank of the Chattahoochee River, as it winds its way "out of the hills of Habersham, down thru the valleys of Hall," and is in the foothills of the Appalachian Mountains. Just outside of Gainesville, but connected by trolley, it has a combination of advantages to offer which has won for

RIVERSIDE NAVAL ACADEMY

Water and mountains afford opportunity for aquatic and woodland sports, the cleanest, healthiest exercise possible, and that which instills in each boy that courage, agility, strength and determination which mould the character of after years.

Out-of-door sanitary camp life furnishes one of the chief claims of Riverside Naval Academy. Out in the open, they are drilled, and slept; but there are also ample accommodations in the magnificently equipped military dormitories for those preferring barrack life.

Summer and swimming are synonymous to every boy, whether it be the "old swimmin' hole," or the bosom of the broad Atlantic. At Riverside, every boy is taught to swim. A graduate naval instructor is in charge of all aquatic sports, which include all swimming strokes, plain and fancy diving, life saving drills, rowing, sailing and motor boat driving. Lake Warner forms a splendid body of water, free from treacherous currents and eddies. Constant water patrol robs the aquatic sports of all danger. In addition to the aquatic diversions, there are lawn tennis courts, a baseball diamond with class and company teams, horseback riding, trap shooting and mountain climbing. Life in dry floored and water proofed tents is one of the healthful and picturesque features of this school. Riverside's perfectly equipped dining hall is daily supplied with North Georgia's famous fruits, vegetables and fowls.

All play and no work is a vacation wasted. At Riverside mental progress keeps pace with physical development. The faculty works out a course of study which makes up those deficiencies the boys are anxious to overcome before re-entering school in the fall. It also makes advanced standing possible, thus assuring earlier graduation.

He will be better off, mentally and physically, for a Summer spent at Riverside, under careful physical and mental supervision, free from idleness and out in the open. Summer course of eight weeks including naval instruction and class work, $100; uniforms, $20. No extras. Summer session begins June 28.

GET IT WHILE IT'S HOT

V. M. Hyatt, who travels in northeast Georgia for John Silvey & Co., has been off the job for a few days the past week on account of sickness. Mr. Hyatt is recovering rapidly, however, and was seen out with a customer last Friday.

T. B. Lewis, with the Capital City Tobacco company, is at present in Columbus, Ohio, attending the U. C. T. convention there. W. B. Carlton, of the company, is making his trip in north Georgia for him this week.

B. A. Hancock, of the Dixie Pickle and Preserving company, was found happy last Friday. The reason was a telephone message he had just received announcing the arrival in the city of a carload of pails for pickles, which they had been needing badly.

Max Samuels, with the Hirshberg company, came in Thursday for a few days from his Tennessee territory. He has been attending a few ball games, but says he will be back on the job Monday despite the hot weather.

T. J. Munroe, of the Consolidated Paper company, has spent the whole of the week in New York on business. He returns to the city today.

W. F. Spalding, of the Gramling-Spalding company, leaves this week for a trip to Boston to buy fall goods. The company reports a steady increase in the demand for Premium Brand shoes.

The following are the ins with the A. M. Robinson company this week. They all report conditions good and are very optimistic over business prospects: W. S. Jones, Claude Smith, Joe White and J. L. Huson.

G. B. McDowell, of the E. L. Adams company, returned to his desk last Monday after a coupe of weeks in Indian Springs. Mr. McDowell states that he is feeling much better and can recommend Indian Springs to all seeking recuperation.

Mack Hirshberg, the junior of the Hirshberg company, is now in Florida. He is on his first trip and the steady improvement in his business has been highly gratifying to his father, President Hirshberg.

C. C. Phillips, the south Georgia man for the Capital City Tobacco company, is at present at his home in North Carolina for his vacation.

Ed Montag, of Montag Brothers, came in Saturday from his Mississippi territory and will stay here for several weeks. S. F. Hein also came in from Florida for a few weeks.

In The Trenches

Doc Westbrook, of the E. L. Adams company, has been sick all the past week. He should really of been at home, but persisted in coming down and trying to work every day with the result that he has shown up every morning and had to go back every afternoon.

The Dougherty-Little-Redwine company start to move into their temporary quarters on South Pryor street tomorrow. They will occupy the old Anderson Hardware company's place until their new building at 90 South Pryor is completed.

R. L. Ezell, bookkeeper for the Gramling-Spalding company, returns today from New York, where he has been on a two weeks' vacation.

C. F. Holt, salesman for the Dixie Pickle and Preserving company, has been working the city trade all the past week. He has had good business worth while in all of these—thoroughness.

Manager Lynn Fort, of the Lamar & Rankin Drug company, was back on the job last Monday after his attack of typhoid fever. Mr. Fort is looking better than was to be expected and everybody is mighty glad to see him back on the job.

J. W. Hudson, traveling east Georgia for the Lamar & Rankin Drug company, had a splendid month in May. Despite several poor conditions he had to work under, he showed a big increase over the same territory for May, 1912.

Al Truitt, of the Ward-Truitt company, has been away on his vacation the past week. Nevertheless the firm received a telegram from him on Friday announcing a nice bill of goods he had sold on the side.

SOME DOINGS OF THE BOYS IN ATHENS

By Sam Woods.

J. R. Moor, special representative for the Universal Roofing company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, spent several days here calling on the trade.

J. C. Stinbeck, salesman for the Atlanta Leather company, was here Thursday after business.

T. F. Holliday, a salesman selling business magazines for the Sheldon company and making headquarters in Atlanta, was in Athens this week.

Salesmen T. N. Lide and L. J. Gaston, both representing the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, were here Tuesday and Wednesday.

A. H. Sikes, sales manager of the Athens Railway and Electric company, will return to Athens Monday from a business trip east.

Salesmen S. D. Brobston and G. C. Burroughs, of the John Deere Plow company, of Atlanta, passed through Athens on a trip to middle Georgia.

Talmadge Brothers Grocery company called in their entire force of salesmen the latter part of last week and with their office squad and others made merry over a big Georgia barbecue. A photographer was on the job and some excellent photographs were made both of the sales and office force.

D. L. Barnwell, salesman for the Remington Typewriter company, was here Thursday.

Ike Murry, of the Calloway Grocery company, reported good business this week.

J. T. Dudley, of the Georgia Mattress company, had good business the past month.

J. J. Ely, of the Dixie Pickle and Preserving company, of Atlanta, came in Friday over Sunday.

D. J. Revier, traveling salesman for the Jacob Dold company, of Atlanta, and making headquarters in Athens, blew in Thursday.

Claud Cox, salesman for the new Webb & Crawford company, came in Friday night.

Tat Mygatt, Joe Wilson, Charles Elder, Ben Thornton, John Kelly and Frank Thornton, salesmen for Talmadge Brothers company, all come in last night.

R. H. Bickerstaff, salesman for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company, of Winston-Salem, besides calling on the trade the past week made some very attractive displays in various local windows.

L. O. White, salesman for Rosanoff & Well Clothing company, of Chicago, was here Friday.

"Bill Smith," of the American Snuff company, worked the trade through local jobbers last week.

Ed S. Harrison, with the S. P. Richard company, blew in for a few minutes on Friday, but went right out again. He said trade was too good for him to miss any of it.

L. E. Meredith, with the Ward-Truitt company, came in Saturday morning and was still very optimistic over prospects and conditions all through his territory.

Snakes in His Pockets.

Concerning Louis Agassiz, naturalist, when a professor at Harvard, this story is told by James Kendall Hosmer in his "The Last Leaf": "As he strode homeward from his walks in the outer fields or marshes, we eyed him gingerly, for who could tell what he might have in his pockets? Turtles, tadpoles, snakes, any old monster might be there. He as on the friendliest terms with things ill reputed, even adhorrent, and could not understand the qualms of the delicate. He was said to have held up once in all innocence before a class of schoolgirls a wriggling snake. The shrieks and confusion brought him to a sense of what he had done. He apologized elaborately, the foreign peculiarity he never lost running through his contusion. 'Poor girls, I will not do it again. Next time I will bring in a nice, clean leetle feesh.' Agassiz took no pleasure in shocking his class; on the contrary he was most anxious to engage and hold them."

WHAT THE WILD WAVES ARE SAYING

PERSONALITY.

The man who would succeed in the business world must retain his personality.

***

A machine is useful, but he who loses his personality becomes a machine only, and men are supposed to be better than any machine.

***

The man who would forke ahead in the game must develop his personality with knowledge. He will then become known as a personality with an associated value.

***

The reason that the biggest men are born as such is because their personalities stand out and are known to represent the best knowledge of a particular line of work.

***

If you are selling pianos, you should study pianos and make people associate your name with a perfect knowledge of pianos, as far as lies within your power.

***

Knowledge is the developer of personality and only in so far as your knowledge is of use to the world will your personality stand out above the crowd as that of a man who is worth while and who is remembered in the minds of the people who count as one of them.

***

Change of subject. When a man opens an account with a wholesale house, he should understand that they expect him to pay his accounts as they fall due. Every time an account comes dues they should demand some form of settlement. If it is impossible in cash then let it be by note, but every time, see that there is some settlement.

***

See the story of N. K. Smith under the head of Rifle Shots, today. It is timely and important and every business man in Georgia should take note of the warning and heed the advice to push for the desired legislation.

***

It is a marvelous age in which we live. The audiences at the Grand theater this past week have seen a spectacle such as no others since the days of Nero have witnessed. The reproduction of "Quo Vadis" in pictures was so marvelous and true to life, that the spectator forgot that he lived in 1912 and was carried back to the earliest period in Christian Era. A better understanding of the strength of Christianity and a fuller sympathy with all mankind results. Also a stronger conviction that this old world is growing better.

Thoroughness.

Momentum properly directed will drive a tallow candle through an inch plank.

Thoroughness in a man's work will do even greater wonders than this, and is doing them every day.

The man in demand in every line of business is the man who is "all there."

Employers pay too dearly for half a man, even at half price.

For it isn't a man's time at his work that counts so much as his enthusiasm in it. The enthusiasm is the best half of the man. Enthusiasm is to a man what steam is to an engine. Neither will go without it.

Education, training, talents, are all good to have. But there is one thing better, because it embraces all that is

T. P. A. JOTTINGS

By W. M. JENKINS,
State Press Cehairman, Georgia T. P. A.

The Travelers' Protective association in National conventional at Richmond, Va., June 9-14, was well cared for and all the delegates had a good time.

The writer appreciates this telegram: "Georgia delegation deeply deplores your absence. Best wishes for speedy recovery. Jesse W. Bates, president."

What a big day and a fine day for this country when the Panama canal is opened for the traffic of the world and the protection of our country.

The Suez canal was capitalized in 1856 at $40,000,000, at $100 per share. The khedive of Egypt owned 176,000 shares worth $17,600,000. These shares were sold in 1875 to the British government for $20,000,000. In 1913 these same shares were worth $220,000,000—a gain of more than 1,000 per cent in 38 years.

Our faces may not be as fresh and rosy as they once were. What's the difference, since all T. P. A.'s are in love with nature? Also our fellowmen, sunshine, the blossoms and the sweet girl graduates who now adorn the spring park and all other places of amusement. Sweet memories of other days float down the aisles of long forgotten days when we lingered with hopeful, happy spirits under the shade of the old oak tree with the one we loved best, and caught the fragrance on the breezes. The world was beautiful, and is yet—always sweet and fair and good to those who are daily accustomed to using life well.

For recuperation and rest go to White Springs, Fla., and stop at the Edgewood hotel. Everything is modern and up-to-date. My friend, J. T. Roberts, owner and proprietor, with his estimable wife, never fail to win the heart of every guest. Hotel near the springs, with ample grounds and large oaks. Squirrels come and play right around the door.

Remember that Hon. J. H. Andrews, our secretary, will be pleased to answer all questions about that good policy we write for $11 a year. His address is fifth floor, Austell building, Atlanta, Ga.

We are with Brother Shackelford in all he says for the hotel inspector. We trust the legislature will listen to our most earnest appeal and Mr. Shackelford or Mr. Shirley be appointed for the place.

Edison says his life motto has been "This one thing I know—electricty." Confining himself to this one thing, he has taken out a thousand patents, while millions of men, knowing a little of everything and not much of anything, accomplish next to nothing. Success in any line is the mastery of the single thing in hand.

The history of nearly every successful man may be summed up in the one phrase—he did one thing thoroughly.

The secret of mechanical, commercial, financial or any other pre-eminence is disclosed in one word—thoroughness.

The thorough man need never fear to lose his job. His work is his own, a part of himself. His employer is far more afraid of losing him than he is of losing his job.

Education may shine now and then, but thoroughness glows steadily always. Special training may make fine spurts ahead, but thoroughness is the winning tortoise in the fabled race. Talent may dazzle at times, but thoroughness may be depended upon all the time.

The thorough men are the solid foundation stones of any big business. The listless, time-serving, clock-watching ones are poor material even for the lightest superstructure.

Thoroughness can't be attained by sticking a ramrod through the vertebrae. The right kind of backbone stiffening comes of stretching from above.

Love of one's work can be developed by earnest application to it and mastery of it.

He who loves his work will be thorough in it. He loves it not for what he can get out of it, but for what he can put into it. His incentive to work is not the mere animal need of subsistence, but the human impulse to excel, to develop himself and to be of real servite to mankind.

Here is one of the lines that divide the human from the animal.—Charles Grant Miller, in The Business Philosophies.

JACKSON'S MARGIN FOURTEEN POINTS

"Shoeless Joe" Tops "Terrible Tyrus"—"Texas Tris" in Third Place—Eddie Collins Best Run-Getter.

Joe Jackson leads Ty Cobb, in the race for the batting honors in the American league, by 14 points, with Tris Speaker in third place now, the latter having climbed past Eddie Collins by great hitting during the past week.

Jackson has made the most number of hits this season, having bingled safely eighty-six times. Speaker, with seventy-five, and Collins, with seventy-four, are right behind him.

Collins is still the leading run-getter, having crossed the pan fifty-one times to date. Jackson is next with forty-eight, and Baker, of the Athletics, is third with forty-six.

Here are the players who have batted .255 or better and who have participated in fifteen or more games, including those played Wednesday, June 18.

These figures are compiled by George L. Moreland, the famous Pittsburg statistician.

Showing 'Em Where He Hit His Home Run

The Constitution's staff photographer slipped up on these boys when they were sprawled out on the ground while the Atlanta team was at bat. Harry Welchonce is showing Captain Alperman where he hit the ball when he sailed it out for a home run in the game with Birmingham Saturday. Whitey claims that Welchonce is wrong, and is showing him where he believes he hit it. Conzelman, on the extreme left, and Wallop Smith, on the extreme right, both are looking at them like they doubted the statements of both men.

The Old Time Fan Discusses the Southern League Race

By Charles A. Lamar.

The race in the Southern league is a strenuous proposition at this stage of the conflict, and Mr. B. Smith and his Cracker clan are going strong in all departments of the game.

The pitchers are rapidly coming around, and when they get good and right there'll be trouble a plenty for a lot of folks before September heaves in sight.

The team is a bear in attack and in defensive play it's no slouch. Coolman's defeat of Nashville in thirteen innings was a notable pitching achievement, because he stood to his guns and won out after he had been repeatedly put in a hole by the caving in of the support behind him.

He has the smoke and, what's more, he's as game as a sparrow hawk. The gloomier the outlook the harder he works, and that's the spirit required to win games. Any lobster can pitch when the bases are empty, but when they are loaded, why, that's something else already. Yes?

Locals in Fight.

Don't get agitated about the chances of the Crackers, they are in the fight from end to end—you can bet on that, with a cinch you can't lose.

Sir Micky Finn is a foxy Gazabo and you'll have to convey it to him. He's on the job all the way and as cool as the time-honored cucumber.

He has signed Carl Lundgren, who pitched for the Cubs a part of the season of 1908. At that time he was a powerful man, young, ambitious and speedy.

He had everything, including speed to burn green hickory and an assortment of curves that would keep a stenfograph specialist figuring all night, but he was as wild as a March hare in a cyclone and couldn't locate the plate with a field glass.

But, oddly enough, when on dress parade he could stick 'em over with the speed and accuracy of a rifle shot and I'm sure you are.

John Kling, the great Cub catcher, was strong for Carl, but Chance had his doubts. But he told Kling to go the limit and get results if he could.

Lundgren Wild.

Well, Kling worked with Lundgren like a truck horse. But no use. He was there with the tonsora in practice, but when he faced the blokes from hostile shores, he invariably got hooked up wrong and curled up like a pin feather on a hot stove.

He had a strangle hold on the art of steering the ball away from the plate that would make Wild Willie Donovan and Cy Seymour look like a brace of pikers who had been touched for their meal tickets.

The crisis came after Kling had gone through an arduous afternoon behind the plate, jumping from spot to spot in hopeless efforts to stab wild pitches like a wild cat striking for cat fish in the atmospheric gloom of the Ocmulgee swamp.

After the game—so-called—Chance approached Kling on the bench, and, with considerable dignity, not to say sangfroid, murmured:

"Say, John, what's the matter with Lundgren?"

"Well," replied Kling, "there's a little too much the matter. I'm all in and dead on my feet. Ring for the ambulance and let it go at that."

No there was nothing to it but the seltzer bottle for Carl and a through ticket to the tall and uncut, to see the grasshoppers make grass, while the seeing was good.

Such are the exigencies of the baseball business, for the twirlers or slabbers, or pitchers or flingers, as the case may be, susceptible to the doubles, wabbles and the inability to throw where they aim.

It may be said in passing that if Lundgren has not gone back and can acquire control, he ought to be a tower of strength to the Gulls.

Doyle's Trick.

Some time ago Larry Doyle, the Giants' second baseman, turned an unfair trick on an opposing pitcher with the aid of a so-called trainer and the inability of the umpire to see through a ladder. He claimed to have been struck on the ankle and got away with it without turning an eyelash.

He paraded to first and subsequently scored. McGraw asked him if his ankle was very much hurt and he said: "It didn't hit my ankle, but the bat." Whereupon McGraw ejaculated, "You are an actor, not a ball player." Now, gents, what do you know about that?

Well, he may be an actor among ball players, but he's a ball player among actors, and you can lay to that. Taking an unfair advantage of an opponent is a sorry role for a sportsman to assume. Bum stuff to throw into people who love baseball as a sport and not as a system of trickery.

But "people who like that sort of thing, why, that's the sort of thing they like," as Mr. Lincoln was wont to observe in the misty past. My idea of the last word in four-flushing is syndicate stuff by a ball player. What's yours?

The "Hon." Kid Elberfeld is setting a fast clip with his Chattanooga team. He's a fine ball player and an aggressive manager. It will take some tall hustling to stop the Kid when he gets started. He's nothing if not a fighter.

The Early Bird.

(A back yard lyric, by Billy Smith.)

Yes, dear pals, I'm the early bird,
And now that peace controls;
I'll not let other birds catch worms
And leave me watching holes.

I did that once and got the hook,
I'll go for all that squims;
Because I know and that D—d well—
There are more birds than worms.

Crackers' Daily Hitting.

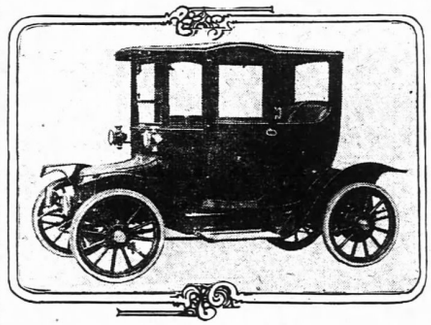
CHICAGO ELECTRIC AGENCY ESTABLISHED IN ATLATNA



Model 131 Chicago Electric.

That electric driven vehicles are becoming the vogue in Atlanta can be vouched for by R. Y. Sanders, who was made Atlanta distributor for the Chicago Electric—a new car to enter the local field, but which has been on the market for several years.

Mr. Sanders claims that Atlanta's women folk are demanding a car that can be driven by a woman herself, even when she is all dressed up—to go either shopping, to the theater, ball or house party—the electric is essentially a "lady's car," in its simplicity in operation and is always ready, and that is why Atlanta's women are demanding the electric-driven motor car in preference to the gasoline car.

JEROME TRAVERS MAINTAINS CLIP

Metropolitan and National Golf Champion Wins Invitation Tournament on Apawamis Course.

New York, June 21.—Jerome D. Travers, of Upper Montclair, N. J., National, Metropolitan and New Jersey state golf champion, won the final match of the invitation tournament over the links of the Apawamis Golf club, Rye, N. Y., by 2 up and 1, from T. V. Bermingham, of Wykagyl, today. The bye-hole was played out giving 70 to Travers against 72 for the runner-up.

In the qualifing round last Thursday in which there were over 100 competitors, Travers won the medal with a total of 148 for 36 holes.

CAN'T WEAR OUT THIS VETERAN CAR

After five years of conscientious effort by the expert drivers of factory and branches, the Studebaker organization has finally given up the attempt to wear out the famous old "Bullet" Studebake "30." Sales Manager Benson has accordingly given the car outright to Harry Cohen, Studebaker dealer in Macon, Ga., who, as an employee of the Atlanta Studebaker branch, won the racing championship of the south in this venerable automobile.

Mr. Cohen has promised to continue the experiment, keeping the Studebaker engineering department in close touch with the results.

"Bullet" is the car which for years has attracted general attention, due to its use in a longevity experiment of vital interest to every motorist, present or prospective. During this process picked drivers kept the car in almost continual motion about the country, visiting branches, dealers and automobile shows.

The car was the ninth in the long Studebaker "30" series and the first shipped south of the Dixie line. Its early work was done at Atlanta, where access was easy to the 2-mile speedway, then in general use. Many thousands of miles "Bullet" covered at high speeds on this course, both in practice runs and in many a successful racing campaign. In the car's later work it has been as far west as Kansas City and as far south as Florida.

"Bullet's" record now exceeds 170,000 miles. While this total is probably surpassed by several other Studebaker cars, the definite and unquestioned data on "Bullet's" performance make the car a unique figure in American motordom.

Authorities agree that 5,000 miles is a liberal estimate of the average distance a car will be asked to cover each year. Figured on such a basis, this Studebaker car is nearly 34 years old. Up to the present not even a touch of fresh paint has been applied to "Bullet's" battle-scarred exterior, which still shows traces of the original red in which the earliest cars of this model were finished.

Inside the Studebaker organization this gallant veteran has come to own a veritable personality. That the car has, after all its travels, been returned to the driver of its youth, to travel once more the red roads of Georgia, is considered a happy chapter in its eventful history.

CRIMSON'S NINE EMULATES CREWS

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 21.—Harvard defeated Yale in the deciding game of their championship baseball series at Ebbets field by 6 to 5 today and thus reigns supreme in both land and water competitions between the two universities.

Bad pitching and loose fielding swung the pendulum first one way and then the other. Five pitchers were sent into the fray, Harvard using two and Yale three. The steadiness of Hitchcock was perhaps the most important single factor in the Crimson victory.

Felton and Gile began the box work, the former being taken out in the fifth when, with one out, three Yale batsmen singled in a row. Hitchcock relieved him with a man on second and one out, but retired the side. He hit the first batter up in the sixth and the runner eventually scored on a sacrifice and a single by Hunter. After that Yale was held safe.

Gile weathered the storm until the seventh, when a single by Ayres and two passes filled the bases with one out. Brown then passed the next batter, forcing Ayres home and Young's single to right brought in the other two. Brown opened the eighth with a pass and was relieved by Scott, who retired the next six men in order.

Harvard's trio of runs in the second were scored on Tomes' scratch hit, Reilly's wild throw on Young's hard drive, a pass to Alsop and Ayres' timely double.

Felton in the third passed the first two batters. Blossom forced Hunter at third, but Phillips' fumble of Schofield's grounder scored Middlebrook. Riddell's double sent Blossom home. Middlebrook, Blossom and Schofield singled in succession in the fifth, two runs scoring.

Score by innings:

Harvard	030 000 300	6	2
Yale	002 021 000	5	2

Batteries: Felton, Hitchcock and Young; Gile, Brown, Scott and Burdett and Hunter. Time, 2:20. Umpires, Kelly and Steinberg.

FEDERAL TIRES

Known everywhere as the tires of extra service—increased mileage — decreased tire expense — satisfaction.

ELYEA-AUSTELL CO., Distributors
35 North Pryor Street, Atlanta.

No-Rim-Cut Tires 10% Oversize

Don't Pay a Higher Price

Since our 11 per cent reduction, numerous tires cost users more than Goodyears.

That's a unique condition.

No-Rim-Cut tires used to cost one-fifth more than others. Yet they never were made better than today.

The Utmost

Bear in mind that, for years and years, No-Rim-Cut tires have been the high-price tires.

Nobody claimed to make tires that were better. But other standard tires cost less.

Yet No-Rim-Cut tires came to outsell all others, because of their proved economies. They saved their extra cost to users, two or three times over.

The demand for these tires doubled over and over, until last year's sales by far exceeded our previous 12 years put together.

With this multiplied output the cost came down, and the saving was deducted from our price.

Now no standard tire of any type costs less than No-Rim-Cut tires. And lesser tires, with a limited output, cost more than these famous tires.

You get tires that can't rim-cut. You get 10 per cent overcapacity compared with clincher tires.

You get the tires which, by sheer merit, have won the topmost place in Tiredom.

It is folly to pay more.

A Free Tire Repair Service

For All Users of

Pullman Tires

(Guaranteed for 3500 Miles)

We have gone to great expense to install this service. But it is only in keeping with the policy of the firm—take care of the customer. Motor cars manned by expert tire repair men are on the job from 6 a. m. to midnight every day, Sunday included.

A phone call explaining your predicament—puncture, blowout or other tire trouble—brings a machine with men and materials to your assistance. If the damaged tire cannot be mended quickly, they will put on a new one. All without one penny's charge to you, save for the new tire, when necessary.

This free service will not only bind present customers more closely to us, but it will prove to those who have never used Pullman tires that we are more interested in customers after the sale than we are before they buy.

Pullman Tires

All Sizes All Styles

Equal the Most Expensive Tires Made

They need no elaborate description. Those who use discernment in the purchase of their tires have found Pullmans equal to every test. We guarantee them for 3,500 miles—and they give more. They are made of standard materials by one of the largest manufacturers of automobile tires. Every step in their manufacture is slow and sure. They are examined, re-examined and tested for flaws. When they pass the hands of the final examiner they are as good as brains and skill, using the best materials, can make them.

Those who have ever given Pullman tires a trial stick to them ever afterward. This, in our opinion, is the very best endorsement they could possibly have. Made in all sizes and sold to you at prices that are attractive enough to ask for.

ATLANTA'S STRIDES FROM DAY TO DAY

vacate any time soon, Mr. Ivey will sublease the front of 121 about July 1. Otherwise he will not take possession of the remaining portion of the store until January 1, 1914.

The present location of the College Co-op, 97 Peachtree, was leased seven years ago by E. W. Alfriend to that company. Mr. Alfriend will take up the matter of re-leasing this location to someone upon his return from Florida.

The steel work of the new Healey building is fast pushing skyward, the fourth story of the framework already having been completed. While Atlanta has had many building of this character erected in the past, yet this one is attracting probably more attention than any of the former, owing to its extreme size, and the rapidity with which the work is being pushed.

A few small realty sales were announced Saturday, most of them being made under the $7,000 mark

The Realty Investments have sold to Louis Regenstein the southeast corner of Magnolia and New Managum streets for the consideration of $7,000, on terms of $1,500 cash and notes at 6 per cent interest, covering the balance. The lot is 80x198 feet, making the cost $140 a front foot.

Misses Emma L. and Mary E. Prichard have purchased from Miss Alice E. Thomas, lot at 29 Kennesaw avenue, 54x214 feet, for $6,000.

College Park home and 4½ acres, for John L. Moon to S. B. Ledbetter, $6,500.

Kissimmee, Fla., two-story, nine-room house, for S. B. Ledbetter to client; $4,000 cash.

Three six-room houses at 699-701-103 East Fair street, for Dr. C. H. Wikle, to a client; $4,000 cash.

Lakewood, DeKalb county, two vacant lots for George Tumlin to H. N. Weathers; $1,100.

Fayette county, fifty-acre farm for client to J. R. Fowler for $2,500.

College Park, six vacant lots for J. R. Fowler to Rev. J. G. Hunt for $1,600.

569 Woodward avenue, W. H. McLain to client; $5,500 cash.

Roswell road, 4½ acres for J. R. Fowler to client for $6,500.

Myrtle street, one of the new streets opened some time ago, is rapidly becoming a residence section. Within the past few months twelve or fifteen homes have been completed on this thoroughfare, and about half a dozen more are now under the process of completion.

A. J. and H. F. West have sold to George L. Slater for the H. L. Cope estate, 5 acres in West End on Oak-land avenue near Gordon street for $2,400 cash.

The L. O. Turner Co. reported the following sales Saturday afternoon, saying that business in their line was exceptionally good:

For Jake F. Moore estate, to J. B. Crowley, one farm of 287 acres located in Newton county near Starsville, Ga. for $7,580. This farm has a large brick residence on it, and is only one-quarter of a mile from the railroad station.

CHILD LABOR PICTURE DECLARED OVERDRAWN

Commissioner Stanley Makes Interesting Report on the Cotton Mills.

Child labor conditions in the textile industries of the state are not nearly so bad as some writers for the press, particularly the northern press, have caused their readers to believe. The annual report of Commissioner of Labor Henry M. Stanley, the advance sheets of which were made public yesterday, shows that out of a total of 30,359 employees in the cotton mills of Georgia there are but 6,592, of both sexes, who are under the age of 18 years.

The idea is widely prevalent that the cotton mill employees of the state are largely made up of women and children. This is erroneous, according to Mr. Stanley's figures, there are almost as many adult males employed in the cotton factories, the number being 15,054, as there are women and children of both sexes, the number of these being 15,305. The number of males under the age of 18 years is 3,381; of females, 3,211.

Wages Paid Operatives.

As to the wages paid to mill operatives, the figures show a wide divergence between the best wages which are paid and the poor pay and the low wages paid in others. The results of Mr. Stanley's investigations show:

Hirings—Average paid males and females, 10 to 12 years, $.53 to $6; 12 to 14, $6 to $9; 14 to 18, $7 to $12; over 18 years, $14 to $30; females, $9 to $15; lowest weekly wages, 10 to 12 years, $1.50 to $3; 14 to 18 years, $12.75 to $15.75; over 18, $3 to $6.

There are now 140 cotton mills in the state, with a total capital invested of $38,288,900. The amount of raw material used annually is $34,325,575 pounds of cotton, valued at $27,990,307. The manufactured product is nearly double this in value, being $51,200,489, which is divided into 453,621,894 yards of cloth at $38,136,334, and 61,776,241 pounds of yarn at $13,064,155.

The amount paid to wage earners last year was $8,421,513.

Knitting Mill Statistics.

Statistics as to knitting mills are as follows: Number of mills in state, 30; capital invested, $1,443,500; raw material used, 1,345,000 pounds; the yarn valued at $627,227; total value of manufactured products, $1,781,700; number of employes, 1,167.

The figures for woolen mills are: Number of mills, 7; capital, $733,746; raw materials used, 1,142,000 pounds of wool at $211,096; yards of cloth manufactured, 2,791,657, valued at $558,633. No children under the age of 14 are employed in woolen mills.

The grand total for the textile industry follows: Number of mills, 177; capital invested, $37,465,846; total value of raw material, $28,828,630; value of manufactured product, $53,540,842.

MORTUARY

Mrs. W. D. Gaulding, Colbert.

Athens, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Mrs. W. D. Gaulding, wife of one of the most prominent citizens of Madison county and mother of two of the largest planters in that county, died yesterday evening at her home. The funeral will be at Colbert, Sunday morning. Her sons surviving are R. M. and G. H. Gaulding.

Mrs. Corner, Knoxville.

Valdosta, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Mrs. Charles Corner died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Phil Pendleton, in this city this morning following a serious operation on Thursday. The deceased was a native of Knoxville, Tenn., but had lived much of her time in New York city and Savannah. Her son, Kenyon Corner, of the latter city, and her husband were present at her death. She was 51 years of age, and a woman of rare accomplishment. Her funeral will occur here Sunday.

R. L. Duncan.

R. L. Duncan, age 46, died at a private sanitarium at 11 o'clock Saturday morning. He is survived by his wife. The funeral will be from Harry G. Poole's parlor at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Interment will be at Westview.

Mrs. A. E. Merk.

Mrs. A. E. Merk, aged 70, died at the residence, 372 Cooper street, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the body was removed to Greenberg & Bond Co.'s parlors. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. J. D. Jackson, and one son, H. N. Merk. The funeral will be at 9 o'clock this morning from the residence, and the interment will be in Gainesville, Ga.

W. C. Allen, Buford.

Buford, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—W. C. Allen, brother of Bona Allen, died yesterday morning of blood poisoning. The funeral services at the Methodist Episcopal church at this place the remains were interred in the Bremen cemetery. The husband and several children survive.

Mrs. M. A. Taylor, Bremen.

Bremen, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Mrs. M. A. Taylor died in her seventy-fourth year yesterday evening at the home of her relative near Villa Rica after an illness of long duration. The interment was at Roopville, Carroll county, Saturday afternoon. Two sons, Messrs. T. W. and L. S. Taylor, and other relatives survive.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED ON SIDNEY H. PHELAN

Resolutions on the death of Sidney H. Phelan, Sr., were adopted at the last meeting of the Burns Club of Atlanta. The resolutions, which were drafted by Donald M. Bain, Dr. Joseph Jacobs and Judge Marcus W. Beck, pay a high tribute to the sterling qualities of a man loved and friend, which the departed was recognised to possess. He is lauded as one of a type of men whom the poet would have loved, a man to whom he could have turned for encouragement, friendly sympathy and brotherly love.

Mr. Phelan was for years a member of the Burns club and was always an enthusiastic admirer of the Scotch poet.

CATTLE BUYERS ACTIVE IN SOUTHERN STATES

Receipts Have Almost Doubled At St. Louis Market During Last Twelve Months.

BY E. M. NIGHBERT,
Of Bureau of Animal Industry.

During the past twelve months cattle buyers have been active in Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida purchasing cattle to be shipped to the middle western markets as either canners or stockers. The prices paid for canners during this period has been so high that thousands of cattle have been sent to the shambles which should have been retained on the farms for breeding purposes. This is especially noticeable when the receipts of southern cattle at the St. Louis market for the last 12 months are compared with those for any previous period of similar length of time. Louisiana, Mississippi, and Louisiana cattle at that market have almost doubled during this period.

Since the first of February buyers from the farms of the west have been scouring the Gulf state in the search of breeding stock. Early in May ago this class of cattle would have been scorned by the western ranchman as breeding stock, but with the present age of cows for breeding purposes the ranchers are glad to get these cheap cows, to which they will breed good beef bulls. The half-breeds resulting from this mating make fairly desirable beef animals.

Several thousand cattle have already been sent from these states to Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas, and some of them are said to have been shipped as far as Montana.

Many Cattle Shipped.

Recently there were perhaps more cattle unloaded at one point in Birmingham, Ala., for feed, water and rest while en route to the western ranges than have ever been seen in that place before in one day. Georgia and Florida are sending out thousands of these native southern cattle at the present time at prices ranging from $15 to $23 a head for yearling animals. A shipment of 40 carloads of cattle was recently made from Osceola county, Florida, to one dairy. They were shipped to Kansas via Oklahoma City. The cattle were dipped in arsenical solution before loading to free them of ticks and are to be dipped again on arrival at Oklahoma City before going above the federal quarantine line.

Some people of the south seem glad that these cattle are being shipped out, as the number of scrub cattle is being reduced, and the south will get better cattle as the result. They do not look far enough ahead, however, or they would see that if the shortage come from the far west to buy these cattle is such as to cause buyers to scrub cattle for breeding purposes the chances of southern farmers refilling their pastures with good cattle are indeed, small; for where are these good breeding cattle to come from at a reasonable price? The best and most profitable way of getting good cattle throughout the south is to breed up the native cattle by the use of pure-bred bulls and by castrating all scrub bulls at an early age.

The south is especially adapted to raising cattle because of the long grazing season; the enormous areas of cheap land, much of which is now lying idle; the great variety of pasture grasses and legumes, which grow luxuriantly on all soils, and because of the mild winters.

Why Not Keep Cattle.

If the western ranchman can afford to pay southern farmers good prices for cows, pay the high freight rates to the west, stand the losses which naturally occur during shipping thin cattle such long distances, also bear the losses due to a change in climatic conditions, and then make money on them, why cannot the southern farmer, who already owns the land, as well as the grazing lands, and who needs the manure upon the soils, keep this stock on the farm and secure the increased profits? He can, if he will free his cattle of ticks, increase the efficiency of his pastures by planting mixtures of lespedeza, bur clover, white clover, or perhaps, melilotus, alsike clover, and redtop over his pasture lands, and by raising more hay and forage crops for wintering his stock and finishing them for the market.

The surplus cattle can then be fattened by feeding cotton seed cake on grass, grazing fields of velvet beans, while feeding some concentrate, or they can be finished in the dry lot during the last few months. For winter feeding feeding no roughage has proven more valuable than silage, as the addition of it to a feeding ration invariably increases the size of the daily gains and reduces the cost of them, thereby making greater profits. The quality and the quantity of silage which can be produced on some of these cheap lands cannot be surpassed by the high priced lands of the corn belt, and the cost of the silage crop is far less because of the cheap labor.

The farmers of the south are therefore urged to discontinue this wholesale shipping of their cattle by rail to other states, to free the pastures of the cattle tick, and to increase the numbers and quality of their cattle by the use of pure-bred beef bulls. The progeny will not only grow off faster and make larger and better cattle, but will be far more profitable to raise and feed than are the natives. The soils will be increased in fertility, and manure, which gives such profitable returns when applied to the cotton crop, will put vegetable matter into the soil, thus reducing the amount of commercial fertilizer necessary and increasing the availability of this material.

What Change Will Bring.

Now when we consider carefully the fostering and development of a live stock industry, especially cattle, in Georgia and the south, we can look for a home supply of corn and forage on the farm. Then we can look for success of the plans of rural credit and finance. Then we can safeguard our staple crop cotton. Why? Because the change will bring about fences; fertility will be conserved; and crop yields increased with more satisfaction and less expense. Then the best returns will surely come from the use of high-grade commercial fertilizer.

The success of one thing on the farm always depends on some other essential thing. Fundamental principles must always be considered. They are no short cuts to permanent thrift and success along any line. Cattle are a fundamental industry on the farm. How are all these things going to take place? They will take place just like the change from the "little cotton mule" to the heavier draft mule. They are going to take place just like the time when we quit plowing straight up and down hill and made terraces pointed.

REVIEWS OF THE WEEK IN AMERICAN MARKETS

New Orleans, June 21.—The price of cotton held within the limits of the last week's close throughout practically the entire week. The net change for the week was an advance of 15 to 17 points. Extreme prices were made on Tuesday and the low prices on Monday. At the highest, the July position was 32 to 38 points over last week's close; at the lowest, they were unchanged to 9 points over. The range was 26 to 34 points.

Bearish news was almost wholly ignored this week. Favorable crop accounts and weather news, lighter spot sales in the English market and less optimistic advices from the Manchester goods and yarn market and predictions that the movement of the new cotton in Texas would be ginned around the first of July, at the latest, did not weight against values. The operations in the July position made shorts nervous, caused more or less covering of short notice and resulted in intensifying the effect of all bullish influences.

Besides much of the quiet spot demand on this side, shorts swept nearly all offerings at good prices, and also played up the bull line, buying freely for goods at points in this country. The chief weapon of the long side, however, was the threatened expiration in July. All sorts of gossip concerning the intention of the Texas crop movement was circulated and caused buying for both accounts. At the close of the week, the bears contended that July longs were not inclined to be as easily pacified, having liquidated its short interest and replaced it with new long contracts.

News from the belt was favorable. Throughout the Texas belt temperatures were high and, while no great amount of rain fell, the scattering showers were sufficient to prevent drouth talk, reports from Texas all claiming that moisture very badly.

The bulk of crop accounts was that the plant, while small, was healthy and making good growth. Stands were generally reported good and fields were said to be clean and unusually well worked for this time of the year. Over a fifth of the Texas crop was considered to be 100 per cent clean. While the bulls admitted the effect of the week's rains, the bear element out that the crop was still late.

In the spot market prices advanced 14c, midding closing at 12 9-16, against 12 7-16 last week and 12c this week last year. Sales at the spot amounted to 5,277 bales, against 3,272 last week and 525 this week last year, sales to arrive amounted to 1,538 bales, against 1,584 last week and 1,027 this week last year.

Financial.

New York, June 21.—Decreasing dealings in stocks and bonds developed during this week, due, no doubt, to the exhaustion of the large speculative accounts, which have been carried for a long time. The week's only important development so far as recounted in the movement of stocks was the refusal of the interstate commerce commission to reopen the freight rate case on the petition of the eastern roads for a 5 per cent advance. Disappointment at this action, registered in sharp declines at the end of the week and temporarily disturbed the market, although the decision of the commission to make an inquiry as to the necessity for future changes in the rates of transportation was generally regarded as a favorable feature. Reports of present rates held open the hope to the roads of ultimate success.

There was no recurrence of alarm over the money outlook, which is now generally held to be realization of the necessity of caution in the use of credit as a result of further difficulties to be encountered through the scarcity of floating capital over the available supply throughout the world.

Discount rates hardened in London and Berlin, Berlin withdrew 10,000,000 marks of gold from the open market for the week, but obtained none.

It was announced from Paris that the large loans expected to be issued there had been postponed until next winter. London underwriters have shown a fair measure of interest in the week's offerings, but little has been accepted for five months the first half of last year, in itself a period of extra ordinary expansion. Home corporations have been forced to borrowings to actual necessities, and for these are paying exorbitant interest rates on short term notes.

Dry Goods.

New York, June 21.—Cotton goods orders of fair size are coming along from jobbers who are looking to the fall trade. Business is not of full volume for the season, and there is still a marked conservatism in the placing of business for spring. Most of the large primary factors anticipate a much more active trade next month when the semi-annual gathering of wholesalers takes place here and when the results of the senate's preliminary action on tariff matters will be more known.

Mills are combining their output very closely to firm orders and accumulations in first hands are few in any division of the trade.

Leading commission houses say the fundamentals of the industry are sound, as stocks have been better and with easier money and more definite tariff information, business may in fact have a very considerable activity in filling up depleted shelves. Fall River sold 80,000 pieces of print cloths last week and 60,000 at better prices. Prints are in moderate demand. Ginghams are firm.

Tickings are steady and denims are well sold. Flannels are firmer.

Fine and fancy cottons for summer delivery are being ordered freely. Woolens are succeeding very well in cleaning up summer goods in clearance sales. Prints are confined to staples for fall.

Print cloths, 28 inch 64x54s, 3¾ cents; 64x60s, 3¾; 56x60s, 3½; 64x64s, 3¾; 60x48s, 3½. Brown sheetings, southern standard, 7¼; denims, 9-ounce, 12½; ticks, 15 to 22½; standard ginghams, 6¼; standard prints, 5½c; standard staple ginghams, 6¼c; standard dress ginghams, 9¼c.

Steel and Iron.

New York, June 21.—Consumers of rolled steel products pressed the steel mills this week even more than in the previous week for deliveries on contracts, but placed few orders. There is a waiting attitude on the part of buyers, as future developments, financial, industrial and political, pertaining to improvements involving the second half of the year, are awaited. Many of the mills are producing to the limit of capacity and shipping as fast as material can be rolled into finished forms.

The railroads are noticeably absent from the market for equipment last week, orders placed amounting to only 13,000 tons. 1,500 cars and less than 1,300 tons of locomotives. Several lines will declare some large contracts when announcements of the conference committee on the balance of the current month, however, seems probable.

The fabricating shops made a better record last week, booking 20,000 tons of orders due to the passing of several jobs, including a building 6,000 tons for the San Francisco city and county hall, 3,000 tons for the Cleveland county court house at Cleveland and 3,500 tons for Panama-Pacific exposition buildings at San Francisco.

Bids go in Monday and Tuesday on 4,000 tons for steel for more subway work and on six steamships for the United States navy, the latter calling for 20,000 tons plates, and on Thursday, 10,000 tons for armor plates and 2,000 tons for 6-inch gun plates. Steel sheets are still tending slowly upward, the mills being full and deliveries irregular.

Pig iron is more interesting, even with further concessions of twenty to fifty cents per ton on foundry and steel-making iron, failed to induce large sales, as buyers are confident of reasonable tonnages of pig iron last week. Aggregate sales were about 40,000 tons and 50,000 tons in all, including, but inquiries for 60,000 tons are up in the territory east of the Allegheny mountains.

Live Stock.

Chicago, June 21.—Hogs—Receipts, 9,000; slow, bulk of sales, $8.65@8.75; light, $8.50@8.75; mixed, $8.45@8.80; heavy, $8.20@8.77½; rough, $8.25@8.40; pigs, $6.70@8.50.

Cattle—Receipts, 200; steady; beeves, $7.20@9.60; Texas steers, $6.60@8.40; western, $6.50@8.50; cows and heifers, $3.80@8.40; calves, $7.50@10.25.

BALDWIN CROP OUTLOOK CONSIDERABLY BRIGHTER

Milledgeville, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—After being considerably delayed in farm work by bad weather, the farmers of Baldwin and neighboring counties have had opportunity this week to get in some telling work, and a more active week than the one just passed has not been recorded.

The outlook with all crops has brightened materially, and business men and farmers are better satisfied with the prospects than they have been for some time. Favorable seasons from now on will insure a fair crop, and the outlook for good prices continues to be materially strengthened from time to time.

MEREDITH NICHOLSON WILLING TO WITHDRAW

Washington, June 21.—Meredith Nicholson, the Indiana novelist, has asked President Wilson to withdraw his nomination as minister to Portugal if the appointment would embarrass him politically.

Objection has been raised that Nicholson has not always been a democrat. The white house would not discuss the president's reply to Mr. Nicholson, but it is understood that the nomination will not be withdrawn and that the president has urged him to accept notwithstanding protests.

Give the Railroads a Chance.

(From Leslie's.)

When, in 1911, to prevent a continuance of the disastrous strike, the English railroads settled with their employees, the promise was made that the railways would be given parliamentary authority to increase their rates to cover, at least in part, their additional expenses resulting from increased wages, reduction of hours and generally improved conditions of railway service. Though a bit tardy, this promise is now being fulfilled. "If the just demands," asks the London Times, "for further improvement in railway labor conditions are to be met without wrecking the whole financial edifice upon which the railway industry rests, it is clear that the public must pay." England has set a precedent that we would do well to follow. Every argument made on the other side for consideration for the railroads applies with greater force here.

HANDLING OF BEEF STUDIED BY STATESMAN

Chicago, June 21.—Completing a day in which he inspected many Chicago industries, including the stockyards, Dr. Lauro Muller, minister of foreign affairs of Brazil, who is here on a two days' visit en route from Washington to San Francisco, tonight was the guest at a dinner given him by the Illinois Manufacturers' association. Dr. Muller while at the stockyards devoted his time chiefly to the study of the handling of beef. He scrutinized the quality of the animals slaughtered and consulted with the experts on beef production.

"In South America we are working to increase our beef production to avail ourselves of the world market thrown open by the diminution of the ranges in North America," he said.

"Since the United States ceased to produce enough beef for its own needs, this great opportunity has become of chief interest in Brazil as well as in the Argentine, which is sending beef all over the world.

"Brazil is indebted to the United States for ideas of commercial efficiency and organization," said Dr. Muller. "Our two countries do a vast trade now, but there is an enormous market there yet for the United States."

German influence is strong in Brazil, according to Dr. Muller. "The great weight Germany has in our commerce is because of the early start Germany got," he said. "Germany has been industrious in pushing its advantage and has cultivated the market systematically."

Dr. Muller declared himself strongly in favor of the unity of all South American nations, and affirmed his belief in the Monroe Doctrine.

DR. GRAHAM WELCOMED BY HAPEVILLE CITIZENS

Citizens of Hapeville gave a warm reception last Friday evening to Dr. B. J. Graham, pastor of the First Baptist church of that city, who had just returned from a three months' trip in the Holy Land.

The reception was held on the church lawn and speeches of welcome were made by Mayor W. T. Akin, Rev. R. D. Hawkins, Rev. F. W. Joiner and Rev. Fritz Rauschenberg, of Hapeville.

Dr. Graham responded in a neat speech, thanking them for their warm reception and told them many of his experiences in the Holy Land.

HIS "GOLD" METEORITE JUST NICKEL AND IRON

Fresno, Cal., June 21.—A huge meteorite which landed on the farm of Fred Williams, and by its yellow gleam led him to believe he had a 20-ton nugget of gold, proved to be composed of iron and nickel. Experts so reported today.

Williams found the meteorite at a depth of 16 feet. Jewelers who casually inspected the sample had pronounced it crystallised gold.

Chinese Minister Leaves.

Washington, June 21.—After a service of three and a half years as a Chinese minister here, Chang Yin Tang and his family, including his son, Henry Chang, left Washington today for San Francisco to return to China. Mr. Chang has served a longer continuous term than any of his predecessors in office. He will not return to Washington. The affairs of the legation will be conducted by Dr. Chang Kang Jen, first secretary, as charge d'affaires, until a minister is appointed.

SAVANNAH SOCIAL NEWS

Savanah, Ga., June 21.—(Special Correspondence.)—With the return of the college set for the long vacation there are already anticipations of debut parties in the fall, and in the meantime the young people who have not yet finished their school work are planning a gay summer. Miss Catherine Charlton, who has just graduated from Vassar, will make her debut next season, and Miss Inez Tiedeman, who has gratuated at Smith, will also be a member of the debutante set. Miss Charlton has returned home. Miss Tiedeman is in New York with her parents for a ten days' stay and will spend most of the summer at their beautiful country place at the Isle of Hope. Miss Dorothea Karow, who has been spending a year with her mother abroad, will return in September for her brother, Mr. Edward Karow's wedding, and will make her debut next winter. Miss Kate Osborne sailed recently with a party of fourteen for a summer trip abroad. She will return to New York the end of August, and after some weeks north will return home to make her debut. Miss Susie Cole Winburn, Miss Elizabeth dest. Julien Ravenel, Miss Agnes Reese, Miss Delia Lindsay, Miss Elizabeth Candler and Miss Katharine Ives will also be debutantes of next season.

The usual number of visiting girls will be here for the summer in the school and college set. Miss Winburn will have as her guests the Misses Laura and Isabel Kennedy, of Youngstown, O., and the Misses Sarah and Helen Swisher and Miss Agnes Chilton, of Charleston, W. Va., who are expected next week. Mr. and Mrs. Winburn will give them a dance at the Yacht club soon after their arrival, and this will be the first large dancing party of the summer season. Miss Ruth Ely is also entertaining a party of house guests. They are Miss Mary Bellamy, of Wilmington, N. C.; Miss Katharine Crampton, of Mobile, and Miss Virginia V. Wright, of New York. Miss Mary Granger, who has just returned from Peekskill, will have as guests in July Miss Betty Cornwell, of Short Hills, N. J.; Miss Gretchen Mott, of Scranton, Pa.; Miss Elizabeth Thompson, of Philadelphia, and Miss Augusta Clark, of Birmingham.

For Miss Julia Bird, of Norfolk, the guest of Miss Caroline Wilson, a luncheon was given at the Yacht club Tuesday by Mrs. B. F. Bullard. In the party were Miss Ruth Ely and her guests, Miss Bellamy, Miss Crampton, Miss Wright, Misses Sarah and Helen Drummond, Mrs. Olaf Otto and Mrs. Henry L. Richmond.

Commencement week gayeties at the University of Georgia have been enjoyed by many Savannah people. Gen. F. W. Meldrim has been the guest of Mr. H. C. White, and Judge S. B. Adams of other Athens friends. Miss Rachael Beymer visited her sister, Mrs. Hugh White; Mrs. J. S. Wood and Miss Rosalind Wood have been with Mrs. Charles duBose; Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Moise and Miss Mary Moise with Mr. Sidney Moise; Mrs. Horace A. Crane with Miss Lucas, and Miss Susie Winburn with her aunt, Mrs. P. F. Brown.

Mrs. Clark Howell and her children, of Atlanta, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Mills B. Lane at Montgomery, where they have a summer cottage. Mr. Howell, who has been at the university commencement in Athens, is expected today.

Mrs. Harvey Granger has returned from the north.

Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Corson and their children will leave July 10 for the north, on their way to England for the summer. Dr. Corson goes for the special purpose of attending the International Medical congress to be held in London between August 6 and 12, at which he will read a paper on "Some Unpublished Water Color Sketches of Sir Charles Bell," with observations on his artistic qualities and the relationship of art to anatomy. The sessions of the congress will be held in the library of the Royal College of Physicians. Dr. Corson's paper will be read before the section on the history of medicine. Dr. and Mrs. Corson and their children will sail from Boston on the Cymric, July 15, and will spend three weeks in London and rural England. They will visit Oxford and possibly Cambridge. They will then go to Edinburgh, where Dr. Corson expects to do some research work at the library of Edinburgh university, and will make a short trip to Paris before returning to England. They expect to sail from Liverpool September 10 on their return trip.

A Gifted Athens Girl

MISS FANNIE NEAL ANDERSON,

Of Athens, a recent visitor in Atlanta. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Anderson, recently made her formal debut, and last winter won distinction for her painting in the art school in Washington city.

BIGGEST YEAR YET FOR STATE COLLEGE

Agricultural Students Lead in University Activities—Resume of Great Work Accomplished.

If anything were still needed to demonstrate the immense value primarily to the farmers of the state and incidentally to all other classes of citizens of the work that is being accomplished by the state college of agriculture, it would have been furnished by the record shown at Athens commencement last week of the year just closed.

The attendance of the last scholastic year showed an increase of 55 per cent over the preceding, and the ever-growing interest manifested among farmers' sons indicates that next year will show a still greater percentage of growth over this.

The truth is that the development of the college has far exceeded the expectations held out by its friends and founders at the beginning. Not only is its influence felt in the work done at Athens, but to a far greater degree in the demonstration work carried on in nearly every county of the state, and in the ten thousand boys organized in corn clubs and the 2,223 girls enrolled in canning clubs last year.

Lead in College Activities.

The fear expressed by those hostile to the location of the college at Athens that the students in agriculture might be, as a class, socially ostracized has absolutely failed to materialize. Not only has this not been true at any time, but, on the contrary, the agricultural boys have been well received and have taken a leading part in all the activities of the university.

This year it was a student in agriculture, F. D. Garrison, of Cornelia, who was selected by the senior class to deliver the picture of Chancellor Barrow which the class presented to the board of trustees. In all the departments of college life, social, scholastic and athletic, the "ags" have made their influence felt.

While pressure will undoubtedly be brought to bear on the legislature this year, on account of the condition of the state treasury, to keep all appropriations at low water mark, the state cannot afford not to deal generously with this institution.

Chairman Conner Talks.

In order that the people might be generally informed as to the work that is being accomplished, Commissioner of Agriculture J. J. Conner, who is chairman of the board of trustees, gave out the following interview Saturday:

"In the department of agronomy, fertilizer plats have been established in fourteen counties, 1,000 plants in all, the object of which is to determine the best fertilizers to use and the best crops to select in rotation. In eight counties, forty acres in each, under the direction of the college, are selecting and breeding corn. In five counties, similar work is being done in regard to oats, while in other counties corn improvement associations have been formed for the study of crops in general.

"The college is conducting an extensive experiments on its own farm with reference to wheat, corn and oats, and the results of four years' tests are available. The average of the best yielding corn has been 69 bushels per acre. Wheat yields as high as 24 and 25 bushels per acre, and oats 47 to 68 bushels per acre. A number of varieties were used in each test.

Experiments With Lime.

"Experiments with lime have shown as much as 16 bushels increase per acre for corn and 777 pounds per acre for cowpeas. Valuable information on inoculation and liming of alfalfa, on the use of floats and acid phosphate, as nitrogen carriers for corn, has been obtained.

"Original work has been done in the study of stooling or suckering of corn. The seed from plants that 'stool' have shown up best under germination test, and also the greatest yield, less breaking down of stalks in the field, fewest barren stalks and better quality of stover.

Annual Husbandry.

"The department of animal husbandry has demonstrated that a grade Percheron mare, weighing 1,550 pounds and costing $235, did the work of a mule that cost $250, and besides foaled a colt that sold for $162.50 at the age of 6 months. This should be an important lesson to the Georgia farmer, ninety-nine out of a hundred of whom did not raise colts according to the last census report.

"The college has demonstrated how to build up a worn-out farm and increase the annual receipts 174.5 per cent in five years, how to conduct a dairy at a handsome profit, how to make a profit in beef-growing by crossing native stock with a pure-bred bull.

"The college is manufacturing a hog cholera preventive serum that is tested before it is sent out to the farmer, which was satisfied last year to 863 hogs in herds where the disease was raging, and saved 786 of them. The serum is furnished to the farmers of the state at cost.

"Seventeen per cent of the $3,872,000 worth of eggs produced in Georgia annually is lost. The poultry department is conducting a crusade against this annual million dozen preventable loss. Extension schools and poultry were reached last year and taught how to tpst and grade eggs.

Soil Survey of Eight Counties.

"A soil survey has been made of eight counties of the state by the college in co-operation with the federal government. A chemical analysis of the soils of Ben Hill county has been made to determine the plant food contents. Field tests are also being made on the types of soil to determine what crops will yield best and favor the up building of fertility. A more enduring and far-reaching work in behalf of Georgia farmers is now being undertaken by the college.

"The department of cotton industry is turning out men to take charge of warehouses and to breed seed cotton. A strain of cotton known as Sunbeam has been developed on the college farm, and is thoroughly resistant to anthracnose. It has been distributed to 71 counties and was planted on 5,000 acres last year.

"In the department of horticulture, orchard heating demonstrations during the last spring proved that the temperature could be brought down from 26 degrees to 30, thus protecting the orchard from damage. Over fifty varieties of north Georgia apples have been studied with reference to determining the variety best suited to conditions. Experiments in spraying demonstrated that 90 per cent of fruit from sprayed trees was salable, while 90 per cent from unsprayed trees was not.

10,000 Boys in Corn Clubs.

"As many as 10,000 boys belonged to the corn clubs, averaged 60 bushels of corn to the acre at an average cost of 30 cents per acre. Next year the college hopes to extend the work, and greater results may be expected.

"Two thousand two hundred girls enrolled 2,223 girls in canning clubs, whose net profit per acre ranged from $73 to $40. It is no wonder that there was wide-spread interest and calls from many other counties which could not be organized because of lack of funds."

From the Sepulchre of Death to the Sunlight!

Commanded by Jesus to rise from the dead, Lazarus is seen in this picture coming forth from the sepulchre to the sunlight. What a sensation it must have been! And yet a sensation that is equaled in hundreds of lives, it is testified, when the soul is called forth from its dark environment of sin into the warm sunshine of a life of love and service. This is only one of many stories of the Bible that typify human life and experience of today just as truly as the life of two thousand years ago.

ROTHSCHILDS TO FIGHT STANDARD OIL COMBINE

St. Louis, June 21.—The Post-Dispatch says in a late edition this afternoon that the Waters-Pierce Oil company is being reorganized, its capital being increased from $400,000 to $10,000,000. The European banking family of Rothschilds is understood to have invested heavily in the reorganization, and the new company is expected to become a rival of the Standard Oil company in the United States.

Henry Clay Pierce, of St. Louis, chairman of the board of directors of the old Waters-Pierce Oil company, will retain a controlling interest in the new organization. The Rothschilds are heavily interested in an English corporation which is a strong rival of the Standard Oil company in England.

HALF MILLION DAMAGE DONE BY HAILSTORM

Quincy, Fla., June 21.—The hailstorm following the tornado that swept over Gadsden county on Wednesday did much damage to the growing crops, especially the tobacco crop. The hail cut the growing plants to ribbons, and in some cases beat them into the ground like pulp. Just what the total of the damage will amount to is hard to say, as the full reports from outlying districts have not been received; but the estimated loss so far exceeds half a million in this and adjoining counties in Florida and southern Georgia, according to the warehouse men and from growers' reports that have

Bones of Extinct Camels and Horses Found in Alaska and the Yukon

At the time of the discovery of America horses and camels were entirely unknown in the western hemisphere. The Indians had never seen a horse and the nearest living American representative of the camel was the llama. It has long been known to zoologists, however, that both horses and camels existed in North America, in a geological age not very remote from our own, hardly long enough for them in Arctic regions. Within a year discoveries have been made which indicate that camels once inhabited the Yukon region of Canada, and a skull of an Alaskan horse has also been found.

In the summer of 1912, while collecting specimens of modern land animals along the Yukon-Alaskan boundary, for the United States national museum, Mr. Copley Amory, Jr., obtained a small collection of fossil bones of the pleistocene age, or that immediately preceding the age of man. These bones include several parts of a mammals, horse, bison and camel, and altogether prove to be of no little importance, since the bones of a camel have never before been found in this region. There is little doubt, however, that the camel is pleistocene on account of the fact that the bone found by Mr. Amory agrees exactly in color and degree of fossilization with those of the mammals known to be of that epoch, which were found with it.

In a paper of the Smithsonian miscellaneous collections, describing this specimen, Mr. J. W. Gidley remarks that while the specimen itself is insignificant, yet its presence in the collection proves unquestionably that camels once existed in a locality north of the Arctic circle. The find was located at a point about fifty miles from the mouth of the Old Crow river in the Yukon territory, Canada, not far from the Yukon-Alaskan boundary line, and joins the Porcupine river, a branch of the Yukon flowing from Yukon into Alaska. Heretofore the northern limit of the range of fossil camels in America has been Silver Lake or Christmas Lake, Oregon, which is just north of the 43d parallel of latitude and some 20 degrees to the south of the new northern limit.

It is known that several large species of camels were very abundant on this continent during both the pliocene and the pleistocen periods, and the discovery of their remains in the pleistocene deposits of the Alaskan peninsula was not altogether unlooked for, although their occurrence so far within the Arctic circle was scarcely expected. This verification of their former presence within that region, therefore, is of especial interest, in that it greatly extends the known geographic distribution of this important group of mammals in America during this period, incidently adding proof in support of the supposition that milder climatic conditions prevailed in Alaska during probably the greater part of the pleistocene period. It also tends to support the theory of the existence of a wide Asiatic-Alaskan land connection of comparatively recent date, which for a great length of time served as a highway for the migration of mammals from the old world to America.

The foot-bone found by Mr. Amory is unmistakably that of a camel and closely resembles similar bones of living species.

"A no less interesting acquisition of the national museum is the fossil skull of a horse which is reported on by Dr. O. P. Hay, of the Carnegie institution, in the Smithsonian miscellaneous collections, under the title "Description of the Skull of an Extinct Horse Found in Central Alaska." This skull was found by C. H. Snyder in the course of mining operations near Tofty, Alaska, a small mining town situation Sulfur creek, about 24 miles southwest of Rampart, and 7 miles northwest of Hot Springs.

The skull is remarkably well preserved, stained brown and although thoroughly mineralized, retains its original structure. It is somewhat broken on the top part of the nose and the lower jaw is missing, but the teeth are in fine condition. Its importance is enhanced by the fact that hitherto our knowledge of Alaskan horses has been based on very scant remains, such as single teeth, or a very few teeth associated together, and a few bones or fragments of them. Such remains had been found, however, at a number of places; and, meager as they were, they showed that at some time in the past horses had been widely distributed in this apparently barren region. With his report, Dr. Hay published a map showing the localities where evidences of fossil horses have been found in Alaska and Yukon, as far as they have come to his notice, and also mentions the other finds and their location, making technical comparisons.

The horse whose skull has just come to light was probably a male of about 6 years, as the upper canine teeth are well developed. After making a series of careful measurements followed by comparisons with all the material available, the author concludes that this specimen probably belonged to the species which he recently described in the proceedings of the United States national musuum, under the name equus niobrarensis, the horse living in the region of the Niobrara formation, named after the Niobrara river, northern Nebraska, but as there appear to be certain differences which make it proper to recognize it as a distinct form, he has added the name alaskae. It differs from the type-form found in Hay Springs, northwestern Nebraska, in that it is considerably smaller. Other specimens of the same species have been recognized from eastern Nebraska and western Texas, eastern Nebraska and western Iowa. Dr. Hay also mentions the fossil teeth and leg-bone of the horse found in Yukon by Mr. Amory, and stated that one of the upper molars presents a similar appearance to that of the Alaskan horse described in his paper. It is understood that the horse which lived in North America during the pleistocene age were probably derived from stock which crossed over from Asia into Alaska and then made their way nearly the whole of both North and South America.

The paper includes eighteen pages and is illustrated by two plates showing different views of the fossil skull and detail views of the teeth upon which so much depends in the classification of mammals.

CONFESSION OF GRAFT FOLLOWED BY DEATH

New York, June 21.—Thomas W. Walsh, the ex-police captain whose confessions led to the conviction for grafting of Inspectors Murphy, Thompson, Hussey and Sweeney, now serving time in the penitentiary, died at his home in Harlem early today.

He had been in poor health for months and the fear of death was what brought about confession. He rallied and was able to testify at the graft trials, but never was himself again.

GEORGIA WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE ASSOCIATION.

MRS. L. L. McLENDON, President, 139 Washington St., Atlanta.

MISS KATE KOCH, Corresponding Secry., 582 Moreland Ave., Atlanta.

MRS. ALICE B. DANIELS, Recording Secry., 407 N. Jackson St., Atlanta, Ga.

MRS. AMELIA R. WOODARD, Treasurer, 236 Hilliard St., Atlanta.

MRS. M. K. MATHEWS, Auditor, Washington Terrace, Atlanta.

Georgia woman suffragists will be delighted and intensely grateful to the editor of The Atlanta Constitution when they learn that without solicitation a column on the page in Sunday's issue has been placed at the disposal of the Georgia Woman's Suffrage association and its president selected to act as state editor for the same.

This means much to this organized body of women which has been battling for the extension of the right of suffrage to all women in Georgia who wish to use it when they get it, to secure the things they most desire, but which can only come through legislative action and the use of the ballot. Passion, prejudice and even slander have militated against the success of our efforts, but that is now a thing of the past. Let us forgive and forget. The Atlanta Constitution has always stood firmly for the organized efforts of the women of Atlanta and of the state.

This recognition, the first we have had from any newspaper in the way of regular space to exploit our work, comes late, but it is none the less welcome, and the executive committee, composed of the state officers, have ratified and indorsed the action of The Constitution by appointing Mrs. McLendon editor of the department, and added a vote of thanks to the editor of The Constitution.

The News of the Cause.

The editor now pledges the Georgia Woman's Suffrage association to furnish all news regarding the advancement of "The Cause" in Georgia, and from every other state.

In the near future the Georgia W. C. T. U., organized in 1880, will adopt the Franchise Department introduced by Frances E. Willard, the greatest exponent of that organization. Only six southern state unions have failed to operate this important department of W. C. T. U. endeavor. Many of the state federated clubs have already added a suffrage plank, or indorsed the suffrage movement in some way. The Georgia W. C. T. U. also leaves it optional with the local unions to operate any or all departments indorsed by the National W. C. T. U. I know of three local unions who now have added the Franchise Department to their plan of work, and they are "flourishing like a green bay tree."

At the last convention of the Georgia Federation of Woman's clubs held in Atlanta, that able woman and noble leader of this branch of organized womanhood, Mrs. J. K. Ottley, moved, and it was carried, that a committee be appointed to arrange for the study of economic and political science in the clubs.

An Able Movement.

On the editorial page of The Woman's Edition of The Atlanta Constitution June 4, Mrs. Ottley, under the heading of "Neglected Municipal Asset," proved conclusively that women should be on the school boards and that they had a right to be there. She also declared: "The administering in any proper sense of a municipality has become such a complex problem that men, who are harder pressed all the time to make a living for themselves and their families, are being crushed under the burden of municipal housekeeping which is piled upon them in addition." The Journal of Labor, of June 6, comments on this editorial in a most able manner. Everybody knows that federation of labor people are in favor of woman suffrage. Read both of those editorials carefully and they are splendid.

The Mother of Sons Leads.

Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Washington, Kansas, California, Oregon and Arizona have given the women of those states full suffrage just as men have enjoyed so many years. The territory of Alaska has lately enfranchised the women of that cold country and now Illinois has said to her women: "Come up hither, ladies!" "Come up higher, daughters! We cannot jet you quite get on the mountain top, but we'll help you as you will later!" "Half a loaf is better than no loaf," and so the women of that great state are to have a jubilee meeting to celebrate the day when Governor Dunne signs the woman suffrage bill, and he says he will.

Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, one of the best woman lawyers in Illinois, an ardent suffragist and the fond mother of the finest specimens of boyhood and girlhood, says:

"It is the biggest thing that has happened east of the Mississippi river since the civil war."

She says the women of Illinois will never rest until they have full suffrage. The example of Kansas where the women first secured school suffrage, bond suffrage, municipal suffrage and then in November, 1912, full suffrage, should fire the hearts of all suffragists to work diligently and never give up until they succeed. With Patrick Henry the world should declare:

"Give us liberty or give us death!"

Editorial Indorsement.

The editorial in The Atlanta Constitution, in the issue of June 13, proves conclusively that he has a thorough understanding of the true status of the great movement to enfranchise the women of the United States.

The title, "A Prophetic Shadow," is somewhat misleading until we remember that old adage, "Coming events cast their shadows before." He says, in part: "The movement has crossed the Mississippi river in its victorious march eastward. That is the significance of the action of the Illinois legislature in passing a bill to extend limited suffrage to women. Electoral qualifications are as yet restricted, but the chief point is that an opening wedge has been affected."

"In the course of time the women of Illinois hope to brush aside all conditions that prevent them from standing upon an electric equality with men.

"Governor Dunne has signified his intention to sign the bill and it is hardly probable that the legislative movement to reconsider will succeed."

The editor also declares, and I indorse the correctness of his assertion: "There can be no question that there is already present in this section a well-organized and intelligent tendency towards woman suffrage. Fortunately it is being conducted with the discretion and restraint that are among the most powerful weapons of the southern woman."

Suffragists Meet in July.

The Georgia Woman's Suffrage association hold its convention on July 9 and 10 in Atlanta and invites those who are interested to attend. The official call will be issued next week signed by all the officers of the state organization.

Plans will be formulated then for pushing legislation in the direction of woman's cause. In the meantime the suffragists of the state must keep their eyes open to the situation in congress. Reproduced here is the resolution which has been introduced in congress now assembled (two-thirds of each house concurring therein). That the following article be proposed to the legislatures of the several states as an amendment to the constitution of the United States, which, when ratified by three-fourths of the said legislatures, shall be valid as part of said constitution, namely:

"Section 1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex.

"Sec. 2. The congress shall have power, by appropriate legislation, to enforce the provisions of this article."

STATES TO TAKE PART IN VALUING RAILROADS

Columbus, O., June 21.—Action taken here today by O. P. Gothlin, president of the National Association of State Railway Commissioners, makes it certain that the states, as well as the railroads, will be represented in the interstate commerce commission's investigation recently begun in Washington to determine the physical valuations of the roads.

President Gothlin appointed a committee from members of state utilities commissions to attend the hearing, among whom are Commissioners Burr, of Florida; Trabue, of Oklahoma; Winn, of Kentucky; Richards, of South Carolina, and Atkinson, of Missouri.

It is said the committee will request that an attorney be appointed to represent the committee. The first meeting of the new committee will be held next Saturday at Chicago.

TORCH BEING APPLIED BY "ARSON SQUADS"

London, June 21.—Militant suffragette "arson squads" were out last night at St. Andrews, Scotland, and at South End on the lower Thames, and caused considerable damage.

At St. Andrews the east wing of the Gatty golf laboratory was destroyed, and many valuable instruments were burned.

At South End the costly church of St. John was set on fire, but the damage was not great.

Rain Broke Up Play in Georgia Tennis Meet in Second Set—Events Scheduled for Next Saturday.

By Hal Reynolds.

In the deciding match for the championship of the state in doubles, Grant and Thornton captured the first set from Mansfield and Smith, 6-4, and the second set was bringing forth some great tennis when the rain, which had been threatening for some time, broke up the match with the score seven all in games.

In the first set Grant and Thornton opened strong, winning the first two games. Mansfield and Smith, however, rallied quickly and tied up the score, but never succeeded in forging to the front.

Grant and Thornton used their net playing repeatedly, which netted them quite a number of hard points. These two would rush to the net, where it was almost impossible to put one by, both being experts at this style of play.

Mansfield and Smith also played the net game a great deal, although they proved themselves to be equal to the task of sending their opponents' strokes back from the back line with unerring aim and great accuracy.

First one team and then the other would rush to the net, giving the spectators every variety of play. Smith did some pretty work in returning the opposition's hard shots with his backhand strokes.

During the first part of the match Grant and Thornton used quite a number of lobs, the kind of balls which Mansfield and Smith were supposedly weak on. After missing the first ones, Mansfield and Smith began killing them, causing their opponents to be more careful in dishing out this service.

In the second set Mansfield and Smith played together better. At only one time in this set did one side have more than one game on the other, Grant and Thornton having a two-game lead at five-three.

For the most part the serves were slightly off, the opposition nearly always taking the game when the other side, with the score of 30 in games. Grant and Thornton winning the last game, a love one, just before the rain fell.

Carlton Smith received two beautiful loving cups, one for his winning the challenge meet and the other for defeating Thornton.

Referee Frank Reynolds was the recipient of a handsome cup, given by the Piedmont Driving club, as a token of their esteem and appreciation of his work in the tournament just closed.

The final match, which was interrupted yesterday, will probably be resumed this coming Saturday afternoon, as the final in singles at the southern championship will most likely be played Friday. The mixed doubles will also take place next Saturday.

The championship cups in doubles are held by E. V. Carter, Jr., and E. S. Mansfield, who captured it for the third time last season.

Delilah had just finished trimming Samson's hair and putting his eyes out. "Now beat it," said she, in the strange vernacular of those far times, "and show them what an humble white slave did to you."

Southern Tennis Tourney Begins Monday Afternoon; Atlantans Enter Events

The twenty-sixth annual tennis tournament for the championship of the south will be held on the nine-turf courts of the New Orleans Lawn Tennis club, beginning Monday, June 23.

There will be three events—men's singles, men's doubles and ladies' singles—and prizes will be awarded the winners in the different events. In each event consolation singles tournaments will be held, to which all players defeated in the first round actually played will be eligible. Prizes will be awarded the winners.

The winner of the men's singles will be called upon to play Carleton W. Smith, of Atlanta, the winner of the singles championship in 1912 and present holder of the challenge cup for that event. This cup was presented by the Atlanta Athletic club and becomes the property of the player winning it three times. It has been won twice by Conrad B. Doyle, of Washington, D. C., twice by Nat Thornton, of Atlanta, and once each by T. B. Pell, of New York and R. G. Hunt, of California.

Challenge Cups.

The challenge cups in men's doubles, presented by the Atlanta Athletic club, will become the permanent property of the team winning them three times. The present holders are C. Y. Smith and Nat Thornton, of Atlanta. These cups have been won twice by R. B. Doyle and H. E. Doyle, twice by B. M. Grant and Nat Thornton, of Atlanta, and once by H. G. Whitehead and T. H. Winston, of Norfolk, and T. B. Pell and W. C. Grant, of New York. The holders of this event are required to play through.

The challenge cup in ladies' singles is presented by the New Orleans Lawn Tennis club and becomes the permanent property of the person winning it three times. The winner of the ladies' singles will have the privilege of challenging Mrs. Sanders Taylor for the championship of the south.

The winners of the men's doubles will represent the south in the United States Lawn Tennis association sectional doubles at Chicago. The winners of these matches have the privilege of challenging the national champions at Newport.

Doubles to Chicago.

The winners of the southern doubles will be sent to Chicago at the expense of the New Orleans Lawn Tennis club.

The rules of the United States Lawn Tennis association will govern the meeting and Wright & Ditson championship balls will be used in all matches.

All matches in the men's singles will be the best two out of three, except in the final and challenge rounds, when they will be the best three out of five. All matches in the men's doubles will be the best three out of five. All ladies' matches will be best two out of three sets.

News Wise and Otherwise Of Boys Who Put 'Em Over

Among the unique advertising campaigns recently launched in the national and local advertising fields is that of the Firestone Wire and Rubber company, of Akron, Ohio. Wylie West, local branch manager for the Firestone tires, said yesterday "that the object of the unique plan in selling the people's attention to our ads is to use a picture of some popular boy from each important city in this country; for instance, in today's advertisement appearing in The Constitution and Sunday papers all over this country, we are running a pen drawing of the Atlanta Athletic club, thus calling the attention of Atlanta people to our advertisements. Every prominent club in this country will be run in this series of advertisements that will appear from time to time in both the magazines and newspapprs. Today's advertisement will place Atlanta's name in thousands of homes all over the United States."

With congratulations showered on them by Dr. C. E. Dutton, chairman of the A. A. A. touring committee, President H. C. Clark, of the Minneapolis Automobile club, and others prominent in motordom, the Mitchell "Moose" pathfinding car left here Sunday at 2 p. m. for its 1,233-mile trip to Glacier park, laying out the route of the A. A. A. national tour.

Frank Zirbes, the celebrated Mitchell driver, who has handled the wheel in Mitchell cars in many similar runs, predicts that his "Moose" will make a clean-cut run in this annual touring classic of the A. A. A. The Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana roads are good at times and bad at others, so the progress of the Mitchell will be watched with interest by the thousands of motorists all over the country who are interested in the historic "Golden" tour this year.

Unlike other national tours, the 1913 run, starting from Minneapolis, July 11, will be accompanied by a hotel train on the Great Northern railroad, which will furnish meals and sleeping quarters for the tourists and their wives and families. Visiting Indians at a close range, some of nature's most glorious mountain scenery, and going through the heart of the greatest wheat-growing section in the United States, the tour will be alive with interest every mile of the route.

In the pathfinding Mitchell "Moose" are Driver Frank Zirbes, W. S. Forman, of Chicago, and C. A. Stedman, of Minneapolis, who is taking the road information for use in the tour book.

United States Government Buys Alco trucks. Largest single order.

M. Nabors, Atlanta manager for Alco trucks, received the following telegram from their New York office:

"Closed order today, immediate delivery, eighty Alco three and one-half ton trucks for use in United States service in New York city, approximating a quarter of million dollars. Biggest sale ever made in motor truck business. Alco was in competition with every leading gasoline and electric truck. Generally considered biggest tribute ever paid a motor truck.

"AMERICAN LOCOMOTIVE CO.,
"New York."

J. H. Sims, southern district manager of the Alco truck, returned Saturday from a trip through the southern states. Mr. Sims reports that the business outlook is fine, and disposed of eight 3½-ton trucks while on his trip.

The first of the new 1914 Henderson motor cars arrived in the city Saturday. The new car is attracting a great deal of attention, as it is the first among the popular-priced cars to adopt the wire wheel as part of the 1914 equipment.

N. Nelms, local manager of the Imperial Tire company, has adopted a unique way of giving people who buy his tires full service when they have any trouble with tires. Mr. Nelms has installed automobiles which are manned by two expert tire men, and when an auto owner gets in trouble, all he needs to do is to call the Imperial Tire company and they will immediately take care of him.

Steam Locomotion Doomed.

(From The Toledo Blade.)

The pioneers in th substitution of electric motive power for steam upon the railroads merely hoped that the costs of operation would be smaller than they were under the old system. But they did not know that they would be. They had no experience to draw upon. They were compelled by the circumstances to make the venture. It is only within recent months that they could say that the venture had paid.

Now, under tests of varied character, it has been demonstrated that the cost of electric operation is practically about five-eighths that of doing the same work with steam locomotion. The electric locomotive has proved to have decided advantages in being able to use its entire weight for tractive effort, in making a greater mileage per year than the steam locomotive and in needing fewer repairs.

The saving is sufficient to warrant every railroad in the country undertaking the labor of electrification. It is sufficient to warrant the public looking forward to a day very near at hand when tht smoke and grime-making locomotive will be a part of the past.

GABBY CRAVATH LEADS NATIONAL Phillies' Slugger Going at a Strong Clip—Huggins and Konetchy Have Made the Most Number of Hits.

Gabby Cravath, the hard-hitting Philadelphian, continues to lead the National league batters, with Vlox and Wagner of Pittsburg pushing right close behind him.

Huggins and Konetchy, of St. Louis, have made the most number of singles this season, they having cracked loose sixty-three bingles each to date.

Huggins, with forty-three tallies, is easily the leading run-getter. His teammate, Konetchy, is the nearest to him in this respect, the "Big Train" having dented the pan with his spikes thirty-nine times.

These figures include the players who have batted better than .250, and who have participated in fifteen or more games, including those played Wednesday, June 18.

U. M. STUDENTS VISIT FEDERAL RUBBER PLANT

Study Manufacture of Tires and Other Goods at Establishment in Cudahy.

The University of Minnesota believes in a judicious combination of theory and practice in its instruction.

In pursuance of this modern idea, every year this progressive institution sends its senior class in chemistry on a tour of inspection of the country's representative industries in which applied chemistry and the latest development of laboratory methods have developed products of the highest type.

This year, the distinction of being selected by the university as representative of the entire pneumatic tire industry, fell to the Federal Rubber Manufacturing company of Milwaukee, makers of Federal tires and mechanical rubber goods. On Friday, the entire graduating class of 1913 visited the federal plant at Cudahy, in charge of Drs. Fraery and Harding, making a complete tour of the factories and a careful study of laboratory work as applied to the production of Federal tires and rubber products.

The close connection between laboratory work and commercial production was brought directly home to the visitors, who were able to realize from the practical demonstrations made the vital importance of applied chemistry to a modern manufacturing plant in the reduction of its production costs, promotion of quality, utilization of byproducts, etc.

After a tour of the plant was completed, the entire party were guests of the Federal company at luncheon. In the absence of President Byron C. Dowse, G. H. Hamilton welcomed the visitors in behalf of the company, expressing his appreciation of the honor done in selecting the Federal plant for the purposes of the visit.

Dr. Fraery, in speaking of the visit, said: "I am more than pleased with the success of our tour thus far, and am fully convinced that our time in the Federal laboratory and plant today has been productive of valuable information and results. Our party has seen in actual practice in one of the country's greatest industrial institutions, the practical application of many of the theories that we have been teaching in the University of Minnesota. The class of 1913 is certainly under many obligations to the Federal Rubber Manufacturing company for its practical and interesting demonstrations and uniform courtesy."

HOW MAN'S EFFICIENCY HAS BEEN INCREASED

By the "J.B.L." Cascade

Over 200,000 people have found that this new method of Internal Bathing opens them always up to "Concert Pitch."

That by using it once a week their power for intense work is doubled, their clean, pure and sweet as nature intended it to be.

That biliousness, with its attendant nervousness, "Blueness" and depression no longer pulls down their efficiency, but they constantly feel bright, confident and capable; also that the more serious ills of constipation (appendicitis for instance) can not progress where the "J. B. L. Cascade" is used.

It is aptly termed "Nature's Own Cure for Constipation," for its operation is just as safe and natural as washing your hands.

Until recently the "J. B. L. Cascade" has been available only by applying to its inventor, Charles A. Tyrrell, M. D., of New York City.

Dr. Tyrrell can do it now, however, has become universal, through the recommendation of a few friends using it. Call at our main store and we will be glad to show you the "J. B. L. Cascade" and explain it in detail.

We are also distributing a very interesting Booklet on Internal Bathing, called "Why Man of Today Is Only 50 Per Cent Efficient," which can be obtained on request, without cost. Ask us for it today and inform yourself on this new and sane method of curing constipation without drugs.

COTTON LOST GROUND UNDER REALIZING

Market Opened Steady at Decline, Caused by Heavy Selling.

New York, June 21.—The cotton market was lower today, under heavy realizing by old longs and scattered selling, which was encouraged by the appearance of the weather map and rumors that bullish interests were taking profits on every favorable opportunity. The close was steady at a net loss of from 12 to 21 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 4 to 5 points and sold 10 to 13 points net lower during the early trading in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables, favorable weekly crop reviews and indications for continued good weather over the week-end. Renewed covering by July shorts checked the decline and the near month rallied about 6 points from the lowest during the middle of the morning, but new crop positions showed little improvement and as soon as a moderate demand from old crop shorts had been supplied, the entire list again weakened. Selling was active later and the close was at the lowest level of the day.

Memphis was credited with buying considerable cotton here during the early trading, and there was also some scattered demand from other southern sources, including New Orleans, which was attributed to covering of shorts, but European and local longs were heavy sellers and the decline seemed to inspire some fresh selling for a turn on the short side. According to estimates circulating here this morning the European long interest in local contracts has been reduced by at least 500,000 bales during the past two weeks as a result of realizing. Private cables reported continued continental realizing in the Liverpool market this morning and after sales there were probably absorbed on the moderate break, buying on the short end of straddles, the long end of which had been liquidated here yesterday afternoon. Reviews of the dry goods trade showed no important changes and Fall River mills are said to be pretty well sold up for July and August delivery.

Spot cotton quiet, 10 points off. Middling uplands, 12.40c; middling gulf, 12.65c.

New Orleans Cotton.

New Orleans, June 21.—The cotton market was under considerable pressure during the gossip of the floor being that professional traders were selling in an effort which was fairly successful, to bring about a weak and reaction after a week of bull tactics. In the early part of the session, the market was fairly steady but later it gave way sharply, but at that, the decline was within rather narrow limits.

The opening was steady at a decline of 8 to 6 points, on-spoor cables and a good weather map. In the early trading, prices went 7 to 9 points down, under certain crops and telegrams from Texas predicting that rains at several points as dates ranged from the first to the twentieth of July. Reare claimed that this was conclusive proof that the crop is not as late as the bull element has been contending. A moderate amount of fresh long buying came in as prices recovered to within one to three points of yesterday's close. Around the middle of the morning heavy selling made its appearance and the market broke to a level 9 to 14 points under the last figures, but the close was firm at a net loss of 6 to 12 points.

The weather map was warm and dry, except for a few showers in the northern part of the belt. The forecast promised little change in weather conditions over Sunday except that the indications are for more local precipitation in the western belt.

Spot cotton quiet; there was a chance that the trouble conditions in Arkansas would be relieved.

Spot cotton quiet, unchanged; middling, 12 9-16, sales on the spot, 31 bales; to arrive, none; low middling, 11 15-16; good ordinary, 11 5-8; strict good ordinary, 12 1-8; low middling, 12 3-8; strict low middling, 12 5-8; middling, 12 13-16; strict middling, 12 7-8; good middling, 13 1-16; strict good middling, 13 1-4; middling fair, 13 11-16; nominal; middling to fair, 14 1-16; nominal; receipts, 14; 7,16, nominal; receipts, 378; stock, 73,351.

Dry Goods.

New York, June 21.—Many small mail orders are coming in covering fall and winter wear and hosiery orders for spring are light. Linen orders are held back by apprehension of tariff conditions. Raw silk is steady.

New York, June 21.—During the past week the market has advanced about $2 a bale under heavy buying for long account and for actual consumers' interest. This demand has followed as the result of the strength shown by the remainder of the old crop, and the continued good spot demand on Europe. These circumstances led to the feeling that any setback to the new crop would quickly reflect itself in an advancing market, and consequently shorts have covered freely. However, crop reports, as a whole, are very favorable and although the time is approaching when complaints may be expected, they will find the short interest much reduced and some speculative long interest to be liquidated.

STRENGTH WAS SHOWN IN THE WHEAT MARKET

Offerings Were Light, and Wet Weather Favored the Bulls.

Chicago, June 21.—Balkan difficulties received some of the credit today for an advance in wheat. Unfavorable weather in both the spring and winter crop territory did the rest. Closing prices were steadyat 2-8 to 1 above last night. Corn finished 1-4 to 3-4 down; oats off 3-8 to 1-2@3-8 and provisions varying from 2 1-2 decline to an outturn of 5@7 1-2.

Wheat traders who have recently been ignoring cables were confronted today by reports that consols had been disturbed by demands for $200,000,000 indemnity to the opponents of Turkey. The security market on this side was also said to reflect fear of serious European troubles. Bull speculators here were not slow to apply the news to the wheat situatio nand urge that export demand would be stimulated even if peace should later prove unfounded. Rain interference with the Kansas harvest and lack of moisture for spring wheat graft in South Dakota were sufficient additional incentives for bulls to take all wheat offering. A brief dip in prices at the opening turned the bull exception to bullish control. Export clearances of wheat and flour today equaled 436,000 bushels. Primary receipts of wheat were 320,000 bushels, a year ago 252,000 bushels.

Corn weakened owing to breaking of the drought in a large part of Illinois. Traders were cautious, however, about pressing the selling side until the final extent of the rains became known.

Weather reports from all sections heretofore dry eased oats.

Steadiness in the hog market held provisions within a narrow range. Laird monopolized most of the business.

GRIFFIN BUTCHERS CLAIM PURE PENS

Asserted That Allegations of Insanitary Conditions Made by H. C. Hutchens Are Greatly Exaggerated.

Griffin, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—The report made by Assistant State Veterinarian H. C. Hutchens concerning the slaughter pens at this place is greatly resented by the meat dealers of Griffin. Each dealer has been interviewed, and with one accord they all say an injustice has been done them, and that the report is a great exaggeration of the true state of affairs.

T. E. Powell, one of the leading dealers, says his slaughter pen is located outside the city in a good situation, and that it is cleaned out thoroughly at least once a week.

T. J. Oxford, who conducts another slaughtering pen a little further from the city, says conditions are not so bad at his place as Dr. Hutchens says. He says, furthermore, that a family of six persons living within 75 yards of his slaughter pen have never made any complaint of foul odors, and that during the eight years this large family has lived so near the pen there has been no case of sickness.

D. S. Johnson states that Dr. Hutchens called his plate and was so well pleased with it that he complimented him on its appearance and stated that he wanted a photograph of it to use in a book he would print.

All the butchers admit that they cannot keep their places like the large city concerns, who use machinery, steam and electric power and hot water are at command, but declare that their meat is handled in as cleanly a manner as can possibly be done without city conveniences.

To show their confidence in the cleanliness of their slaughter pens, the meat dealers of Griffin, Messrs. Johnson, Oxford and Powell, will have in tomorrow's local daily papers quarter and half-page advertisements stating the misapplication of Dr. Hutchens report to their places.

D. S. Johnson goes so far as to say that he will give $100 to a charitable institution if the report applies to his place. J. E. Powell says in his advertisement that on last Tuesday the state inspector told his slaughter pen manager that his place was all right. Indignation on the matter is growing more intense.

"Hunger Strike" Wins.

London, June 21.—Ill health arising from a "hunger strike" resulted today in the release of Miss Laure Geralding Lennox, formerly editor of The Suffragette, who was sentenced to six months' imprisonment by the central criminal court on June 17 for conspiring to damage property.

NEW PAVEMENT URGED FOR SOUTH PRYOR ST.

Mass Meeting in Interest of Repaving Will Be Held on Next Thursday.

A big 10-foot sign stretched at the corner of Georgia avenue and Pryor street, in red letters, reads:

"Repave South Pryor Street or Bust!" You are invited to attend a mass meeting on next Thursday night, at the Pryor street school building, to help us. South Side Improvement Club."

The sign and the call for the big mass meeting was the outcome of a large, attended meeting of citizens Friday night at the home of R. B. Deavors, 488 South Pryor street.

For many months meetings have been held from time to time, and the question of a new pavement for this thoroughfare has been agitated, but so far without any definite promises or results.

"We've simply reached the limit," said Chairman J. H. Bradfield Friday night. "Here's South Pryor street, the most important thoroughfare on the whole south side, the only street that is the logical outlet for our section, the only street which parallels the Lakewood property, and yet it is so bad and rough, and the old Belgian blocks are so worn and sunken, that all kinds of vehicles give us the dodge—and I don't blame them. This street ought to be one of the main, smooth thoroughfares of the city—and we are going to make it that, too, or know the reason why."

The following committee was appointed from among those present Friday night, and directed to "get busy": J. H. Bradfield, Joseph Franklin, J. L. Merrill, A. M. Moore, A. Abelson, C. E. Register, Leo Berg, Jr., Heyfus, H. Weinberg, C. D. Knight, C. L. Dean, R. B. Deavors, C. H. Kelley, Press Huddleston, J. L. McCord, J. L. Poole, H. Cronheim, Henry Alexander, G. D. Kitchens, Sol Cronheim and John W. Alexander.

All south side citizens are invited to the big mass meeting at the Pryor street school building next Thursday night, and it is hoped that enough pressure can be brought to bear on the county commissioners to have them put a new pavement on this street while their paving plant is located in that section at work on Georgia avenue.

ATLANTANS WILL HEAR MUSIC FROM NEW OPERA

Atlantans will be given an opportunity for the first time to hear music from the new Wolf-Ferrari opera, "The Jewels of the Madonna."

This winderful music will make up a part of the program for the free organ concert this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Auditorium-Armory under Atlanta Music Festival auspices. The general public of Atlanta and all visitors who happen to be in the city over Sunday are cordialy invited to attend.

The complete program follows:

Overture to the Opera "Raymond"—Ambrolse Thomas.

Meditation in C—John A. West.

Swedish Wedding March—Soderman.

Ballet Music from "La Reine de Saba"—Gounod.

This program, from a standpoint of musical excellence, and also from the viewpoint of the melody-loving public, is one of the most interesting that the association has offered this summer.

WALLACE NAMED HEAD OF THE TEXTILE MEN

Charleston, S. C., June 21.—A harbor excursion and a trolley ride this morning completed the program of the Southern Textile association convention at the Isle of Palms.

The new officers are:

T. B. Wallace, of Greenville, S. C., president; H. H. Goodroe, of Yazoo City, Miss., F. E. Hamer, of Alexander City, Ala., E. E. Bowen, of Greers, S. C., and M. E. Stevens, of LaGrange, Ga., vice presidents; A. B. Carter, of Athens, Ga., secretary; Marshall Dilling, of Gastonia, N. C., treasurer.

The next place of meeting will be named by the board of governors later. Secretary Carter declared that this convention was the best ever held by the association.

THRESHING GRAIN CROP AT STATE SANITARIUM

Milledgeville, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—The farming force of the state sanitarium is now engaged in threshing the large crop of grain produced at the institution this season under the direction of G. W. Hollinshead, farm steward. The acreage planted was a large one, and the yield generous. Altogether the authorities expect to thresh out several thousand bushels. The force is now engaged in plowing in peas on the land upon which the oat crop was grown, and the thorough, systematic manner in which this is being done guarantees a splendid crop of peas as well.

PRICE WILL NOT NAME ASSISTANT UNTIL JULY

Athens, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Commissioner-elect Jim Price, of the agricultural department of the state, was in Athens today and stated in reference to the generally circulated report that he might appoint Dan G. Hughes, son of Congressman Dudley Hughes, as assistant commissioner, that he had not made an appointment nor promised appointment to anybody or for anybody.

He stated further that the assistant's place is taking on the appearance of a hoodoo, as there are now just thirteen candidates for the position. He declares that he will give every applicant a fair and square consideration, but will not make an announcement till he is sworn into office on the first of July.

DILLON IS OVERCOME BY WASHINGTON HEAT

Washington, June 21.—(Special.)—J. R. M. Dillon, of Atlanta, was overcome by the heat on the streets of Washington today, and was taken to the emergency hospital, where he is being treated.

At the hospital it was said Mr. Dillon was brought there in an automobile by a friend and was suffering with heat prostration.

NEGRO CHAUFFEUR WHO KILLED GIRL HELD BLAMELESS

Savannah, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—At a police court hearing today Frank Rivers, the negro chauffeur who ran over and killed Miss Mary Moore on Thursday, was held blameless by Recorder Schwarz.

The occupants of the car, Miss Ruth Ely and her visiting guests, Miss Katherine Crampton, of Mobile; Miss Virginia Wright, of New York; Miss Mary Bellamy, of Wilmington, N. C., and Miss Perkins, of Savannah, appeared in court to testify for the negro, who was driving them.

It was not established to the satisfaction of the recorder that Rivers was exceeding the speed limit. One witness declared he was going twenty-five miles an hour on the narrow street, but the young society women were all certain he was going at a slow pace and declared he was driving twelve miles an hour.

It was shown that Miss Moore became frightened and backed into the car. The negro then lost his head and ran over the prostrate form two or three times. There may be a further investigation of the tragedy by the grand jury. Miss Moore's remains were taken to her home in Alabama today for interment.

NEARLY 200 NEW LAWS FOR MISSOURI PEOPLE

Kansas City, June 21.—Nearly 200 laws passed by the last legislature will become effective in Missouri on Monday. Probably the one of greatest interest is the Orr anti-trust law regulating fire insurance companies. It is this bill that caused more than 150 insurance companies to suspend writing business throughout the state. It is expected that lawyers next week will attack the Orr bill in the supreme court in an effort to have it declared unconstitutional.

VICE UNDER CONTROL, SAYS CHIEF BEAVERS

Quotes Statistics to Show That Closing of Tenderloin Has Benefited Atlanta.

Comparing statistics of the present with those of four years ago, when the first crusade was launched against the restricted zone, Chief James L. Beavers declared yesterday that vice conditions in Atlanta are now better than ever before in the city's history.

He said there had been no noticeable spread of questionable resorts into residential sections and that the fear of this evil was spread by a coterie of calamity howlers who were affected by the closing of the tenderloin. Figures show, he says, that his reform methods have been highly successful.

During the first six months of 1909, when the grand jury and police commission ordered the vice resorts to remove from Collins street, there came fifty-seven complaints to police headquarters from citizens who signed petitions requesting the removal of questionable houses from residential districts.

The city, at that time, he said, was flooded with reports of all character. Complaints came to police station in a steady stream and it was found almost necessary to segregate the disorderly houses in the recently dismantled Manhattan avenue section.

The chief showed, however, that during the ten months that have elapsed since his campaign against vice there have been only forty-one complaints against resorts in any section of the city, and that they came intermittently—sometimes as few as only three a month. The women and girls who ply their trade on the streets, he declared, have decreased wonderfully.

The chief expressed the belief that the situation is under control and that the police are capable of suppressing vice as effectively as the department of any modern metropolis. He has received commendation from many of the nation's most conspicuous crusade leaders, he said, a number of whom have visited him during recent months.

NEARLY SUFFOCATED HIDING IN CLOSET FROM DETECTIVES

Savannah, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—In an effort to escape a detective, Morris Kramer, a young Austrian, was nearly suffocated in a closet in a West Broad street store today.

Kramer is wanted in New York for the abandonment of his wife and several children. He has been in Savannah several weeks as a clerk in a clothing store, and, according to the police, was planning to marry a Savannah woman. This is denied by Kramer.

When the abandonment warrant arrived from New York and a detective went to serve it, Kramer locked himself in a closet of the store. He was prostrated when pulled out by the officer. He is held for the New York authorities.

Y. M. C. A. CAMPAIGN FOR NEGROES NEAR END

The teams that set out on the first of the month to raise a sum of money for the new Y. M. C. A. building for negroes, have only one more week in which to see the contributors. This campaign, known as the "Dollar a Man for the Y. M. C. A." campaign, will come to a close June 29. The captains of the various teams have been meeting twice a week during the present month, discussing plans, reporting the money collected and making final preparations for the wind-up.

Among the subscribers that have paid in full during the past week are M. J. Lee, $35; Felix Lyles, $25; T. K. Gibson, $20; W. G. Cleveland, $25; Professor R. G. Brawley, $10; R. L. Morrison, $5; J. B. Sullivan, $5; Isaiah Grandberry, $5; William Burton, $5; J. H. Traylor, Sr., $5; George Butler, $5, and F. L. Brown, $5. Quite a number have paid a part of their pledges, and this list grows from day to day.

"SACRED HARP" SONGS FOR VETERANS TODAY

If you love old-fashioned music, sung in the olden way, then hear the sacred harp singers, under R. L. Stanley, of this city, sing at the Soldiers' home at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Besides a number of classical and sacred airs which the singers will render, the "old boys" themselves will sing ante-bellum songs in their own fashion.

One hundred and fifteen strong, they plan to make the rafters of their assembly room ring with the notes of "Annie Laurie," "Old Black Joe," "The Bonnie Blue Flag" and other airs.

WILL OF MORGAN DECLARED MODEL

D. Remsen, Expert, Discusses Testaments of Millionaires. Wills of Harriman, Plant and Others Termed Unsafe.

Pittsburg, June 21.—Daniel S. Remsen, of the New York bar, an authority on the post-mortem administration of wealth, told the members of the Pennsylvania Bankers' association today that the wills of the late Edward H. Harriman, Albert C. Bostwick, Charles T. Yerkes, Henry B. Plant, Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, Robert Mather and other prominent persons he mentioned, were unsafe models to follow. As a type of the "safe and sound" will to be cited the will of J. Pierpont Morgan. Mr. Remsen's address, delivered at the annual meeting of the association, was entitled, "A Plea for the Scientific Preparation of Wills."

The way to get better wills, said Mr. Remsen, was to "make them." Lawyers were able and willing if that service was demanded by their clients, said, "must give his lawyer a fair chance and demand his best service. When his will is completed he must demand that it be carefully filed while he is alive and able to repair any defects or ambiguities that may be discovered. After this method," he added, produced the will of Mr. Morgan.

The Harriman Will Unsafe.

A "safe" will, Mr. Remsen defined as one free from danger. The word "sound," he said, meant "without a flaw." The safe will was one written as to insure the fulfillment of the maker's wishes. The sound will was one that could be enforced even though it might not insure the results the maker wished. The Harriman will, he asserted, was clearly sound, but must be classed as unsafe. The will of the late Samuel J. Tilden was cited as a conspicuous example of the will that was both unsafe and unsound.

"For Mr. Harriman's purpose," he said, "his will is not open to criticism. When, however, it becomes the subject of great praise in the public press as a model for the preparation of other will I cannot, in justice to the thousands of innocent people all over this country who will follow in this will as their own, let this opportunity pass without sounding a note of warning. In the first place, as a lawyer and one who has had to do with the conditions with which they were dealing. They were preparing Mr. Harriman's will, not a will for any other wife. It is only when this will is viewed as a precedent, when people copy it, when it is used to fit quite different kinds of wills to quite different circumstances that it presents objectionable features. Indeed, all wills may be said to present objectionable features when used as precedents without competent legal advice.

The Bostwick Will.

"For an example of a perfectly sound will that is exceedingly unsafe and liable to defeat the wishes of its maker let me refer to the will of the late Albert C. Bostwick, son of Jabez A. Bostwick, of Standard Oil fame. His will was substantially the same as the Harriman will. Like Harriman, Bostwick gave everything to his wife. The important difference in the two cases was created by the following circumstances: Bostwick had four children born to him after he made his will and Harriman had five. Mr. Harriman took all the property given to him by her husband. Mrs. Bostwick did not. The four Bostwick children born after the making of the will took the bulk of the estate as if no will had been made. Mrs. Bostwick took what was left and each child born before the making of the will got nothing.

"The late J. Jenkins McComb made millions in his lifetime from a little patented article—the thing one buys pounds around cotton bales; a little piece of iron known as a cotton tie. At the time of his death he was the owner of the far-famed Spanish or Navarro flats in New York, now called the Central Park apartments. The litigation concerning that will was long and bitter. It resulted in the destruction of several trusts, including a trust for three great apartment buildings. It wiped out the estate designed to prevent a particular marriage in his family, and in a large measure defeated the objects of his plans. I have no means of estimating the cost of this litigation, with accuracy, but we are told that the executors expended between $50,000 and $75,000 in making an unsuccessful attempt to sustain the will. Nothing is known of what it cost the heirs.

The Plant Will.

"The late Henry B. Plant, the principal owner of the Atlantic coast system of railroads in Florida, was also a resident of New York. He took chances with the rule against perpetuities, and his huge trust failed to benefit his descendants, who failed and in effort his will was adjudged void. The estate, which originally consisted of $20,000,000 worth of property, was largely consumed in litigation concerning his will is also said to have been enormous, exceeding half a million dollars on both sides.

"What does that mean? It means that too little attention is given to the plan and preparation of the will. It means that the average person about to make a will treats it as a matter of minor importance, less indeed than the making of a simple contract. He is in haste. He explains to his lawyer that he wants a short, plain, simple will. He then makes known his wishes. He does not, as a rule, give his instructions the chances are more than even that his lawyer finds it difficult, if not impossible, to accomplish all his client wishes.

"Then comes the danger. The client intimates to his lawyer that he wishes a quick work and minimum fee. He gets what he orders, but not what he wishes. He gets something that his lawyer does not wish to give him, but it is the best he can do under the limitations imposed. The client has made his lawyer violate a fundamental rule for good work. Whatever the haste must be not in a hurry. The best work can never be done by a perturbed mind."

Client Usually at Fault.

"After the maker of the will is dead each of the heirs employs a lawyer to search for flaws in the will. The probabilities are that something great or small will be discovered. The unfortunate lawyer who drew the will is then in trouble. He is unjustly blamed when the fault lies at his client's door. He is blamed because he omitted something from the will, because he did not omit something form the will; because some part of the will when applied to facts unknown to him has an uncertain or double meaning. He is blamed because he did not foresee and provide against every possible contingency that might arise in connection with the testator's family and estate before and after death. In short the lawyer is criticised by all if anything goes wrong and by some if everything goes right and in accordance with the wishes of the deceased."

WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGN FOR CORN SHOW FUNDS

Indications Are That This Year's Show Will Be Record-Breaker.

Backed by a wide and enthusiastic sentiment in favor of making the 1913 Georgia Corn show the greatest in the movement's history, the special committees of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce will enter in earnest this week into their whirlwind campaign to raise money for the show. A considerable portion of the necessary sum has already been subscribed and all the committees expect to finish by Wednesday.

The movement has been endorsed by leaders in every business and profession, and particular stress has been laid on the fact that not only the prosperity of the rural districts, but the growth of Georgia's cities and the advancement of the state as a whole is dependent on learning the lesson of crop diversification.

"The movement which the corn club work represents," says Governor-elect John M. Slaton, "is more important than any legislation. It lies at the very base of prosperity for the individual and the state. It is beyond legislation. It represents the greatest work that can be carried on, and deserves the support of city and country alike."

Colonel W. L. Peel, of the American National bank, says:

"The county will have already accomplished a great work. I am informed that the yield of corn in Georgia was increased last year by over 12,000,000 bushels. The best of it is that these boys are teaching their daddies how to raise corn. The movement is one that everybody should help along. The prosperity of Georgia should help along.

"We had four of the corn club boys in our home last year, and four the year before, and we are going to have four again. They are fine, manly youngsters."

Hawkins Will Contribute.

Mr. Frank Hawkins, of the Third National bank, says:

"Crop diversification is the salvation of the south. That means in Georgia that we must learn to raise our food stuffs. I think the Georgia Corn club work is the most splendid work now operating in this direction. I contributed to it last year and I will gladly contribute again this year."

Colonel Asa G. Lowry, president of the Lowry National bank, says:

"The corn club boys are beginning to teach a very valuable thing. The old man used to be satisfied with fifteen bushels to the acre, and was inclined to laugh at the boy who he set out to make twenty. Now he knows better and is helping the boy. I don't know of any greater agricultural movement than this, and it should be encouraged in every possible way."

W. S. Lounsbury, of the Travelers' bank, says of the corn show:

"The future prosperity of Georgia depends on her becoming a self-sustaining state. She must raise her food supplies at home. The boll weevil work in Texas the boll weevil was a blessing in disguise, because it forced on the farmers the idea of diversification. Georgia is warned in advance. The remedy is at hand. If we plant plenty of corn and grain the boll weevil cannot hurt us. The corn club work is doing more than any one influence in the right direction and deserves everybody's support."

Ottley Praises Work.

J. K. Ottley, of the Fourth National bank, says:

"The whole state is alive to the value of corn club work, and we are beginning to realize more and more that a splendid citizenship is coming to the boys the annual Georgia Corn show is. I entertained some of these boys at my home last year and will be glad to have some of them with me again this year."

Chas. L. Currier, of the Atlanta National bank, says:

"Georgia has simply got to raise her food stuffs to make her cotton crop pay, and the corn club boys will be the better. The farmers cannot pay $1.25 a bushel for imported corn and then make cotton pay anything. I think a start is being made in the right direction by the boys' corn clubs and Georgia Corn show work."

Similar expressions have been received by Secretary Walter G. Cooper from scores of other prominent Atlantans, and subscriptions are coming in from all branches of business and industry.

BRUNDIDGE IS LEADING IN THE ARKANSAS RACE

Little Rock, Ark., June 21.—Incomplete returns from 40 of 75 counties in the state give Stephen H. Brundidge a lead of 2,000 over George W. Hayes at the democratic state-wide primary held here today. Brundidge is now governor to succeed Joseph T. Robinson, who resigned in March to be one United States senator. At Brundidge headquarters it is figured this ratio of gain means the nomination of Brundidge by a majority of 10,000.

J. A. Futrelee, the present acting governor, was named by the legislature and succeeded W. A. Oldham, president of the senate, who became governor upon Robinson's retirement.

SOLD TOO MUCH BOOZE TO THE WRONG BOOZE

Davenport Bailey, 20 years old and as black as the proverbial ace of spades ever dared to be, dealt too much in and with Booze.

Bailey, who sold a pint of booze to one Garrett Booze. Two detectives happened to witness the transaction. Both customer Booze and Bailey's stock of booze, Bailey included, were taken to police headquarters and charged with violating the liquor ordinance.

Scientific Shoveling.

(From the July Popular Mechanics Magazine.)

For a first-class shoveler there is a particular shovel load at which he will do his biggest day's work with no increase of effort on his part. To determine what this load is, a series of tests were made by the men at the Bethlehem Steel company. Experienced shovelers, who cold be depended on to do trustworthy work, were selected and tests were made with shovel loads varying from five pounds to forty pounds, with the result that a load of twenty-one pounds was found to be one giving the greatest efficiency. With the twenty-one-pound load a shoveler will do as much as 20 per cent more work than with loads that are a great deal more or a great deal less than this, and with less effort.

Chinese Student at Georgia . Makes $80,000 During Course

Athens, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—John Low Young, of Canton, China, a member of the graduating class of the University of Georgia this week, completing the course in agriculture, left today for New York, where he will spend several months and then return to his home in China. He has done what few students in any institution have ever accomplished. He has made more than $80,000 while taking his agricultural college course in this country—made it buying and exporting cotton.

He is wealthy in his own name, to begin with, and is a partner of a millionaire brother who is interested in China end of the business. The two have an area in south China of more than three hundred square miles, and they have organized and capitalized a corporation with a million dollars capital to develop that tract into a profitable cotton plantation, raising improved cotton selected for its climate and soil by Director DeLoach, of the Georgia experiment station, and employing the methods of cultivation the modern cotton planter used here instead of the primitive manner of cultivating the yellow Chinese fibre now grown in his land.

He has offered a number of graduates of the State College of Agriculture $250 a month and transportation both ways to sign contracts for five years with him and his company, to go to China and superintend the work of developing cotton production. Several have the proposition under consideration.

CONNALLY MAY CONDUCT GEORGIA ALUMNI BUREAU

Thomas W. Connally, an Atlanta attorney, whose work for various colleges and in establishing the University club in Atlanta, is well known, has been mentioned as the logical man to head the alumni and publicity bureau which the University of Georgia trustees propose to establish for the purpose of keeping in touch with its alumni.

Mr. Connally is a graduate of the law school of Athens, which he attended after receiving his bachelor of arts degree from Emory college, of which he was recently elected a trustee.

Three years ago he compiled a list of the alumni of Emory in which he secured the correct address and occupations of practically all the living alumni of the institution and which has been named as one of the most valuable pieces of work ever given a college.

It was his work in this and his known interest in college affairs that called the attention of the university trustees to him as the logical man for the new position, which will pay $200 per month, and will be supported by the university in the same way as the various professors are.

BOMBS DROPPED FROM AEROPLANE

Deal Death to the Soldiers of Huerta—Rebels Using Airship in Attack on Guaymas. Gunboats Forced to Flee.

Nagales, Ariz., June 21.—Reports here today were that the constitutionalists had driven General Ojeda and 1,000 federals back from Ortiz to Santa Rosa, some miles nearer his base, Guaymas and later had cut him off from his supplies. Without water and but scant rations the federal commander was reported tonight to be in a desperate situation.

Fifteen hundred rebels under Colonel Alvarado have gained Ojeda's rear according to reports to the Mexican consul here. The consulate so confirmed the report that Colonel Barron, who commanded the federals in the first battle near Santa Rosa several days ago, was killed.

The rebel war aeroplane, piloted by Didier Masson, the French aviator did much execution among the federals, it is said.

Masson, according to the message dropped one bomb that killed fifty-two men. These, and a hundred other federal dead together with seventy rebel dead and seventy wounded, were brought to Hermosillo.

Didier Masson, in his war aeroplane late today towered the gunboats Guerrero and Tampico to steam out to sea from Guaymas harbor, according to reports received by the constitutionalists committee here.

The French aviator was accompanied on his flights by Captain Manuel B. Medina, who acted as bombardier in dropping the bombs upon the town and driving the Mexican gunboats out of the harbor. Just before dusk Masson landed to get ammunition.

War of Extermination.

Rebels in northern Mexico are to be exterminated according to an announcement made here today by General Joquin Tellez, the federal commander, who arrived yesterday with 4,000 men to relieve the garrison at Nuevo Laredo, the Mexican town opposite Laredo. General Tellez says his command consists of 4,000 men. Two thousand are in the vicinity of Monterey and have orders to march to the border to assist in the campaign. The remaining 2,000 are stationed in Tamaulipas, Sabinas and Lampazo, all in the state of Nuevo Leon.

General Tellez reported that he had had fierce fights with the revels between Villa Lama in the state of Nuevo Leon, and Nuevo Laredo, in the state of Tamaulipas. The heaviest encounter took place two days ago when the federal troops succeeded in recapturing the town of Lampazas, in Nuevo Leon, after inflicting great losses on the rebels.

Huerta is Gratified.

Mexico City, June 21.—News of the arrival of the federal commander general Joaquin Telles at Nuevo Laredo has caused great satisfaction here. General Huerta professes confidence to believe that this means early opening of traffic on the National railway.

The report has been unofficially circulated that the fights at the line would bring recognition of the Mexican administration by the United States. Francis Marelis Blanquet, the minister of war, has promised the cabinet that he will have the railroad running before the end of this month.

Convict Ship "Success" Now in America.

The convict ship "Success," which was brought to this country last fall and is to be exhibited at the Panama-Pacific exposition, is, so far as is known, the oldest ship still in commission, and is one of the last relics of the old-time convict system in which torture played a leading part. This ship was built at Moulmain, British India, in 1790, is of the old east Indieman type and carries an armament of seven brass guns. The vessel carries the same equipment as it did when it was as a convict ship, including implements of torture, while wax figures appear in all the cells, representing the prisoners who occupied them years ago. Views of the ship are published in the July Popular Mechanics' magazine, and an article states:

"As a relic of bygone ideals and methods the ship is exceedingly interesting. Prior to 1820 there were 145 offenses for which the penalty was death, under the British laws. Now there are only two, murder and treason. Convict ships were used not only for transporting prisoners, but were used as prisons as well, and it often happened that a convict spent the remainder of his days on one ship."

BANDITS STILL AT BAY IN COFFEE CO. SWAMP

Edgar Carver, Member of Hold-Up Gang, Denies Participating in Shooting.

Waycross, Ga., June 21.—At a late hour this afternoon the posse had not captured the Solomon brothers and others suspected of connection with the attempted hold-up of an Atlantic Coast line freight train near Kirkland yesterday. The sheriff and posse have been guarding a swamp near Kirkland, where it is believed the men wanted are in hiding, but those on watch have obtained no sight of the men wanted.

Edgar Carver, who was arrested last night by the posse, suspected of being a member of the party that fired upon the train, is said to have admitting being on the train when the shooting occurred, but denies participating in the shooting.

Gillis Quits Chase.

Douglas, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Sheriff Gillis, of Coffee county, and his posse, have returned from Kirkland, in the lower part of the county, where they went to try to capture Randall Solomon and Andrew Solomon, who had been located in the house of Jesse Lewis, both of whom are charged with robbery of a freight train of the Atlantic Coast line road at Kirkland on Friday night.

The train had stopped at the water tank and one of the cars was broken open and a lot of merchandise stolen. Several men took part in the hold-up robbery. They were seen by the train crew, but escaped after putting a bullet through the hat of the conductor of the train.

Randall Solomon is also wanted as an escaped convict from the convict camp of Berrien county, having been convicted in Coffee county about two years ago for burning the store of E. L. Bledsoe, in that county.

Sheriff Gillis organized a strong posse that went to Kirkland yesterday in automobiles. They met within sight of the house where the Solomons were staying, but the refugees forewarned and escaped through a thick cornfield into a nearby swamp known as the "roundabout."

The sheriff of Wayne county was communicated with, and he also rushed to the scene on a special train, bringing well trained bloodhounds with him. The dogs were immediately put on the trail, but failed to catch the desperate men. It is said that the Solomons put snuff in their shoes to prevent the dogs from following them.

It is also stated that the Solomons have a shanty on one of the islands in the "roundabout," where they stay a part of the time. They are said to be well armed and are looked upon as desperate men. No effort will be spared to catch them.

NEGRO ON MOTORCYCLE CHASED BY FAST AUTO

Peachtree Stages Exciting Pursuit of Black Who Had Knocked Down Lady.

A pretty woman, a motorcycle and a negro, a motor car and three men furnished an abundance of excitement on Ponce de Leon and Peachtree yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock.

It happened this way. A woman attempted to cross Ponce de Leon in front of the ball park. She was knocked down by the negro on the motorcycle, who was hailing from the direction of Druid Hills. The negro, seeing the damage he had done, promptly put on more speed.

A man with an auto noticed the accident. Calling to Policemen Wiley and Barker to jump in his car, they shot up Ponce de Leon, past the Georgian Terrace and down Peachtree they went in pursuit. According to the officers the speedometer at one time registered near the 60-mile mark.

They ran opposite the negro at Forrest avenue and Peachtree at a slightly lower speed. Officer Wiley jumped out on the running board of his mechanical steed and grabbed the black and pulled him safely aboard the craft, the motorcycle in the interim going to smithereens, and then some. When locked in the bastille he gave his name as Oscar Johnson, a delivery man. The woman in the case was never found.

MURPHY A CONSPIRATOR, SAYS GOVERNOR SULZER

Albany, N. Y., June 21.—Accusing Charles F. Murphy of being "behind a conspiracy to blacken my character because I refused to do his bidding," Governor Sulzer tonight gave in detail his version of his break with the Tammany chieftain. The governor told newspaper correspondents a story bitter in its denunciation of Tammany's leader and replete with allegations that Murphy had attempted to influence the executive's action in matters of legislation, appointments and removal from office.

The governor said he had seen Murphy but three times since his inauguration. The last meeting was arranged by a friend who wanted to straighten the differences between the executive and the Tammany leader.

"I listened to his propositions," the governor said, "but I refused to do what he wanted me to do because in my opinion he was wrong."

"Was it as to patronage?" the governor was asked.

"Yes, and Stillwell and direct primaries. I told him not to issue orders to save Stillwell and to let the legislature pass a fair and just direct primary bill. He refused. I left him. That was the last and that was final.

"I came back to Albany a mad man, because some of my ideals had been shattered. I talked it over with Mrs. Sulzer because I have few confidants. I know I am surrounded by spies.

"When I finished telling the story to Mrs. Sulzer I said there are just three things for me to do—resign, surrender or fight. I have carefully considered it all and have made up my mind to fight. Mrs. Sulzer kissed me and said: 'You are right, go on with the fight. I think more of you now than I ever did in my life.'"

The governor declared that he had been threatened with ruin unless he did as he was bid.

"I have always answered," he said, 'as I am answering now, no man can ruin me but William Sulzer. I refused to do Murphy's bidding. I refused to do part of a criminal conspiracy to loot a state."

A Thrifty Emperor.

(From The Pall Mall Gazette.)

So ingrained were the habits of economy with the old Emperor William that even after he had assumed the imperial crown they never deserted him. The emperor gave the example. He always extinguished the candles himself and lowered the lamps before he left any room. When en villegiature at Ems or Baden guests invited to join the emperor at dinner at some restaurant were often embarrassed at the end of the meal to discover that it was a "pay party."

Doctors' Fee-Splitting.

The Journal of the Indiana State Medical association published month in which under the direction of the council of the association, contains in its current issue the views of a considerable number of leading physicians and surgeons of the state on the subject of "fee splitting," that is, cases in which the surgeon or specialist divides his fee with the physician who brings him the business. This is most naturally where the fee is to be split, the splitter will make it large enough to prevent his suffering by the splitting. The Journal says:

"Fee splitting in any guise must be suppressed by the medical profession, or the public will suppress it for us, and in a manner that will produce more than the business of the unethical profession. Human life are not legitimate objects of traffic by honorable physicians, and it is high time that we purge our profession of practical practices which, if much longer continued, will be suppressed by law."

TRICK OF JIU-JITSU SAVES OFFICER'S LIFE

L. E. Shumate Has Desperate Fight With Black Crazed by Cocaine.

The use of a jiu-jitsu trick which he had been taught by a Japanese acquaintance several years ago, last night saved the life of Policeman L. E. Shumate, when he was assailed by a burly negro at Strong street and North avenue.

The black had lunged at the policeman with a keen bladed knife, when Shumate, remembering the Japanese hold, caught the negro's wrist and threw his body over the shoulders.

The negro was brought to police headquarters and gave the name of Harrison Boyd, aged 22, a laborer of 471 North avenue. He was held under a charge of disorderly conduct and bond of $50.75 for trial in recorder's court Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock was demanded.

Shumate was painfully injured about the hands and head in the fight that preceded the negro's murder attempt. He had been called with his partner, Policeman Palmer, on motorcycles to the store of J. Cohen at Strong and North avenue.

The Boyd negro, half-crazed by cocaine, had terrorized the neighborhood for hours. On the way to the scene, Palmer's motorcycle broke down, and Shumate proceeded alone. When he arrived, the negro had been driven to bay by the neighbors, and was crouched behind an outhouse in the rear of the Cohen store.

As Shumate came around the corner of the store the wild black leaped upon his shoulders. There was a scuffle, in the policeman struck his assailant with a billie. It was wrenched from his hands.

As the negro broke free, he whipped out his knife and lunged for Shumate. At that moment, the policeman remembered the trick of jiu-jitsu taught him years ago.

The Nation's Chief Hostess.

(By Isabel Joyce in National Monthly for July.)

Mrs. Wilson is usually at home, by appointment, to her intimate friends at 5 o'clock, when tea is served in the red room. These functions are identical with those in any private home, and are informal. Once or twice a week, and sometimes more often, Mrs. Wilson will issue cards for a small tea, at which she frequently has the wives of cabinet officers to assist her. One of the most gracious acts of Mrs. Wilson since she came into the white house and which has endeared her very much to the coterie of clever women who write the social news of the capital, was to give a special at-home afternoon reception in compliment to the newspaper women of Washington. The affair was most charming, and Mrs. Wilson and her daughters graciously gave a few minutes individually to each of the women writers.

There are three cooks who prepare the meals for the presidential family and for small dinner parties. All three of the women are highly experienced. There is a regular corps of laundresses and cleaners. The laundry and kitchens are located in the basement of the white house, far removed from the state and private apartments. There is also a "flower room," where the cut flowers are kept. These flowers are supplied to the white house fresh every day. This is one of the most interesting features of the history of the white house and its maintenance, and has proved particularly so to Mrs. Wilson, whose great love of nature, and particularly flowers, is widely known.

Hydro-Aeroplane Meet.

That there are only two ways of making serviceable hydro-aeroplanes was the most valuable lesson learned in the international meet held at Mopaco in April, where many of the machines met with disaster in getting clear of the water or in lighting, declares the July Popular Mechanics' magazine, in a well illustrated article. One way is to make the machine so big and strong and powerful that it will stand any sea, and the other is to make it so light and powerful that it will come easily off the top of the first wave. In either case power is the thing to be given consideration, and the machine should be made as efficient as possible to utilize the power to the best advantage. It is one difficult matter to design floats that will come off calm water easily, but these same floats may be useless when one tries to get off in a seaming, head first, into a sea, unless there is enough power to drag the whole machine out of the water, much the same as pulling a cork from a cork. The float for sea work is not the one that gets off best, but the one that pulls out easiest, and after that the best float is the one that offers least head resistance when flying. Much of this difficulty would seem to be due to the European practice of using twin floats instead of a single-hull boat, as in America, where little difficulty has been experienced.

First Aid for Motorists at Sign-posts.

Several of the sign-posts in Port Sunlight, England, are first-aid-to-the-injured cabinets as well. They are placed at various points where serious accidents have occurred. Each cabinet contains sponges, blankets, bandages and splints, lint, wool and antiseptic gauze, vralous surgical instruments, sticking plaster, ointments, a water bottle, ring and bandage and a first-aid chest which is easily carried short distances. Pictures of these first-aid stations appear in the July Popular Mechanics Magazine.
